Business Tax Revisions Win Support In House

Repeal of Capital Stock and Excess Profits Levies Is Asked by M'Cormack

By Robert C. Albright.

Plans for readjustment of the corporate tax structure to speed business recovery gained influential support in the House yesterday, as Administration tax studies marked time pending analysis of revenue needs.

Representative McCormack (Democrat), Massachusetts, who led last year's House revolt against penalty taxes on family corporations, declared for a simplified single corporate income tax, replacing the capital stock, excess profits and undivided profits levies.

To further aid capital investment in productive enterprise, McCormack urged surtaxes on high-bracket individual incomes be scaled down, and sharp modification be made in the tax on capital gains and losses. Together, he said these moves would free frozen capital and in the end yield greater revenue.

Harrison Rallies Support

Confining his fight to simplification of the corporate tax set-up in aid of recovery, Senator Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, in the Senate was rallying support in private conferences. If the White House and Treasury remain silent on the tax issue, a series of Senate speeches indorsing the plan are expected to follow.

Developments:

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau said he was not forecasting or broadcasting," but reported "progress" is being made on the tax program. He indicated the Administration's own tax revision plan will not be made public until after the first week in April. He said he will have nothing to say until he testifies before the House Ways and Means committee.

Confidence Needed

George H. Davis, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and S. Clay Williams, one-time head of the NRA, following a call at the White House, said the foremost need now was restoration of business confidence. Both were optimistic about business prospects, but felt that confidence was the "catalyst" necessary to start things moving. Williams said further relaxation of the capital gains tax would be helpful.

The Treasury reported income tax collections for the first 14 days of March reached $96,636,397, indicating aggregate collections for the month may total $500,000,000. Early returns were 26 per cent below the same period last year, but far exceeded forecasts

Hotspur, Really Hurt in Duel, 'Dies' A la Shakespeare

Shakespeare probably never intended it that way, but last night he killed a character just in time to save a play.

John Emery, as Hotspur, in Orson Welles' production of "Five Kings" from Shakespeare at the National Theater, was in fierce conflict with Burgess Meredith, as Prince Hal. They whacked away at each other with formidable swords until Meredith fell, spraining his wrist and breaking his shield. His sword cracked down full on Emery's pate.

Punch drunk but fighting, Emery struggled through to the end of the scene. There Shakespeare and Welles had arranged conveniently enough for Hotspur's death.

Mgr. McGivney, K. C. Chaplain, Dies

Bridgeport, Conn., March 16 (AP).—Right Rev. Mgr. John J. McGivney, 69, supreme chaplain of the Knights of Columbus, died suddenly tonight.

Mgr. McGivney, who was made a domestic prelate by the late Pope Pius XI in 1932, succeeded his brother, the late Mgr. Patrick J. McGivney, as pastor of St. Charles Church and as supreme chaplain of the Knights of Columbus in 1928.

Flames Start in Kitchen; Orchestra Plays 'Keep the Home Fires Burning' for Guests In Cocktail Lounge; Traffic Delayed

A two-alarm fire at the height of the cocktail hour yesterday threatened 300 occupants of the Carlton Hotel, Sixteenth and K streets northwest. One fireman was overcome by smoke and injured in a fall downstairs.

Flames spread from the kitchen through the walls to the third floor and filled the eight-story hotel with thick smoke.

While firemen fought the blaze in the lobby, a fashionable crowd remained in the cocktail lounge while the orchestra played "Keep the Home Fires Burning." And in the street striking hotel workers continued marching in the picket line. Expensive furniture and rugs in the lobby were drenched, and gaping holes were made in the walls to

RFC to Occupy Building on McLean Site

Two Former PWA Officials to Share in $1,000,000 Fees

Chairman Jesse H. Jones, of the RFC, revealed yesterday that the corporation would occupy the new 12-story building to be erected at a cost of approximately $8,000,000 on the site of the old McLean mansion at Fifteenth and I streets.

This was disclosed by Jones in a letter to Speaker Bankhead protesting against remarks made by Representative Taylor (Republican), Tennessee, attacking the RFC for its part in the deal.

The corporation, through the RFC Mortgage Co., several months ago authorized a loan of $5,600,000 toward construction of the building. This arrangement was contingent, Jones said, on the RFC being able to lease the building at a satisfactory rental with an option to buy it at cost.

"When the space is no longer needed for RFC activities," he added, "it can be rented easily for sufficient to pay interest and amortization on our mortgage."

Critics Twist Griffenhagen Plan, Says Aide

Everett Defends D. C. Reorganization Report Before Trade Board

"Malicious" attacks on the Griffenhagen report, based on deliberate distortion, are clouding public discussion of the far-reaching plan for reorganization of the District government, Frank O. Everett warned last night in a speech before the Washington Board of Trade.

Striking back at the survey's critics, the Griffenhagen partner charged that phrases from the report have been torn out of context and "twisted and strained to extract meanings from them that were in no way intended by the authors, to give grounds for violent attacks on the substance of the plan," Everett charged.

The objectors, he asserted, "would deprive the residents of the District of the unquestionable benefits of the plan as a whole, just because they do not agree with certain features, or because the plan does not provide certain things they want."

Speaking from the same platform, Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, told the 600 board members that with the fall of Czecho-Slovakia

Gov. Fitzgerald Dies at 54; His Successor Is 80 and Ill

By the Associated Press.

Grand Ledge, Mich., March 16.—Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald, who defeated Frank Murphy, now United States Attorney General, for re-election last November, died from a heart attack at his residence here tonight. The Republican Governor had been suffering from influenza.

FITZGERALD

DICKINSON

Gov. Fitzgerald was 54. He began his second two-year term as Governor last January 1. He was the first chief executive of the State to return to office after being defeated for re-election.

Fitzgerald first was Governor in 1934--35, but Murphy captured the office from him at the end of his first term. Two years later Fitzgerald turned the tables on the Democrat, who was appointed to President Roosevelt's Cabinet at the expiration of his term.

The Governor was ordered to bed Monday by his physician, Dr. E. M. McCoy, who said the influenza was aggravated by a lung and circulatory condition.

Fitzgerald was the first Michigan Governor to die in office. He will be succeeded by Lieut. Gov. Luren

Woodring Urges Added Canal Locks

Enemy Couldn't Block Improved Panama Passageway Long, Says Ridley

Immediate construction of a new set of locks at the Panama Canal was recommended to Congress yesterday by Secretary of War Woodring, to safeguard the vital defense channel against air raids and sabotage.

The project, to cost $277,000,000, was recommended in a study authorized by Congress of the feasibility of increasing facilities for transportation across the isthmus. Submitted yesterday by Brig. Gen. Clarence S. Ridley, Governor of the Canal Zone, the report declared that with measures to make locks bombproof, an attack could not close the canal to passage of the Navy for more than a very short period.

Cost Declared High

The report was received as the House Merchant Marine Committee heard testimony from Ridley and other Army engineers that construction of an additional canal across Nicaragua or Mexico would cost at least four times the estimated outlay for the third set of locks at Panama. Members of the committee indicated they favored the latter project, as they prepared to close hearings on the canal problem today.

Meanwhile, it appeared virtually certain that Congress will drop from the bill the controversial proposal to establish an air base at Guam, and provide for the contemplated development in a separate bill. Chairman Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, said after a conference with President Roosevelt that the latter had no objection to eliminating the $3,000,000 item for Guam from the $85,000,000 naval air base bill now before his committee.

New Guam Plan Form

Walsh told reporters the "President thinks the item would be more appropriate in a rivers and harbors bill and he probably will recommend that." The committee head declared that this procedure should divest the proposal of any "emergency defense characteristics" and in a non-military form should meet with no objection.

The project recommended by the Navy Department calls for improving the harbor at the western Pacific isle and building runways and hangars on shore.

Final approval of the $358,000,000 Army air expansion bill was delayed until next week, when the House adjourned last night until Monday without acting on the conference report. Whipped into final shape, the report was submitted to the Senate late yesterday.

The report submitted by Ridley, involving more than two years of study by Army engineers, recommends by-pass channels about a half-mile from the existing double

Magyars Move In

(Associated Press Staff Correspondent)

With the Hungarian Army in Chust, Carpatho-Ukraine, March 16.—Hungarian troops stormed this little Carpatho-Ukraine capital at 4 p. m. today and after an hour and a half of energetic mopping up smashed all Czech and Ukrainian resistance.

Tonight Chust was a quiet, bullet-marked city completely under Hungarian control.

Ukrainian storm troopers whose dream it had been to establish an independent Ukraine state, and a few Czech soldiers who had decided to fight rather than flee to safety to Rumania, were driven out into the snow-covered mountains which circle the city.

Government Flees

They will be hard to dislodge from their mountain hideouts, but the victorious Hungarian soldiers were preparing to pursue tomorrow.

The government of Premier Augustin Volosin, which only yesterday had proclaimed its independence, had fled early today to Rumania. Volosin narrowly escaped assassination as he crossed the border.

In a dramatic last-minute effort to prevent his day-old nation from falling into Hungary's hands, Volosin had appealed to Rumania to annex the province.

King Carol's government rejected the request, fearing acceptance would mean immediate war with both Hungary and Poland.

Bayonets Used

Hungarian troops yesterday had pushed across the western end of Carpatho-Ukraine to the Polish border, and both countries today were celebrating the achievement of the common border they have long desired.

The bitterest fighting occurred in a system of shallow, barbed-wire protected trenches 7 miles east of Chust.

After a brief artillery bombardment of the defense works, the Hungarians made a bayonet charge and for half an hour there was bitter hand-to-hand conflict.

In one trench I counted the bodies of 37 defenders.

But there were a few in the blue uniform of "Stitch," irregular

With Czecho-Slovakia obliterated, nations wonder where Hitler will turn next. Supposed apple of his eye is the rich Ukraine, and his eastward progress carries him ever nearer. Fears are that he may strike at the Polish Corridor and Danzig, putting pincers around Poland. Laborites Silence Lady Astor's 'Late' Blast at Hitler

London, March 16 (AP).—Lady Nancy Astor, Virginia-born member of Parliament, precipitated an uproar in the House of Commons today. Heatedly, she asked of Prime Minister Chamberlain:

"Will the Prime Minister lose no time in letting the German government know with what horror the whole of this country regards its breach of the Munich pledge?"

Laborites jumped up shouting:

"Too late!" "Cliveden set!" "Give another lunch!"

The hubbub continued so long that she finally gave up her questioning and sat down.

(The "Cliveden set" remark was a reference to meetings at Cliveden, a country estate of Lord and Lady Astor, of persons charged with influencing British policy.)

Poles Jeer at Nazis; Memel Plans Coup

Diet to Meet Mar. 25 To Pave Way for Union With Reich

By the International News Service

Berlin, March 16.—The incorporation into the German Reich of Memel, semiautonomous Lithuanian city-state, within the next two weeks was predicted in Berlin tonight as Ernst Neumann, Nazi leader in Memel, was reported to have sent a message to Reichsfuehrer Hitler, the nature of which was not revealed. But it was assumed, however, to be an appeal for aid in achieving the "emancipation" of Memel from Lithuania.

Neumann was quoted tonight by DNB, official German news agency, as having said:

"We shall not change our present state of affairs by force, but we will demand our rights and fight for them to the last."

German circles in Memel, according to reports from Kaunas, Lithuanian capital, indicated that the Memel Diet, summoned to meet March 25, will adopt a law authorizing Neumann "to take all necessary measures and to give orders."

It was also reported that Neumann had sent a note to the Kaunas government formally demanding independence of the strategic port zone which was taken from Germany by the peace treaties.

"Independence" of Memel would almost certainly lead to its return to Germany.

Danzig to Invite Hitler

London, (Friday), March 17 (I.N.S.)—Reichsfuhrer Hitler will be invited this coming week to "walk into" the free city of Danzig, the Daily Herald said today.

Down With Germany, Rioters Yell; March On Embassy Halted

By the Associated Press.

Warsaw, March 16.—A celebration marking the establishment of a common Hungarian-Polish frontier through Hungary's annexation of Carpatho-Ukraine developed tonight into anti-German and anti-Jewish demonstrations.

The boisterous scenes here in which a crowd estimated at 1,000 shouted "Down with Germany!" and "Down with Jews!" was in contrast to those at the Polish-Carpatho-Ukrainian frontier where the Hungarians were greeted by kisses from Polish soldiers and civilians.

The crowd here tried to march on the German Embassy, but was thrown back by a strong force of special police around the building.

The demonstrators then turned their fury on Jewish shops in the vicinity. Several windows were smashed before police finally restored order.

(The demonstrations were the first anti-German disorders in Poland since students paraded and shouted February 28, in protest at treatment of Poles in Danzig. Those disorders lasted over a period of four days, while the Italian Foreign

Czech Envoy Here Defies Hitler, Refuses to Surrender Legation

By Edward T. Folliard

A fragment of Czecho-Slovak territory in Washington—the legation at 2349 Massachusetts avenue—became a disputed prize yesterday when Col. Vladimir Hurban, the Czecho-Slovak Minister to the United States, refused to surrender it to the German Embassy.

Col. Hurban, a World War hero and one of the architects of the little republic which Hitler has just smashed, defied an order from the German Foreign Office to give up the legation, and announced he would hold on until he received a written document signed by President Hacha.

Records at the District Assessor's office show that the Czecho-Slovak Legation, occupying four lots at the northeast corner of Twenty-fourth street and Massachusetts avenue, is assessed at $115,375.

Working with characteristic precision, the German foreign office, less than 24 hours after Hitler entered Prague, ordered its emissaries abroad to take over all Czecho-Slovak embassies, legations and consulates.

Minister Hurban issued a statement shortly before noon:

"The First Secretary of the German Embassy, Karl Resenberg, came to see me and read to me an order from the German foreign office asking the German Embassy to take over the Czecho-Slovak Legation and consulates. My reply was that I have not received any order from my government in Prague which appointed me, the only authority which could issue such an order to me. I must have written—not a telegraphic—document

Prague, March 16.—Adolf Hitler tonight stretched the mighty arm of the Reich's military power to embrace the two-day old independent state of Slovakia as well as the ancient realms of Bohemia and Moravia.

Hailed with almost mystical fervor by his countrymen as a "man of destiny" with an imperial mission prepared by a thousand years of German history, the Reichsfuehrer wrote another dramatic page of Nazi lore by the sudden acceptance of a bid by Slovakia to be taken into the Reich as a "protectorate."

Meanwhile, Hungary completed the job of wiping Czecho-Slovakia from the map of Europe by announcing annexation of Carpatho-Ukraine, easternmost of the three major sections of the war-born republic.

Almost simultaneously, Bohemia and Moravia, resounding to the clanking steel of marching German soldiers, were legally fused into the corporate body of the greater Reich by official proclamation which assigned them special roles as the first components of the empire not German in race.

Gold Carted Away

Late today Hitler reaped the first economic spoils of his coup, when uniformed Nazi Storm troopers carted 16 truckloads of gold, estimated at more than $80,000,000, away from the Czecho-Slovak National Bank. Total financial gain actually amounted to nearly $120,000,000,—the assets of the bank. The additional $40,000,000 represents stocks of foreign currencies.

An additional $20,000,000 in gold was believed held by the now extinct Czech government in foreign banks, but since part of this was pledged for credits it was questionable how much Germany would be able to recover.

Seizure of Czech metal reserves is expected to go far toward paying off the Reich's trade deficit. Other prizes include the Czech army's equipment, munitions plants, and several hundred airplanes, along with vast iron and steel productive capacity, and other resources.

Prague Faces Sullen

On the surface Prague was calm, but there were evidences that ugly emotions were seething—sullen faces on Czechs, muttered comments on Nazi police patrols seeking "undesirables," and covered heads before the swastika emblem.

More German troops, it was officially announced, were dispatched tonight to the former Czech capital, and they moved by motorized transport through the night along three different routes.

It was not revealed whether they would remain in Bohemia or Moravia, or whether they would go on to Slovakia. The latter appeared more likely in view of indications that Hitler would make his entry

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

Honolulu, T. H., March 16.

At odd moments I used to worry about Hawaii. Seemed to me that 28,000 men and a couple of hundred planes weren't enough to protect Hollywood from invasion. But now I am filled with calm assurance. If a Japanese expedition were met at the water's edge and enough leis were draped around each invader, they'd all relax and go swimming at Waikiki.

Doris Duke . . . barefoot?

At last the poor little richest girl in the world has found some peace and privacy. At her house around Diamond Head from Waikiki Beach Doris Duke can go barefoot all day just as inconspicuously as any housewife of a $1,500-a-year family. She likes the island people and mingles with them most democratically.

* * * *

Mrs. Jimmy Cromwell, as she is sometimes known, has taken under her wing quite an assortment of Duke Kahanomoku's brothers, sisters and in-laws. The famous swimmer's brother Sam is her chauffeur. Sometimes he can be seen heating a can of beans in her kitchen. Sam and his relatives call her Doris, and here she can be just as folksy as if she didn't have those millions.

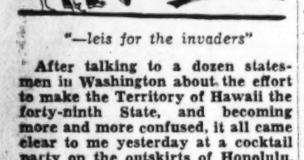
After talking to a dozen statesmen in Washington about the effort to make the Territory of Hawaii the forty-ninth State, and becoming more and more confused, it all came clear to me yesterday at a cocktail party on the outskirts of Honolulu. Publicly some bigshots in the Islands clamor for Statehood, but privately some don't want it.

* * * *

But thousands of Hawaiian voters want statehood. So the politicians who want these votes find it advisable to shout for statehood. These leaders to some extent adopt the tactics of Congressmen who yell for something on the floor and vote against it in the privacy of the committee rooms. This keeps everybody happy, which is the chief aim of life in Hawaii.

* * * *

We went paddling this morning in an outrigger canoe, scooting in on the front edge of big waves through the surfboarders, and I couldn't help thinking this was more fun than the eminent people living in this part of the United States were having ashore, sitting in their offices and worrying about sugar prices and quotas. Around Washington we think of cotton, wheat and corn as Henry Wallace's big headaches, but out here it's sugar that brings him into prominence.



"—she got seven proposals"

"What's Henry Wallace going to do about sugar?" is the question they ask you, in one form or another.

"Well," I tell 'em, "don't know," and that I hope Henry knows. My only suggestion is that Henry come out here to study the sugar question from the Waikiki Beach angle; he well deserves a little surfboarding after wrestling with the insoluble problems of men who have more to sell than people will buy.

The love life of the 11,000 Army bachelors stationed outside Honolulu is another tough one for the people here. The Army tries to sublimate the yearning for romance and so on into other channels—boxing matches, baseball and other activities to take the soldier boys' minds off the ladies. With just a few safety valves, it works fairly well; but hundreds of girls who have found Washington the worst city in the world to land a husband would find Honolulu the best.

* * * *

In fact, a pretty girl can average at least one proposal at each party, if she gives the Army officers a chance. One lovely model, Kitty Aldrich, of New York, who came out here to pose for some pictures with leis and flowers in her hair, got seven proposals in one evening. So far as I know, that's a record; you've seen her on the magazine covers, so you'll understand. An average girl wouldn't do badly, either. Maybe the War Department should send out a regiment of girls.

WPA Misused Relief Funds, Says Woodrum

Virginian Doesn't Charge Graft, but 'Questions Operations'

A charge that "hundreds of millions of dollars appropriated by Congress for relief of needy citizens have not been expended for that purpose" was voiced yesterday by Representative Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia, a member of the House subcommittee now conducting hearings on the $150,000,000 WPA bill.

Woodrum, who was displaced as acting chairman of the subcommittee, said in a radio address that "I do not charge graft or corruption, but I question the judgment and challenge the wisdom of many of these (relief) operations."

The Virginian spoke a few hours after he and the other members of the subcommittee had heard Col. F. C. Harrington, WPA administrator, in a second day's testimony present figures to show the need for the full amount of $150,000,000 for the WPA, if the discharge of 1,000,000 relief workers by July 1st is to be avoided.

Expects Better Business

Col. Harrington is reported to have said he did not consider the WPA a permanent agency. He told the sub-committee, it was stated, that he expected business improvement to enable WPA rolls to be halved by July 1, 1940, and eventually liquidated in entirety.

One member of the sub-committee observed later that "the WPA is always talking about cutting down the rolls—next year." He added that "President Roosevelt didn't have all the facts when he made his estimate that $150,000,000 more would be necessary."

Another of Col. Harrington's inquisitors asserted that WPA rolls would have been reduced by 1,000,000 workers naturally dropping out between February and July, if they had not been replaced by persons on the waiting list.

To Probe Costs

Col. Harrington, scheduled to reappear before the sub-committee today, will be questioned about the administrative costs of WPA, including phone bills, traveling expenses and other items. It is thought probable that questions of policy, with particular reference to the theater projects, will be inquired into next week.

The present hearings are expected to lay much of the groundwork for Congress' treatment of the Federal relief structure in the 1940 budget. To this end, Representative Cox (Democrat), of Georgia, yesterday introduced a resolution directing the Appropriations Committee to conduct "a thorough investigation and study of WPA." A companion resolution provided $30,000 for the inquiry.

The probability is increasing that the sub-committee will bring out a bill providing the WPA somewhat less than $150,000,000 for the balance of the fiscal year. As between the Administration's demand for the full sum and the desire of more than one member of the sub-committee not to appropriate anything, it seemed likely yesterday that a figure would be worked out satisfying neither extreme.

Compromise Foreseen

Some of the "economy" members of the subcommittee are said to feel that any slash—no matter how slight—in the $150,000,000 request would represent a victory for them.

Failure of Congress to provide the $150,000,000 "would create among the unemployed a suffering unequalled by anything since the present Administration began," declared Ralph Hetzel, C. I. O. unemployment director, in a statement issued yesterday on behalf of the C. I. O.

Senator Vandenberg (Republican), meanwhile, offered a bill that would enable the WPA to continue spending at the current rate to June 1 without any further appropriation.

"That would give Congress two and a half months to study the entire relief problem and to consider setting up some system to replace that now in operation," Vandenberg said.

In his radio address, Representative Woodrum, renewing a proposal already incorporated in a bill he recently introduced, suggested that "the Federal Government should place the major part of the responsibility for the administration of relief on States and localities."

"I challenge the statement that, if State agencies were charged with the responsibility of administration of relief, the same conditions would obtain of which many of us now complain," he sad.

The Gallup Poll

Voters Favor Friendlier New Deal Attitude Toward Business Interests

By Dr. George Gallup,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

New York, March 16.—With President Roosevelt's advisers now engaged in a bitter fight over whether the New Deal should attempt to conciliate business further or stand pat on its present program, a Nation-wide survey of public opinion provides important new facts on the trend of sentiment regarding the Administration's business policies today.

GALLUP

One group of White House advisers is urging the President to hold fast and make no concessions to business. An opposing group, headed by Secretary Hopkins and Secretary Morgenthau, wants him to adopt a definite policy of moderation and positive encouragement to business. The President is said to be wavering between the two schools of thought. One question basic to the whole controversy is: in what direction does the public lean?

The national surroundings of the American Institute of Public Opinion give strong evidence that the dominant pull of public opinion today is toward the Hopkins-Morgenthau policy of conciliating business in an effort to restore confidence. This policy is popular with voters chiefly because a majority of them believe that the Administration's attitude toward business has been an important factor in delaying business recovery.

The institute's soundings, taken among representative voters in all sections, probed opinion on two issues. The first was:

"Do you think that the general attitude of the Roosevelt Administration toward business is too friendly or not friendly enough?"

The largest single group, constituting a majority of those answering, said they thought it was "not friendly enough."

About Right	39

The institute asked this same question a year and a half ago and a comparison of results shows that an increasing number of voters have become convinced that the New Deal is too histile to business. At that time 38 per cent said it was "not friendly enough" as against 52 per cent today.

The second question put to voters in the survey was as follows:

"Do you think the attitude of the Roosevelt Administration toward business is delaying business recovery?"

Voters who answered "yes" were given an opportunity to indicate the degree to which they thought recovery was being delayed.

The results were:

Yes, a lot	41%
Yes, a little	26
No	33

One fact high-spotted by the survey is the intensely partisan nature of opinion on the issue of the New Deal versus business. While more than half of Democratic voters (53 per cent) think the Administration's attitude toward business is about right, eight out of every ten Republicans (80 per cent) think it is not friendly enough. Approximately four Democrats in ten (38 per cent) likewise think the Administration's attitude is too hostile.

A partisan division of opinion was also found in answer to the second question in the survey. Nearly nine out of every ten Republicans (89 per cent) said they thought the Administration's attitude toward business was delaying recovery. A slight majority of Democrats expressed the same view, though the majority was smaller than among Republicans—54 per cent.

Nation in 39th Roosevelt Crisis, Rep. Barton Says

By the Associated Press.

Representative Barton (Republican), New York, said in a statement yesterday that a study of President Roosevelt's messages and speeches disclosed that the country is now in its thirty-ninth "emergency" since 1933.

Barton listed in chronological order excerpts from Mr. Roosevelt's speeches and messages in which the Chief Executive referred to "emergency," "crisis," "disaster," "serious situation," "danger" or period of "increasing emergency."

"Is it any wonder the people are emotionally exhausted and demanding a change?" Barton asked.

"Private industry cannot create jobs in an atmosphere of tumult and terror. Any national Administration is entitled to one or two emergencies in a term of six years. But an emergency every six weeks means plain bad management."

U. S. to Chart Shorter Course, Alaska to Asia

Seattle, March 16 (AP).—The Federal Coast and Geodetic Survey disclosed today a five-year, $25,000,000 project to chart a shorter, safer course to Asia through the North Pacific, and facilitate naval operations in the fog-shrouded Aleutian Islands.

Capt. Gilbert T. Rude, chief of the survey's Division of Hydrography and Topography, announced four ships would chart waters of the Bering Sea this summer. The purpose, he said, is to develop, perhaps five years hence, a route between continental America and Asia through Unimak Pass and westerly along the northern side of the Aleutians.

Sen. Wagner Denies USHA Is Socialistic

'Democratic' and Economically Sound, He Answers Tydings

Disputing the contention of Senator Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, that the United States Housing Authority is an extravagant scheme of state socialism, Senator Wagner (Democrat), of New York, author of the housing act, yesterday defended the Government's slum-clearance program as "one of the greatest efforts in democracy that the country has ever undertaken."

Senator Wagner, who has proposed to double USHA's $800,000,000 lending authorization, attacked both the arguments and the figures Tydings employed in a speech last week.

"Of all the programs for the sound rehabilitation of our people and the development of our physical resources," said Wagner, on the floor of the Senate, "there is none which has a smaller effect upon the national debt and which yields a larger return in economic benefits and human welfare than the housing program."

Under the proposed bill, the Senator declared, the aggregate net annual cost to the Federal Government at present interest rates would be $44,000,000 per year. The present cost, he said, is about $18,760,000 per year. "These are the figures which all the Senator from Maryland with dread of National bankruptcy," said Wagner.

In answer to Tydings' objections to local tax exemption on U. S. H. A. projects, Wagner pointed out that "the Senator seems to be involved in a hopeless contradiction, when on the one hand he complains that rents are too high to rehouse slum dwellers and that the Federal Government is bearing the whole cost, while on the other hand, he suggests the abandonment of the tax exemption by which the localities are getting lower rents and bearing their fair share of the costs."

Holds Costs Are Lower

Replying to the statement of Tydings that USHA costs are higher by $136 per unit than houses insured by the FHA, Wagner asserted that the average value of new housing insured by FHA is $5,530, while the average cost per dwelling unit of USHA projects is expected to be $4,507.

Wagner added that FHA-insured housing is required to have a useful life of 20 or 25 years, while USHA houses are built for 60 years. Furthermore, he said, land costs of slum sites where most USHA projects are built are higher than costs of sites where FHA houses are erected. In addition, said Wagner, every USHA project pays prevailing wage rates to labor employed in construction, while no such guarantee applies to FHA houses.

"In view of these differences between the USHA and the FHA program, it seems to me remarkable that the USHA cost is actually lower by $1,023 per unit, including land, non-dwelling facilities and the new house," said Wagner.

9,000,000 Favor Lottery to Cut Tax, Kummer Asserts

A. J. Kummer, president of the Congressional Districts Modification League, announced yesterday 9,000,000 persons had signed a petition urging a national lottery as a tax reduction scheme. The petition, he said, soon would be filed with Congress.

"Our proposed national lottery bill," Kummer said, "apportions 75 per cent of the net profit of the lottery to the States according to population, to be used for welfare, old age pensions and other worthy purposes. Five per cent would go for administration and the remaining 20 per cent of the net profit would go into the Federal Treasury for further tax reduction."

The Treasury would supervise the lottery, Kummer said, and the Postoffice Department would handle the tickets.

Mrs. Garner, wife and office manager of the Vice President, exercises on the machine for 15 minutes almost daily, although her young secretaries say it's too strenuous for them.

It isn't a reducing stunt. Mrs. Garner, a grandmother, who has been her husband's secretary for more than 40 years, doesn't seem to take on weight, but she likes to keep her muscles toned, she says.

Preliminary returns from a poll of House Democrats disclosed yesterday an overwhelming sentiment against the Townsend old-age pension plan.

Representative Boland (Democrat), Pennsylvania, the party "whip" who is directing the survey, said he expected the final results to show the same ratio. He did not make public the figures tabulated so far.

The signatures of 50,000 small businessmen in every section of the country were appended to petitions for drastic revision of the national labor relations act, presented to the Senate by Senator Burke (Democrat), Nebraska. He recommended the Senate Labor Committee consider amendments to the act no later than April 1.

Senator David I. Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, yesterday declared the Senate Naval Affairs Committee, of which he is chairman, would inquire into President Roosevelt's appointment of Capt. Harry A. Stewart to be a rear admiral in the United States Navy.

Walsh said the committee will seek to ascertain whether the Navy Selection Board was consulted regarding the promotion. He explained that Capt. Stewart's work as head of the naval oil reserves on the Pacific Coast for the last 22 years had confined him to one field of experience, and that a man should have a more all-around experience before being named a rear admiral.

Nomination of Norman H. Littell, of Seattle, as assistant attorney general in charge of the lands division, was sent to the Senate by President Roosevelt. He will succeed Carl McFarland, who resigned, effective Monday, to enter law practice with former Attorney General Homer Cummings.

Littell, who is 38, is a native of Scholar at Oxford University, Indiana and former Rhodes England. His career included trips around the world as ordinary seaman on a freighter. He formerly represented the Federal Government in petroleum code administration in the northwest.

The Senate Privileges and Elections Committee appointed subcommittees to study the contested elections of Senator Van Nuys (Democrat), Indiana, and Senator Tom Stewart (Democrat), Winchester, Tenn. Both committees were ordered to make reports next Thursday.

Nixon's Divorce Upheld; Ex-Wife's Plea Dismissed

Justice Bailey cleared the six-year Nixon divorce case off the District court docket yesterday by upholding Capt. Thomas Hay Nixon's Pennsylvania decree and dismissing the effort of Mrs. Annette Pauline Nixon to get a divorce in Washington on her own account.

Upheld also by the order was Capt. Nxion's marriage to Mrs. Anne Cooke Nixon, Chevy Chase society girl, whom he married in 1935 a few days after he won a divorce from Mrs. Annette Nixon, a former "Scandals" showgirl.

Justice Bailey gave Mrs. Annette Nixon a judgement of $325 in back alimony and ruled Capt. Nixon would have to pay her lawyer.

Senators Ask 2-House Veto On Mergers

Byrd Proposes 'Economy' Amendment To Offices Bill

A two-way Senate fight to write economy objectives into the Government reorganization bill and tighten Congressional control over Federal mergers yesterday was directed at the House-approved Government reorganization bill, as Senate debate opened on the measure.

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, asked the Senate to require two-chamber approval of every reorganization plan submitted by the President.

Joining Wheeler in the attack on powers given the President in the House bill were Senators George (Democrat), of Georgia, and Bailey (Democrat), of North Carolina, both contending the Senate had no right to vote away its own "sovereignty."

Wheeler said House provisions requiring a negative vote by both Houses before reorganization could be stopped, were tantamount to saying Congress "is inefficient and incompetent to act and that it can't do the job." The Montanan warned that this "is a very dangerous thing to say to the American people at this time."

The provision under fire provides Congress with a concurrent resolution "veto" over reorganized plans. Opponents contend this would permit mergers to take effect over the disapproval of one House. To reverse this procedure, mergers would take effect only after affirmative action of both Houses under the Wheeler amendment.

Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, author of a rival reorganization bill, listened silently to the debate. Then he introduced an "economy" amendment.

Deficits Cited in Bill

"The Congress hereby declares," his amendment stated, "that by reason of continued national deficits beginning in 1931 it is imperative to reduce drastically Government expenditures and that such reduction may be accomplished in great measure by proceeding immediately under the provisions of this act."

The Senate today is expected to consider only "noncontroversial" amendments to the House bill, and a test on the Wheeler and Byrd probably will go over to next week.

Brynes argued that Congress could not initiate reorganization through a committee of its own because it was too close to the problem and subject to pressure from the various agencies affected by reorganization. He argued that initiating action by the President, as proposed in the House bill, was the only hope of obtaining any substantial reorganization.

"We Are Too Close"

"The fact is that we are too close to the seat of Government to do it," Byrnes said. "State governments can be reorganized, but let this bill pass, and see what happens. I have not been able to remain in my office during the last 24 hours. If I go out of this place now, who will be telephoning me? Some man who has been appointed to some office, appointed on the recommendation of a Senator or a Representative, who wanted a job when he was applying. But the minute he was commissioned and in office he conceived the idea that he had been drafted into public service."

Urging that the President be given the merger powers asked by the House, Byrnes quoted the advice of former Speaker Champ Clark: "We listen to the solicitation and the appeals of those who have access to our ears and forget the multitudes who can never see our faces or hear our voices."

George and Bailey attacked House provisions against any Congressional change in the President's reorganization plans and proposed debate limitations of 2 hours and 20 hours, respectively, on motions to bring merger plans before the Senate and on the actual reorganization plans submitted.

Bailey charged Byrnes had "committed himself and has undertaken to commit the Senate to a system of cloture that would destroy this body, and I use the word with utmost caution."

"When this body ceases to have the utmost freedom of motion, of resolution, of discretion, and of debate, it has ceased to be a Senate," said Bailey, 'and has become merely a legislative mill, under the control of any majority that may be in possession of it. And that is the destruction of the greatest and the last of the three parliamentary bodies on the face of the earth."

George argued that regardless of the bill's provisions limiting debate and denying the right of any change in reorganization plans submitted, the Senate is "sovereign" in its own field, and may change the rules and amend any bill. Byrnes agreed the Senate has the power to change its own rules at any time "and Congress has the power to pass any law."

"This is a sovereign body when it comes to ordering its own procedure, and it may violate even good faith if it wants to do so," said George.

Bone Not Convinced

"It does not matter how we may argue about it, there will be offers to amend any plan of reorganization and the Senate may do as it pleases upon that question. So that if there is an amendment offered to a reorganization plan, none of the restrictions and none of the efforts made to expedite the hearings and to prevent or cut off debate can possibly apply," said the Georgian.

Backing the Wheeler amendment, Senator Bone (Democrat), of Washington, said he did not see how Congress could give effect to any legislation if one of the two Houses disapproved.

Critics Twist Griffenhagen Plan, Says Aide

Trade

"Hitler will go on crushing and devouring, even beyond the Hellespont, on the road to India."

Everett's defense of the Griffenhagen plan was heard by Commissioners Melvin C. Hazen and Lieut. Col. David McCoach, jr., guests at the board meeting in the Mayflower, who have given a decidedly cool reception to the report.

Retorting to criticism of the Griffenhagen proposal for abolishing or reducing to advisory status the school board, Everett said::

"'We had the temerity to propose that education be treated as a function of government and not as something outside and beyond, and, shall say, above.

Politics in Schools

He demanded to know how the survey recommendation could be construed as a move to take control of the schools "'away from the people" when the present Board of Education is appointed by the courts, "like a receiver."

Impartial studies reveal "absolutely no correlation between the degrees of independence and the effectiveness of school systems," he asserted, adding that evidence of "undesirable political influences and practices," is, if anything, more abundant in the "independent" school systems than those directly controlled by the central municipal government.

Attacks on the report because it does not recommend District suffrage are entirely beside the point, Everett said, because the plan "deals with administrative and operating organization and should be judged by what it suggests on that subject as paving the way for the elective method, if and when it is adopted."

Franchise No Matter

The plan would provide the District with cheaper and more efficient government than it enjoys today, whether or not the Capital is given the franchise, he maintained.

Full support of recommendations for repeal of the intangible property and business privilege taxes and adoption of a combined sales-income levy was expressed in a report to the board by Robert V. Fleming, chairman of the municipal finance committee.

Pointing out that general operating expenses of the District government are likely to increase $1,000,000 and that capital outlays and replacements will probably run to at least $6,000,000 per annum Fleming predicted that the District must be prepared to raise a minimum of $51,000,000 by 1947.

Police, Firemen Honored

Proposed taxation changes, combined with "normal increase in revenue expectancy" should bring about a situation where the inevitable budget increases "can be met without creating any appreciable surpluses or deficits," he concluded.

Two policemen and three firemen were honored with awards from the board's committee on meritorious service.

Commissioner Hazen presented Sergt. Robert V. Murray, former precinct detective, with the Police Department gold medal for valor in the 12 months ending June 30, 1938; Private Dewey H. Mayo, the silver medal, and Private Jesse C. Arnold, the Fire Department gold medal. Privates Thomas J. Hoy and George T. Reardon were cited in their absence for the Fire Department's silver medal and bronze bar, respectively.

Citations were read by James E. Colliflower, second vice president of the board.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation in the Library of Congress presents the Pro Arte String Quartet (Alphonse Onnou, Laurent Halleux, Germain Prevost and Robert Maas) Thursday night in Coolidge Auditorium. Program: Quartet in D minor (Schubert), "Cantari alla Madrigalesca" (Malipiero), Quartet in B flat major, K 458 (Mozart).

Returning to a stage which is a familiar rendezvous in their peregrinations, Alphonse Onnou, Laruent Halleux, Germain Prevost and Robert Maas was welcomed in Coolidge Auditorium last evening by an enthusiastic audience. The occasion was the first concert in a series of six which will continue through April 1, and the significance of the series is that it will, in conjunction with the appearance of the Pro Arte Quartet with the National Symphony Orchestra on March 26, constitute a repetition in Washington of the Pro Arte-Coolidge concerts given last May in Brussels in celebration of the organization's 25th anniversary.

An unbroken association of four musicians for a quarter of a century has its rewards in such artistic and consentient performances as the Pro Arte Quartet gives to its auditors. There is in their readings a sympathetic interchange and a sensitive collaboration which results in perfect balance of parts and an eloquence in its phrasings. Agreement in interpretation has been reached by a process of adaptation in which problems have been solved by the consensus of opinions, and the technical polish of the playing is a by-product of the artistic endeavor.

Alphonse Onnou and his associates began their program with Schubert's nostalgic quartet in D minor, the one in which the key motive is found in the second movement with its exquisite variations on the song, "Der Tod und das Maedchen." When Schubert gave himself to melancholy, he did so whole-heartedly, and this quartet is as poignant a meditation on the mystery of death as is to be found in musical literature. And his meditation leads not to despair but to faith in the immortal principle of man.

The second work on the program was Gian Francesco Malipiero's entertaining "Cantari alla Madrigalesca," which has been heard here before. This ingenious composition employs every device of instrumental technique and most of the tricks of modern harmony in a spirited and delightful concatenation of lyric themes. Its most appealing characteristic is its continuous vivacity, a sustained mood of liveliness.

The program concluded, as will all the others in the series, with a Mozart quartet—in this case, the B flat major known as the "Hunt" quartet because of the resemblance of the first theme to a hunting-call. It is the fourth of the set of six quartets dedicated to Haydn, who repaid the dedication with a compliment. After hearing a performance of the third, fourth and fifth of the set, Haydn remarked to Mozart's father: "In the face of God and as an honest man, I tell you that your son is the greatest composer known to me either personally or by reputation."

Per Capita Cost Of Relief in D. C. Among U. S. Lows

Welfare officials yesterday revealed the District spent less relief money, on a per capita basis, than many other comparable city in 1938.

A public assistance division report said that of 25 cities, with population between 250,000 and 1,000,000, only five had lower per capita costs than the District. These expenditures, due to a limited appropriation, included general assistance cases, as well as special types of relief and WPA.

The report revealed that the per capital total in the District was $18.34. Toledo led with $52.72, and the lowest was Memphis with $9.13.

Mowitt Named To Integrate Rail Pensions

Board Controller Was Aide in Michigan to Budget Director Smith

Glendon J. Mowitt, former assistant to Harold D. Smith, Michigan budget officer recently nominated for the post of Federal director of the budget, has been named controller of the Railroad Retirement Board, Chairman Murray W. Latimer revealed last night.

The organization of the board, officials explained, has "been recast so as to integrate the administration of the retirement and unemployment insurance systems."

"The plan for integrating the board's functions," they added, "is based on the fact that the railroad retirement act and the railroad unemployment insurance act cover the same industry and the same workers . . . effective operation requires that the operation of the two acts be knit together as closely as possible."

Under the new setup the administrative units of the board will be grouped in staff and operations branches.

Chairman Latimer will supervise the staff branch, and James G. Robinson, director of unemployment insurance, has been assigned additional responsiblity as chief of the operations section.

The staff branch will include bureaus of research and information; general control; law and audits and accounts. Four bureaus also will constitute the operations branch. They are employment and claims; wage and service records; administrative services and prior service records.

Robinson recently joined the staff of the board after long experience as a consultant in public management for Griffenhagen Associates. He also served as executive director of the New Jersey Unemployment Compensation Commission and has had varied training in the fields of railroad finance and labor.

Walter J. Couper has been named director of employment and claims. A former assistant chief economist for the board, he has been deputy commissioner of the Connecticut department of labor and is a former assistant professor of economics at Yale University.

De Valliere Is Aide

His assistant will be J. Lindsey de Valliere, of Trenton, N. J., a former chief auditor and deputy State tax commissioner of New Jersey.

Walter Matscheck, former director of the Civic Research Institute of Kansas City, Mo., was appointed chief inspector for the board. A former member of the staff of the Committee on Public Administration and the Committee on Social Security of the Social Science Research Council, he also was director of the department of civics of the Kansas City (Mo.) Chamber of Commerce.

The director of the Division of Employment Service will be Charles L. Hodge, until recently secretary of the board and director of its bureau of administration. His experience in the field of labor includes service as senior industrial economist in the Labor Department, chief economist of the International Order of Railroad Telegraphers, and assistant professor of economics at Washington University, St. Louis, Mo.

ICC Says Rails Need Repairs Of 283 Million

Report Presumes Traffic Will Be as Heavy as in 1937

By the Associated Press.

The Interstate Commerce Commission issued a report yesterday estimating that steam railways had put off doing $283,820,066 worth of needed maintenance work on their properties.

The report, based on returns from railway officials, said the deferred maintenance estimate was on an assumption that a traffic volume as large as that of 1937 was in prospect.

The report indicated that $495,757,106 should be expended during the three-year period, 1939-1941, for additions, betterments, and extensions to enable the carriers to handle traffic more cheaply or expeditiously.

These amounts aggregating $779,577,172—deferred maintenance plus requirements for additions, betterments and extensions—are in addition to normal maintenance.

The report said that of the $283,820,066 shown as deferred maintenance there should be spent during the 1939-1941 period a total of $221,027,268, or $73,675,756 as an annual average.

"It appears that the deferred maintenance need not all be made up in the next three years," the report said. "Adding this annual amount for deferred maintenance to the annual requirement for additions, betterments and extensions, gives the sum which steam railway officials say they would spend as an annual average in the next three years above normal maintenance with a traffic volume of 1937 as $238,928,125, or a total of $716,784,374 for the three-year period.

"This total must be taken as conservative. It does not represent all the work the railway managers would like to do 'if they had the money' to bring the properties to a high engineering standard."

Sales Levy Backer Says It Started When Opponent Called Him 'Rascal;' Police Arrive Too Late (P. S.—Bill Defeated)

By the Associated Press.

Atlanta, March 16.—Sales tax debate stirred tempers in the Georgia House today. A fighting word passed, a fist swung, more fists swung, the Speaker threatened to call the militia, someone did call the police—but then it was all over.

Physical casualties were one cut cheek, one dislocated finger and several unclassified bruises.

A later casualty was the 2 per cent sales levy that started the row and when it went down under a vote of 103 to 89, it carried with it Gov. Rivers' last hope of any new major taxation to finance his "Little New Deal." The session ends automatically Saturday and it's too late to offer any more bills.

Tall, baldish Representative Henderson Lanham, of Rome, apparently inflicted both the reportable casualties at a single blow when he socked dark-haired Representative W. H. Lovett, cutting the Dublin newspaper publisher's cheek and dislocating his own finger.

The Rome lawyer said he swung after Lovett called him a "damned rascal" for seeking to force through the sales tax.

As the two 200-pound lawmakers tangled a score of legislators rushed to the front of the hall, most of them seeking to stop the fight, some apparently wanting a poke at someone themselves.

Representative H. B. Edwards of Valdosta jumped on a table, yelled to Lanham, "You're a coward, you hit him with his glasses on."

Speaker Roy Harris beat a frantic tattoo with his gavel, shouted he would call out the troops "if necessary to prevent a disgrace in this house."

Order was restored several minutes before the police arrived.

The chief combatants retired to the Capitol clinic, returned a few minutes later, shook hands to the accompaniment of loud applause while Lovett announced "I'm not mad with the gentleman from Floyd (Lanham) or anybody." So said they all.

Britain, France Reported Preparing to Recall Ambassadors From Berlin

Action Hinted As Protest in Czech Seizure

Move Would Not Mean Severance Of Relations

Special Dispatch to The Post.

London, March 16.—Great Britain and France tonight were believed preparing to recall their ambassadors from Berlin, ostensibly to "report" concerning Germany's seizure of Czecho-Slovakia, but actually as a protest against what they consider a violation of the "spirit of Munich."

Prime Minister Chamberlain announced to the House of Commons that the government was considering such diplomatic action, widely believed to have been insisted upon by Foregin Secretary Halifax, who was even rumored to have threatened to resign if Chamberlain refused.

Not Relations Severance

Recall of the French Ambassador in Berlin still was in the realm of "authoritative reports" which were denied by the French foreign office.

In neither case would the action mean severance of relations.

The long-scheduled London visit next week of President LeBrun of France, assumed a new importance, far beyond its original status as a courtesy trip to return the visit of the British King and Queen to Paris last summer.

The Czech crisis made it apparent that both Daladier and Bonnet and possibly French General Staff Chief Gen. Maurice Gustave Gamelin, would accompany LeBrun. They would confer with Chamberlain, Lord Halifax, and British army chiefs.

Observers pictured the pending conference as perhaps the most important for the "entente cordiale" since Hitler started his "March to the East."

Rising popular and parliamentary indignation in both nations brought increasing difficulties for Chamberlain and his Paris counterpart, Premier Daladier.

French deputies attacked Daladier and Bonnet bitterly and the premier announced he would risk the fate of his government to support his foreign minister.

Daladier was planning to demand semidictatorial powers to meet any emergency, in foreign affairs, which might mean either developments growing out of the Central European situation or a renewal of Italy's colonial demands on France. The program, it was reported, would permit requisition of factories and labor.

Bonnet, facing bitter attacks in the Senate foreign relations committee, pointed out France had not guaranteed Czech frontiers and would not intervene.

Former Foreign Minister Laval was said to have demanded Bonnet's resignation, shouting "get out!"

Meanwhile, Chamberlain tried to head off a major revolt against his foreign policy.

In the House of Commons, Chamberlain faced fresh criticism, and he reiterated his determination not to intervene in the break-up of Czecho-Slovakia.

"I do not think any useful purpose would be served by intervention on the part of His Majesty's government," he replied when asked what he proposed to do about Carpatho-Ukraine, annexed today by Hungary.

Confers With Eden

Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax held a long conference with his predecessor, Anthony Eden, reviving reports that Eden, moved by events in Central Europe, might rejoin the cabinet which he quit 13 months ago in disagreement with Chamberlain's policy.

The prime minister's disclosure that he might summon home Ambassador Sir Nevile Henderson came in response to a Laborite request that Britain withdraw her diplomatic representative from Berlin.

Chamberlain declined to reply when asked further whether he planned to protest to Germany against "the invasion of Czecho-Slovakia."

High sources said Halifax was led by events of the past 48 hours to swing toward Eden's view that a firm stand must be taken against dictators.

Hitler's conquest of Czecho-Slovakia seemed to have convinced the British press, more than any other act since he came to power, that Nazi force meant to dominate the world.

The pro-government Times of London, most vigorous defender of the September 29 Munich agreement, said Hitler's newest move gave "notice to the world that German policy no longer seeks the protection of a moral case."

Chamberlain told Laborite Philip J. Noel-Baker that Britain was not entitled "to assume the German government" planned any attack on the lives of Czech leaders. He said Britain would be glad to help Czech leaders find new homes, but "I understand that there are no facilities at present for anyone to leave Czecho-Slovakia."

Chamberlain Assailed

The Daily Mail said more than 100 members of the House of Commons conservative foreign affairs committee at a meeting tonight were "practically unanimous" in agreeing the government should impose some form of military conscription.

Lieut. Comdr. R. T. H. Fletcher, Labor member of Commons, in a slashing attack on the Prime Minister, said he sat "amid the wreckage of his policy, flouted, ignored, snubbed and tricked by the man for whom he risked so much."

MEN LOVE GIRLS WITH PEP

If you are peppy and full of fun, men will invite you to dances and parties.

BUT if you are cross, listless and tired, men won't be interested. Men don't like "quiet" girls. When they go to parties they want girls along who are full of pep.

So in case you need a good general system tonic, remember for 3 generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling thru" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps build up more physical resistance and thus aids in giving you more pep and lessens distress from female functional disorders.

Hitler Meets With His Strategists in Prague

some time tomorrow into Bratislava, Slovak capital.

Hitler slept tonight in the medieval town of Bruenn—until yesterday known as Brno, apparently unmindful of evidences of sullen resentment on the part of large numbers of the Slavic people now under the protection of Germany.

The Reichsfuehrer was understood to be planning a review of German troops tomorrow at Bruenn, where he is expected to make an important political speech on the significance of the unprecedented events of the last few days.

Either at Bruenn or perhaps in Vienna, there will be a meeting between the chancellor and Josef Tiso, president of short-lived Slovakia, to draw up details of the second Nazi protectorate.

Thousands Can't Escape

As German troops held Bohemia-Moravia and stood on the thresholds of Slovakia, Hungarian forces pushed their way against resistance and bitter winter weather to the capital of Carpatho-Ukraine, easternmost strip of what was until last week the federal state of Czecho-Slovakia.

Germany, tacitly consenting to Hungary's parallel invasion, turned practical attention to the problem of "Nazifying" Prague and other Czech cities which so recently had been havens of refuge from Nazidom. More than 5,000 persons were reported to have been arrested, and perhaps half that number rushed to German concentration camps. Thousands, wishing to flee, were cut off from escape.

"We Have 10,000 Arrests"

The exact number of persons arrested was not revealed, but one of the heads of the Gestapo (secret police) was quoted as having said: "We have 10,000 arrests to carry out."

Other police officials admitted there had been "thousands of persons" taken into custody, but insisted that "most" of the prisoners would be released after hearings.

(A Prague dispatch to the Daily Express in London declared there had been at least 19 suicides of Jews and Czechs, including the director of the Melnik radio station.)

Signs of a drive against Jewish residents of Bohemia and Moravia, including large number of refugees who had come here after the partition of Czecho-Slovakia last autumn, multiplied tonight.

Secret police agents were combing Prague and other occupied cities for "unreliable elements," including thousands of Jews, German refugees, Communists and alleged "agitators." It was recalled in this connection that approximately 10,000 persons were taken into custody in Austria in the first days after the anschluss.

Neither Hitler nor his military and political aides, busy today with intricate practical details of the latest long stride in Germany's "drive toward the east," seemed concerned by the Western world's shocked amazement.

Meantime, as Hungarian troops swarmed through the remaining sliver of former Czecho-Slovakia not taken by the Germans—the roughly mountainous eastern strip known variously as Ruthenia or Carpatho-Ukrainia — exiled Premier Augustin Vosolin pleaded, apparently in vain, for Rumanian intervention.

Pleas also went to the Munich powers—Great Britain, France and Italy—but tonight there was no sign that London or Paris would do more than make such a protest as the recall of the British Ambassador from Berlin "for consultation" with Prime Minister Chamberlain.

German troops were reported tonight on all the frontiers of Slovakia, ready at a moment's notice to enter Bratislava, the capital of the two-day-old independent state for whose sake Hitler had thrust forward to wipe out the last remaining democracy in the heart of Europe.

Events moved with lightning speed today, after a laconic announcement, as brief as it was sensational, that Josef Tiso, restored by Hitler to his post as Premier of Slovakia, had sent a message to the Fuehrer asking that his nation be placed under Germany's protection.

With a single phrase, "I herewith take over protection of the Slovak state," the German chancellor placed the Reich's frontiers some 200 miles closer to the granary of the Russian Ukraine.

Tiso telegraphed:

"In full confidence in the Fuehrer, Slovakia places itself under your protection and requests that you accept this request for protection."

Decree Given to Hacha

As Slovakia, with its population of 2,500,000, too became part of the "great Reich," the German authorities quickly took steps to create the legal framework for the protectorate over Bohemia and Moravia.

Before Hitler received Emil Hacha, still nominally president of Bohemia-Moravia, at the magnificent Hradcany castle, traditional headquarters of the Bohemian kings, a 13-point decree summing up the Reich's major intentions was submitted to him.

There were military honors for Hacha at the palace, but before he went there he received from the hands of German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop the document formally ending Czechia's independent existence.

This historic document, broadcast from all radio stations under the German flag by Von Ribbentrop, based the Reich's claim to Bohemia and Moravia on "1,000 years of history," presumably on contentions which go back to the era of the Germanic Holy Roman Empire and such monarchs as Charlemagne, the Frankish Teuton.

The bloodless conquest, moreover, was also justified in the decree on the contention that the Czech leaders had proved incapable of governing mixed nationals under one flag—the flag of Czecho-Slovakia.

Receiving representatives of the Prague municipal administration and emissaries of the German minority in the now "protected" territory, Hitler predicted a long period of peace and cultural development for Bohemia and Moravia.

But even as he spoke reports from the provinces plainly indicated that the general attitude of the population was only hostile to the stiffly disciplined German soldiers in their midst. Indignation ran high, although there were no open manifestations of protest beyond disregard for German flags and emblems.

Resistance Feared

In Bratislava and elsewhere in Slovakia, there were far more ominous signs. Rumors spread that German occupation of the Slovak capital was imminent and that military steps might not be accomplished without trouble. German military planes were reported lined up near Engeri, across the Danube River.

The source of many of the rumors was a report that Slovak separatist leaders felt Hitler had over-reached his alleged promises to them. Outright annexation, according to this report, was far from the expectation of many of the followers of the late Father Andreas Hlinka, inspirer of the autonomist Hlinka guards.

Alexander (Sano) Mach, former propaganda minister in the Slovak cabinet whose removal by Hacha provided the spark which set off the Nazi annexationist blaze, was quoted in Prague as saying that Hitler had "misunderstood" Tiso's telegram.

More Than Bargained For

It was Mach's opinion, according to messages from Bratislava, that Tiso had merely asked the Reichsfuehrer for protection of the frontiers of the new Slovak state, but that he had no intention of asking a full German "protectorate" of the tiny nation. Neither Tiso nor Hitler's entourage commented on this version.

Whatever the attitude of the Slovaks, it was clear that the Germans, rather than considering retracing any steps, were looking forward. There were denials that the next item on the Nazi expansion program is the semi-autonomous Lithuanian city of Memel, but observers here referred to the outcome of previous German denials as they insisted that Memel's days outside the Reich were numbered.

German circles were openly contemptuous of the reported difficulties of the Hungarians in their march through Carpatho-Ukraine.

Navy Can Meet Any Foes, Britain Told

Commons Hears Fleet Is 'Able to Accept Direct Challenge'

By the Associated Press.

London, March 16.—The House of Commons was informed today that the Royal Navy could "confidently accept a direct challenge in battle by any probable combination of foes."

This statement of strength was made by Geoffrey Shakespeare, parliamentary and financial secretary of the admiralty, in presenting for approval the naval estimates of £153,666,681 ($768,333,405) for the 1939-40 fiscal year, a record for peacetime.

The estimates were made public February 28 and compare with £123,707,000 ($618,535,000) in the fiscal year which will end March 31.

Program Is Vast

Shakespeare outlined the vast naval building program which involves 200 vessels, large and small, in dockyards and shipbuilding yards this year and next.

During the fiscal year 1938-39, 43 warships joined the navy and during 1939-40 another 60 will be added. The building program for 1939 includes two fast battleships of 40,000 tons armed with 16-inch guns.

Shakespeare said a three-fold danger threatened Britain—defeat by an enemy fleet, submarines, and air attack, preventing the navy from guaranteeing the arrival of essential imports.

"As to the first," he declared, "we believe our fleet so strong today that it can confidently accept a direct challenge in battle by any probable combination of foes."

Building 200 Vessels

He said the submarine menace was not so great as in the World War, and air attack alone, he said, cannot "terrify a nation into submission."

In the course of the year 200 vessels aggregating 870,000 tons will be under construction. They will include nine battleships, six aircraft carriers, 25 cruisers, 43 destroyers and 19 submarines.

Told They'll Be Happy

Berlin, March 16 (U.P.).—Propaganda Minister Goebbels today assured the 7,000,000 Czechs of Bohemia and Moravia that they are "on the way to happiness" and will be allowed to continue their national life under Hitler's protectorate.

Appeal to Roosevelt

Chicago, March 16 (AP).—Fear for the safety of Vojta Benes, outspoken foe of Hitler and older brother of Dr. Eduard Benes, former President of Czecho-Slovakia, resulted today in an appeal to President Roosevelt to help find him and shield him from possible reprisal.

The elder Benes returned to Czecho-Slovakia a few weeks ago, after visiting in Chicago. Dr. Eduard Benes is now lecturing at the University of Chicago.

Soviet Union Plans to Erase Socialistic Era

Moscow, March 16 (AP).—Vyacheslaff Molotoff, chairman of the council of people's commissars, in a report to the eighteenth all-union congress of the Communist Party published today, said Soviet Russia's third five-year plan was to change "a socialist society to a communist society."

Molotoff said the time had come for the Soviet Union to surpass the United States and the most highly developed capitalistic countries in the economic sphere "once and for all in the shortest possible time."

The plan, inaugurated last year, put continued emphasis on scheduled increases in production of consumer goods, heavy industry and manufacturing for defense.

Croats Demand Independence From Belgrade

Ask Separate Army From Jugoslavia To Assure Autonomy

By the Associated Press.

Rome, March 16.—Croatian demands for independence from Yugoslavia were reported today in the Fascist press, on the heels of Reichsfuehrer Hitler's entry into Prague.

"Croats also demand independence," said Il Popolo di Roma, in headlining a dispatch from Belgrade. The dispatch said Czecho-Slovak events had caused a profound impression" among Croats, who now are asking a separate Croatian army, to assure Croatian autonomy.

Struggle Has Been Long

There has been a long struggle and negotiations have been proceeding over autonomy for Croatia, in northwest Yugoslavia, near the Italian frontier.

(Yugoslavia is a convenient name for the triune kingdom of Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, which was originated at the end of 1918 by the union of parts of the former Austro-Hungarian empire with Serbia and, at a slightly later date, with Montenegro.

(The Catholic Croats of Croatia-Slavonia and Dalmatia, numbering more than 3,000,000, form the second largest group in the Yugoslav population of about 14,000,000. Serbs constitute more than one-third of the total.)

Previous to 1935 certain Yugoslavs frequently charged Italy with attempting to wean Croatia away from Belgrade, but in recent years relations between Italy and Yugoslavia have been increasingly friendly.

Negotiations Speeded

The reaction in Yugoslavia was manifest in a speeding up of negotiations with the Croatian minority with a view to satisfaction of their long-standing claims to autonomy.

The German Ambassador was reported tonight to have given Italy a full report on Germany's part in the dissolution of Czecho-Slovakia, along with assurances that the Rome-Berlin axis was as strong as ever so far as Berlin was concerned.

An Italian spokesman meanwhile asserted that Italy, as well as Germany, benefited from Nazi absorption of Czecho-Slovakia.

Germany Takes Over $231,591,570 of Czech Debt, Including Sum Owed U. S.

Wheat, Coal, Oil, Beer, Iron On Credit Side

Republic Obligated For 165 Millions To This Country

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, March 16. — By taking political and economic control of nearly all Czecho-Slovakia, Germany incurred foreign financial obligations of at least $65,971,300 in addition to the $165,620,270 post-war debt owed by the vanished republic to the United States.

(The United States has been unable to get Germany to assume responsibility for the $62,000,000 owed by Austria to the United States and its citizens.)

Financial sources listed the following as outstanding loans from the three major democracies:

United States—Dollar bonds totaling $22,849,300. (Washington estimates said yesterday that only about $8,000,000 of these bonds were held by American investors now.)

France—$18,122,000.

Against these loans are current gold reserves and bank balances held in foreign countries totaling 3,468,000,000 Czech crowns (approximately $104,000,000). These assets are negligible in considering the one-time republic's financial position since they are offset by banknotes in circulation to almost double that amount.

The circulation last month was 6,989,000,000 crowns.

Against the financial obligations, however, Germany can set economic advantages she has gained through her occupation of Bohemia, Moravia and Slovakia.

Wheat, coal, oil, beer, forest lands, iron, lead, silver and gold deposits and water power resources have been incorporated into the German economic system as well as manufacturing and other properties of the nation.

After the first dismemberment of Czecho-Slovakia following the Munich conference, Britain granted Prague $80,000,000 half as a loan and half as a gift, for rehabilitation work and refugee relief. France also made such a loan.

Prime Minister Chamberlain told Commons yesterday, however, that $33,750,000 of the British $50,000,000 advance to Prague still was held in London and that no more would be paid "until the situation has been cleared up."

Nazi Machine Clicks

By Joseph Barnes.

Special Cable to The Post.

Berlin, March 16.—A little dazed by the suddenness and speed with which it has annexed the greater part of Czecho-Slovakia, the Third Reich turned today to the slower problem of assimilating what Fuehrer Hitler's diplomacy and the German army have won for it.

Although the problem of "co-ordinating" an entire nation of dour Czechs may prove more formidable than the absorption of Austria or the Sudetenland, the Nazi machine already has clicked into gear with evidently well prepared plans.

It was learned tonight that three new permanent corps have already been established inside the annexed territory. They will be garrisoned exclusively by German soldiers.

'Protectorate' Termed Annexation

The "protectorate" announced today by Hitler in Prague is frankly interpreted in Berlin as annexation. The juristic niceties of the decree of autonomy to be granted to the annexed territory have been explained by the Berlin press as a concession to the Nazi concept of race, rather than to the Czechs as a former independent nation.

All local comments emphasize that the virtually complete control reserved to the Reich either directly or through the "high protector" who will be appointed by Hitler, is essential to the political and economic interests of Great Germany. The reasons for the choice of the word "protectorate" are obscure, since it is a form of government never before used in modern times between white peoples.

Complete German control of the army and foreign relations, with a sweeping power to veto all local decrees and even judicial sentences held by the "high protector," form a close parallel with the actual administration of German provinces under National Socialism.

The Czecho-Slovak Legation in Berlin was taken over this morning by the Foreign Office.

Economic Co-ordination

At the same time, preliminary conversations were reported about to start between German and Czech industrialists and officials, looking toward the economic co-ordination of the new territory with Marshal Goering's "four-year plan."

The German press revealed today a real measure of satisfaction at reports from abroad, indicating that no French or English action will be taken.

Hitler Gives Map-Makers The Jitters

Every Time He Marches They Must Revise Their Work

By International News Service.

Every year the National Geographic people produce 1,250,000 maps.

Every time Adolf Hitler goes on a march, and adds a few thousand square miles to the Nazi domain, these artisans have to haul out their plates, draw new lines and mix new colors, to keep pace.

Public demand for maps, despite renewed interest in world events, has fallen off precipitately. No one can be sure these days whether a map will still be a map by the time they decide where to hang it on the wall. Schoolbooks have run far behind history and are, in a number of cases, incorrect.

Became a Problem

Beginning last March, when Hitler staged his first territorial coup by absorbing Austria, map making became a problem.

The National Geographic Society had to "pull" a large, expensive map of Europe from their presses and modify it with new lines and colors to include Austria within the borders of the new Germany.

Albert H. Bumstead, chief of the cartographic department, has been having worries like that, off and on, ever since.

To help meet the demand for speedy alterations, Bumstead has devised new methods of map making, by which names of territories can be photographed instead of hand drawn.

signed by President Hacha stating that the Czech government of its own will relinquished its authority to the German Reich."

U. S. Not Notified

Undersecrtary of State Sumner Welles said the German government had not notified this government of the changes it has brought about in Europe, and lacking official notification, the State Department has not reached the point of recalling Wilbur J. Carr, minister to Prague.

The Commerce Department yesterday advised exporters to stop shipments to Czecho-Slovakia until the situation there is cleared up. In the case of shipments already on the ocean, it suggested that the goods be held at European ports.

Paris Legation Balks

Paris, March 16 (AP).—Germany attempted today to take over the Czecho-Slovak Legation in Paris, but was balked by American-educated Stefan Osusky, Czecho-Slovak Minister to France.

The German Embassy official who called to notify Osusky that Germany was assuming control of Czech affairs was told Osusky was "out." He left without fulfilling his mission.

New Orleans, La., March 16 (I.N.S.). — Czecho-Slovakia still exists so far as Gordon Boswell, honorary consul in New Orleans, is concerned. "I'm not inclined to surrender my papers, not disposed to do so and emphatically will not do so unless ordered to do so."

Man Without a Job

New York, March 16 (I.N.S.).—A man without a job—and without a country—sat in tears tonight in the office that had been the New York consul generalate for Czecho-Slovakia in the United States. He was Bohuslar Soumar, director of his country's exhibit at the World's Fair here. He had arrived on the Ile de France yesterday to learn that he no longer has a country, that the consul general, Josef E. Mracna, could not be reached and that the Czech display at the fair is perhaps never to be shown.

Plaque Arrives Too Late

London, March 16 (AP).—A new plaque bearing the coat of arms of Czecho-Slovakia was carried into the legation of the dismembered republic today and dropped in a storeroom.

The brightly painted plaque had been ordered some time ago and was delivered today to replace the weather-beaten coat of arms on the front of the building.

Redecoration of the exterior of the legation, begun earlier in the week, was suspended.

Holds on to Consulate

Cleveland, March 16 (I.N.S.).—Taraslov Gardavosky, Czecho-Slovakian consul in Cleveland, declared today he would not turn over his consulate to Karl Kapp, German consul, until ordered to do so by Minister Hurban.

Defense Chief Expected To Succeed Trucco

Santiago, Chile, March 16 (AP).—Minister of Defense Alberto Cabero was expected today to be appointed Chilean Ambassador to the United States.

Japanese Reported Massing Many Troops on Soviet Border

Apprehension Aroused as Movements Coincide With Dispute Over Fishing Rights In East Siberia Between Two Nations

By the Associated Press.

Shanghai, March 16.—Heavy movements of Japanese troops to Sakhalin Island and Manchoukuo, Japan's protectorate bordering Soviet Russia, were reported today by neutral foreign military observers to have been under way for the past week.

The reports aroused some apprehension because they coincided with a bitter dispute between Japan and the Soviet Union over Japanese fishing rights off the East Siberian coast.

Though Japan normally sends about 50,000 men as replacements for its Manchoukuo garrisons during March each year, it was noted that present troop movements were all toward the frontier and no relieved troops were returning.

Foreign military observers said two Japanese divisions, of an estimated total of 40,000 men, had landed on Sakhalin Island, owned half by Japan and half by Soviet Russia.

Two other divisions landed at Manchoukuo ports during the week, these reports said, and were rushed immediately to the Soviet frontier.

Most of the troops were said to have come from Japan proper, and since few fresh trops were moving into North China, a slowing down of Chinese-Japanese hostilities might result.

Plane Protest Filed

Tokyo, March 16 (AP).—A Soviet Russian scouting plane flew over Japanese territory from Sakhalin, Domei (Japanese news agency) reported in a dispatch from Sapporo today.

Domei said the government was protesting to Moscow.

A Japanese navy spokesman said Japan had warships in training exercises at Chinkai, southern Korea, and that a plan of action had been prepared for use if the fisheries dispute were not settled satisfactorily.

U. S. Czech Investments $12,000,000

United States investments in Czecho-Slovakia at the end of 1938 were $12,000,000, the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Department of Commerce estimated last night.

Of this total, holdings of Czech-Slovak dollar bonds comprised about $7,000,000. United States corporations had about $5,000,000 invested in manufacturing and distributing subsidiaries and branches in Czecho-Slovakia, it was stated.

The bureau has advised American exporters to hold shipments destined for that country at European ports until the situation clears.

While payments for merchandise imports have been controlled by the Czecho-Slovak government for some time it is expected that the regulations will now be more rigid, according to the Department of Commerce.

Nazis March On Ruthenia, May Intervene

Will Cross Border If Hungary Can't Protect Slovaks There

By the United Press.

BRATISLAVA, Slovakia, March 16.—Slovakian officials announced tonight German troops are driving toward the frontier of Carpatho-Ukraine to deal with "all eventualities" and might cross the border to protect the Slovak population there, if necessary.

[German troops reached the city of Presov, on the border, the Associated Press said.]

[There had been some question as to whether Presov was to be regarded as Slovak or Ukrainian in the present division of Czecho-Slovak territory, and Hungarian troops were approaching the city.—Editor's Note.]

(Warsaw reports said 11 German soldiers and 28 Czech soldiers had been killed in two clashes near the frontier.)

Hungary Annexes Area

Hungary formally proclaimed annexation of Carpatho-Ukraine, but German leaders said that if the Hungarians failed to restore order the German armies might march in to police the country and perhaps establish another Nazi "protectorate."

At present, however, it was contended that Germany will consent to Hungary's conquest providing she makes a success of the job.

Berlin sources said the German troops probably would be withdrawn shortly.

150 Miles From Russia

Sacho Mach, propaganda chief of the Slovakian government which appealed to Hitler for protection, said that at 6:30 p. m. the advance guard of the German army had reached Eperies, about 50 miles from the frontier of Carpatho-Ukrania, which is only 150 miles from Soviet Russian soil.

Mach said the main objective of the German force was to safeguard Slovak frontiers under the new Nazi protectorate, especially the eastern border.

"The army is ready to deal with all eventualities in eastern Slovakia and even in Ruthenia in whose western parts Slovaks reside," the propaganda chief asserted.

It also was believed the Germans would disarm disorganized remnants of the Czecho-Slovak army who remain scattered through Slovak territory in large numbers.

Masaryk Square Renamed

Prague, March 16 (AP).—Masaryk Square, named for Thomas G. Masaryk, first president and founder of the Czecho-Slovak republic, became "Adolf Hitler Platz" today.

Nazis Seek Garrett Fortune, Says Pa. Prosecutor

Attorney General Claude T. Reno attacked the claim of Johann Peter Christian Schaefer, 85, of Bad Nauheim, Germany.

The German government, a petition to the court said, "seeks to get control of the assets of this estate without producing the claimant, witnesses and documentary evidence involved."

Schaefer, who claims to be a first cousin of Henrietta Garrett, has said he could not come to America to press his claim because of illness.

Oil Expropriation Agreement Near

Mexico City, March 16 (AP).—The Department of Publicity and Propaganda announced late today an "approximation of points of view" had been reached on issues arising from expropriation of foreign oil properties. The announcement followed the sixth conference between President Cardenas and Donald Richberg, representing the Standard Oil companies.

Polish-Hungarian Frontier Celebration Develops Into Anti-Nazi Riot at Warsaw Minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano, was paying a visit to Warsaw.)

Meanwhile civilian refugees arriving at the border town of Awoczne from snowbound Carpatho-Ukraine told of hardships encountered in fleeing their homes.

The refugees said many of their companions lost their way in raging blizzards and it was feared they had frozen to death.

Many Czech soldiers were reported to have been wounded in encounters with the Hungarian army of occupation.

Hungarian troops found a large number of Polish soldiers and civilians at the frontier.

Their colonel advanced immediately to the Polish colonel in charge and kissed and embraced him to symbolize comradeship in arms of Hungarians and Poles.

In Warsaw, officials reserved comment on the situation in central Europe.

But the plain Polish folk were sad and dejected expressing deep sympathy for Slovaks, who today came under German protection.

Wieczor Warszawski, Polish nationalist newspaper, tonight called German occupation of Bohemia-Moravia and Slovakia Hitler's "first important mistake."

This step in expanding Germany's empire, the newspaper said, followed "the bad tradition of the Hapsburgs."

It attributed Nazi successes to Europe's fear of becoming involved in another war but declared such alarm did not exist in Poland.

Woodring Urges Additional Locks At Panama Canal

waterways. They would be connected by larger locks than the present structures and capable of raising the largest ships contemplated. Chambers would be 1,200 feet long and 135 feet wide, with a navigable depth of 45 feet. The large aircraft carriers have sometimes scraped the sides of the present locks, officials point out.

Eight Years to Build

Secretary of War Woodring in transmitting the report to Congress, said:

"I concur in the conclusions of the Governor, and, in the interests of defense and of the future needs of interoceanic shipping, I recommend the immediate adoption of the project substantially as proposed in the report of the Governor."

The report made plain that increasing shipping needs will not require the construction of an additional route before 1960, but pointed out that it will take eight to ten years to construct.

Other Plans "Out"

Members of the House Merchant Marine Committee state that as the result of the hearings, the proposed Nicaraguan and Mexican canals are "out the window." Army engineers have testified in executive session, they state, that the Nicaraguan project will cost at least $700,000,000 to build, with an additional $400,000,000 needed for its defenses.

The proposal to build a waterway through Mexico, the engineers said, would cost $1,700,000,000 and would involve cutting through a mountain. Committeemen said the testimony had indicated that no additional funds would be needed at Panama for defenses. They also pointed to the fact that it had taken years to clear the Canal Zone of disease, while such a procedure might be needed at a new location.

There has been no indication yet as to whether the President is going to recommend the Panama project. The Navy Department informed the committee yesterday that the matter is still under study in the Bureau of the Budget.

Ukrainian guards. ("Stitch" is said to be the Ukrainian word meaning the sound made by a saber swung swiftly through the air.)

Once past the trenches, the Hungarians made rapid progress toward the city. There was a pause at the outskirts while the commanders debated whether to bombard the town.

It was decided artillery would inflict unnecessary hardships on the civilian population.

So the infantry advanced and met comparatively little resistance.

Snipers Hunted Down

The snipers were hunted out energetically. The soldiers used railway ties as battering rams to smash down locked doors.

The Hungarians found a plundered city. All windows of the barracks had been smashed, apparently by machine gun fire. All motor trucks and even the railway cars had been removed.

Many shop windows were smashed and some stores had been ransacked.

The population, however, was friendly, obviously glad someone would establish order.

Before deserting the city the Ukrainians opened the jail doors and freed many criminals. Some of the prisoners had been held for political offenses.

There had also been some fighting between Czech gendarmes and the Ukrainians. When the Hungarians entered the city the gendarmes showed white flags and surrendered.

The army of occupation, marching through snow and harassed by snipers hidden in the mountainous terrain, had made steady progress toward Chust until they encountered the embattled defenders.

Hungary Worries

Budapest, March 16 (AP).—Hungary, which profited from the break-up of Czecho-Slovakia through the annexation of Carpatho-Ukraine—proclaimed to a cheering parliament by Premier Count Paul Teleky today—shared the anxieties of other southeastern European states, as Germany expanded.

Worried Balkan chancelleries were wondering where the Nazi "drang nach osten"—"drive to the east'—would make itself felt next.

Hungary was uneasy because the collapse of Czecho-Slovakia greatly increased Germany's direct pressure upon her. No buffer remained between her and the expanding Reich.

The immediate Hungarian reaction to Germany's advance was to do nothing to offend the Reich. In the same speech in which Teleky announced Carpatho-Ukraine's annexation he proposed immediate adoption of the long-pending Jewish control law.

Parliament passed the law within an hour. It bars Jews from many occupations and limits Jewish participation in professions and business to about 6 per cent of the total persons in those callings.

Zionists Quit Conference On Palestine

Final Proposal For Free Arab State Rejected

London, March 16 (AP).—Jewish participation in the Palestine conference came to an end tonight when Jews rejected Britain's proposal for an independent Arab-dominated state in the Holy Land.

The plan was turned down by the unanimous vote of the Jewish agency executive and the Jewish Palestine conference committee.

They were understood to have drafted a note to the British government declaring "the British plan offers no basis for further discussion, let alone agreement." Palestinian Jews prepared to leave London immediately. The Holy Land peace conference began on February 7.

Britain had served notice yesterday that the plan was her "final" offer and could be altered only in details, leaving both Jews and Arabs no alternative but to accept or reject it.

The Arabs were expected to give their answer tomorrow.

Jewish quarters said they expected opposition in Parliament and the United States would block the plan.

A Jewish spokesman listed these reasons for turning down the scheme which would make Jews a minority in an Arab State:

Jews cannot agree to let Jewish immigration rest partially on the agreement of Arabs;

Jews believe Arab predominance in Palestine executive and advisory councils would be the first step toward complete Arab domination of Jews;

Restriction of Jewish immigration on the lines proposed would be "violation of the solemn pledge set out in the (British) mandate."

It was reported that the plan called for entry of only 15,000 Jews a year into the Holy Land for the next five years, after which time the question would be reconsidered.

New Jewish Problem

London, March 16 (AP).—Myron C. Taylor, United States representative on the Intergovernmental Refugee Committee, returned from Italy today to talk with committee officials about the estimated 300,000 Jews in Bohemia and Moravia, now a protectorate of Germany.

Dissatisfied with the slowness of financiers in forming a corporation to finance the resettlement of German Jews, he also conferred with London bankers in an effort to complete the corporation structure.

Drastic Action Hinted

Jerusalem, March 16 (AP).—Hinting "drastic political action" will be taken soon, the National Council of Palestine Jews, meeting at Tel Aviv, tonight issued an appeal to Jews to "be prepared for word from the authorities."

The appeal was generally interpreted as meaning a three-day strike, beginning Sunday, may be ordered as a protest against Britain's plan to establish an independent Arab state in Palestine.

Czechs to Resist Nazification, Win Liberty, Masaryk Asserts

Son of First President Says Annexation Should Dispel All Doubt as to Future Policy of Hitler

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, March 16.—Jan Masaryk, son of the first president of Czecho-Slovakia, declared tonight the people of his homeland "can't be Nazified" despite their domination by Germany.

Masaryk, Czech minister to England at the time of the Munich pact, asserted his liberty-loving countrymen would be "like a pain in Germany's tummy" and would attain their freedom again.

"Our former allies and friends having resolved on a series of sales, we should be more shocked than surprised at this last crashing defeat of European democracy," he said. "And it is not the last one. There will be many more to follow.

Asks About Guarantee

"Can I hope that this last blow at my defenseless homeland should dispel all doubts as to the future policy of the masters of central Europe? Or will we be treated to another orgy of highfaluting hypocrisy in a cowardly endeavor to explain away this unspeakable milestone in Europe's decay?"

He stated France and England had promised to guarantee the Czecho-Slovakian frontier and added:

"I wonder where that guarantee is today."

"There was no Czecho-Slovak delegate at the council table in Munich," he concluded. 'Today I am glad. There was no Czecho-Slovak consent to yesterday's rape. I do not envy those who are perpetrating it either by vandal force or by turning the face to the wall. They have committed sins against God.

U. S. Hands Clean

"I am glad that America is not one of the dramatis personae. For God's sake, keep your hands clean."

In a radio interview, he stated these views:

Adolf Hitler is "clearing a way to the east, but I don't think he will go to the Ukraine now."

He must continue his program because "dictatorship is a bicycle—when you stop pedalling, you fall off."

A strong nationalist movement had developed in Poland because "they realize that what has happened to Czecho-Slovakia can happen to them. Other people are also becoming aware of this."

Hungary was anxious to make a common frontier with Poland because it was an "old dream of both countries" and "they see the march to the east as dangerous to both."

Slovak leaders wanted autonomy instead of independence and they did not realize in advance what a protectorate meant.

"A Fool's Paradise"

Chicago, March 16 (I.N.S.)—"England believes that she can still buy peace, but she is living in a fool's Paradise," Dr. Thomas Mann, self-exiled German scholar and writer, predicted today, and said:

"Hitler already controls Memel, and has but to press a button to have his yes-men shouting for annexation. Pressure on Rumania will be strong as Hitler is determined to have Rumania's oil wells.

"Demand for the Polish corridor will serve as a Nazi rallying cry, but what Hitler is really after is the Polish harbor of Gdynia at the mouth of the Danzig.

"The Carpatho-Ukraine will go temporarily to Hungary, but it's already in Hitler's bag."

Surrealist Smashes Window for Art's Sake

New York, March 16 (AP).—Salvadore Dali, the young Spanish surrealist who jolts art lovers with wandering torsos and watches that drip, was arrested tonight for smashing a $135 window of a department store that he said changed his art to "an ordinary window display." Charged with disorderly conduct, Dali pleaded guilty and received a suspended sentence.

Vermont Talent Assured for Folk Festival

16 Young Dancers To Come From Green Mountains

The Green Mountains yesterday joined with the Great Smokies and the Rockies in promising to do their best by the sixth National Folk Festival. From the rolling Vermont hills will come 16 enthusiastic young dancers and musicians, accompanied by a veteran singer of ballads.

The young people are students at the Putney School of Putney, Vt., where for four years the traditional New England folk dances have been a part of the students' lives. Among the dances they probably will do at the festival, which begins April 27 at Constitution Hall, will be "The Girl I Left Behind Me," "Little Brown Jug" and "Morning Star."

With the student group will come Elmer George, Vermont mountaineer who sang ballads at the first National Folk Festival, held in St. Louis. He will sing "The House Carpenter," "Barbara Allen" and other songs taught him by his father and grandfather. His sponsor is Mrs. Helen Harkness, of Smiley Manse, Springfield, Vt., archivist of Vermont folk songs and national chairman of folk music for the National Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Flanders, who has been on the committee of the National Folk Festival since its birth in 1933, has compiled one of the best collections of New England songs. She "discovered" George and recommended him to the National Folk Festival because of his vigorous voice and wide repertory of old ballads.

Square Dancing Heritage

Mrs. Flanders also is interested in the Putney School group, for her son is a student at the school. It was at the suggestion of Mrs. Arthur Ringland of Somerset, Md., whose son also attends Putney, that Sarah Gertrude Knott, festival director, invited the school to participate. The invitation was accepted yesterday by Carmelita Hinton, director of the school.

According to Mrs. Hinton, the students are well equipped to present the authentic Vermont heritage. "We have done square dancing here ever since the school was started," she wrote Miss Knott, "because it was the dancing that was done in the villages round about and seemed to go with the spirit of the place so well. Once a month or perhaps more often the students attend dances in the neighborhood, joining in with the Vermonters, old and young."

The Putney School's program at the festival will be watched with interest by the dancers from Asheville, N. C., and from the Cheyenne Mountain School of Colorado. Many of the figures done in the three sections of the country are basically the same, but all have been colored and modified by their respective environments.

Both matinee and evening performances will be given during the three-day festival, which is sponsored by The Washington Post Folk Festival Association. Reservations may be made by writing The Washington Post.

Firemen Aid Injured Companion; Floor Collapses in Fire

Post Staff Photos.

Two firemen (left) come to the aid of their stricken comrade, Frank J. Balik (center), of No. 1 Engine Company, as he was overcome by smoke late yesterday while fighting a two-alarm fire in the Carlton Hotel. Balik, 36, of 4519 Thirteenth street northeast, was taken to Emergency Hospital for treatment. At right—Firemen examine damage to hotel's office where fire caused floor to collapse (extreme right) reach the flames. Traffic along Sixteenth and K streets was jammed for blocks.

The fire started in the kitchen when a kettle of grease was overturned, blazing fiercely on the hot stove and spreading across the floor. The first of eight engine companies and four trucks to reach the scene found flames roaring toward the roof through a flue from the basement kitchen. Several of the 15 kitchen employes were burned by acid when they attempted to fight the blaze with hand extinguishers.

Greatest danger was in the room clerk's office directly above, and at the telephone switchboard on the second floor.

While firemen battled to reach the source of the blaze and check its spread through the walls, others threw up ladders to the upper floors, and searched the building to aid occupants. Firemen reported one woman, overcome by the smoke, was carried to safety from the fourth floor, down a ladder. Bellboys escorted others to safety.

Four telephone operators, working directly above the fire, stuck to their posts until they were forced out by the smoke. The four, Miss B. K. Jackson, Miss Edda Dale, Mrs. Matilda Wann and Mrs. Patricia Jarman, said they handled calls from anxious occupants until they were forced to flee.

The injured fireman, Frank J. Balik, 36, private with No. 1 Engine Company, was among the first to head toward the kitchen. He was trapped on smoke-filled stairs, overcome, and fell headlong. Taken to Emergency Hospital, it was reported his condition was not serious. Balik lives at 4519 Thirteenth street northwest.

Mrs. Frank J. Newman, wife of a prominent Washington attorney, entered the lobby shortly after the fire broke out. She remembered her dog, a little terrier, was in her eighth-floor apartment. She rushed past firemen, took an elevator to her room and returned with the dog.

W. Dan Rappard, former minister to the Netherlands, returning after a trip at the height of the fire, said that after 20 years' absence he hardly expected such a "hot reception."

Secretary of State Hull, one of the many prominent persons who live at the hotel, was not at home during the excitement.

The hour and a half battle to bring the flames under control left expensive rugs water soaked, and books and records in the hotel office ruined.

Bellboys, waiters and other employes pitched in to help firemen carry some of the records, especially guest lists, to safety, and shift rugs and furniture out of danger of the flames.

In moving furniture and cutting into the walls, firemen were forced to cut through telephone and electrical connections. Other wiring through the walls was burned, and many of the hotel rooms were darkened.

52 Senators Back Billion-Dollar Farm Bill To Insure Tenants in Purchase of Land

By the Associated Press.

A $1,000,000,000 program for converting landless tenants into farm owners reached the Senate yesterday with the signatures of 52 Senators—more than enough to pass it through that chamber.

Senator Lee (Democrat), of Oklahoma, introduced the legislation which calls for Government insurance of farm purchases in much the same way that the Government now insures home mortgages under the Federal Housing Administration.

The Senator said his plan had the backing of the Administration and would be sponsored in the House by Chairman Jones (Democrat), of Texas, of the Agriculture Committee.

The Lee bill was offered as an amendment to the present Federal farm tenancy program under which the Government is spending $25,000,000 a year to purchase farms. The farms are then resold to selected tenants on a long term low interest plan.

"It is just a drop in the bucket compared to the insured mortgage plan, but it has demonstrated that a tenancy program will work," Lee said.

Instead of buying the farms, the Government, under the new bill, would merely insure mortgages given on purchase.

Lee said that interest on these would be limited to 3 per cent annually and that tenants would be selected by county farmer committees as under the present program.

"There would be little, if any, chance for Government losses because farm lands are now at low price levels," he added.

Islander Fears Philippine Trade Loss

Capitalist Says Independence to Cost U. S. a Good Customer

Independence of the Philippines eventually will mean the end of America's trade with the islands, the United States' seventh best customer, John W. Hausserman, 40 years a resident of the islands and president of five banking, mining, lumber and power companies in Manila, said yesterday.

Here to attend the Senate committee hearings on proposed amendments to the Tydings-McDuffie act of 1934, which would extend until 1960 the period of gradual application of American duties on products imported from the Philippines, Hausserman said the amendments would "only put off the evil day."

Free entry into the United States of all Philippine products up to the limit of production in 1934 is the only solution, Hausserman asserted. Everything over that limit should pay full duty, he said, without any "cushioning steps."

Claiming that "the products of the Philippine Islands do not in any material sense compete with any of the products produced in the United States," while this country "will require for many years all the tropical products of the Philippine Islands," Hausserman pointed out that free trade with the United States since 1909 had built up the Philippine market till the islands have become "the seventh best customer for products grown or manufactured in the United States."

Hausserman said chief United States exports to the islands are cotton, wheat and milk products.

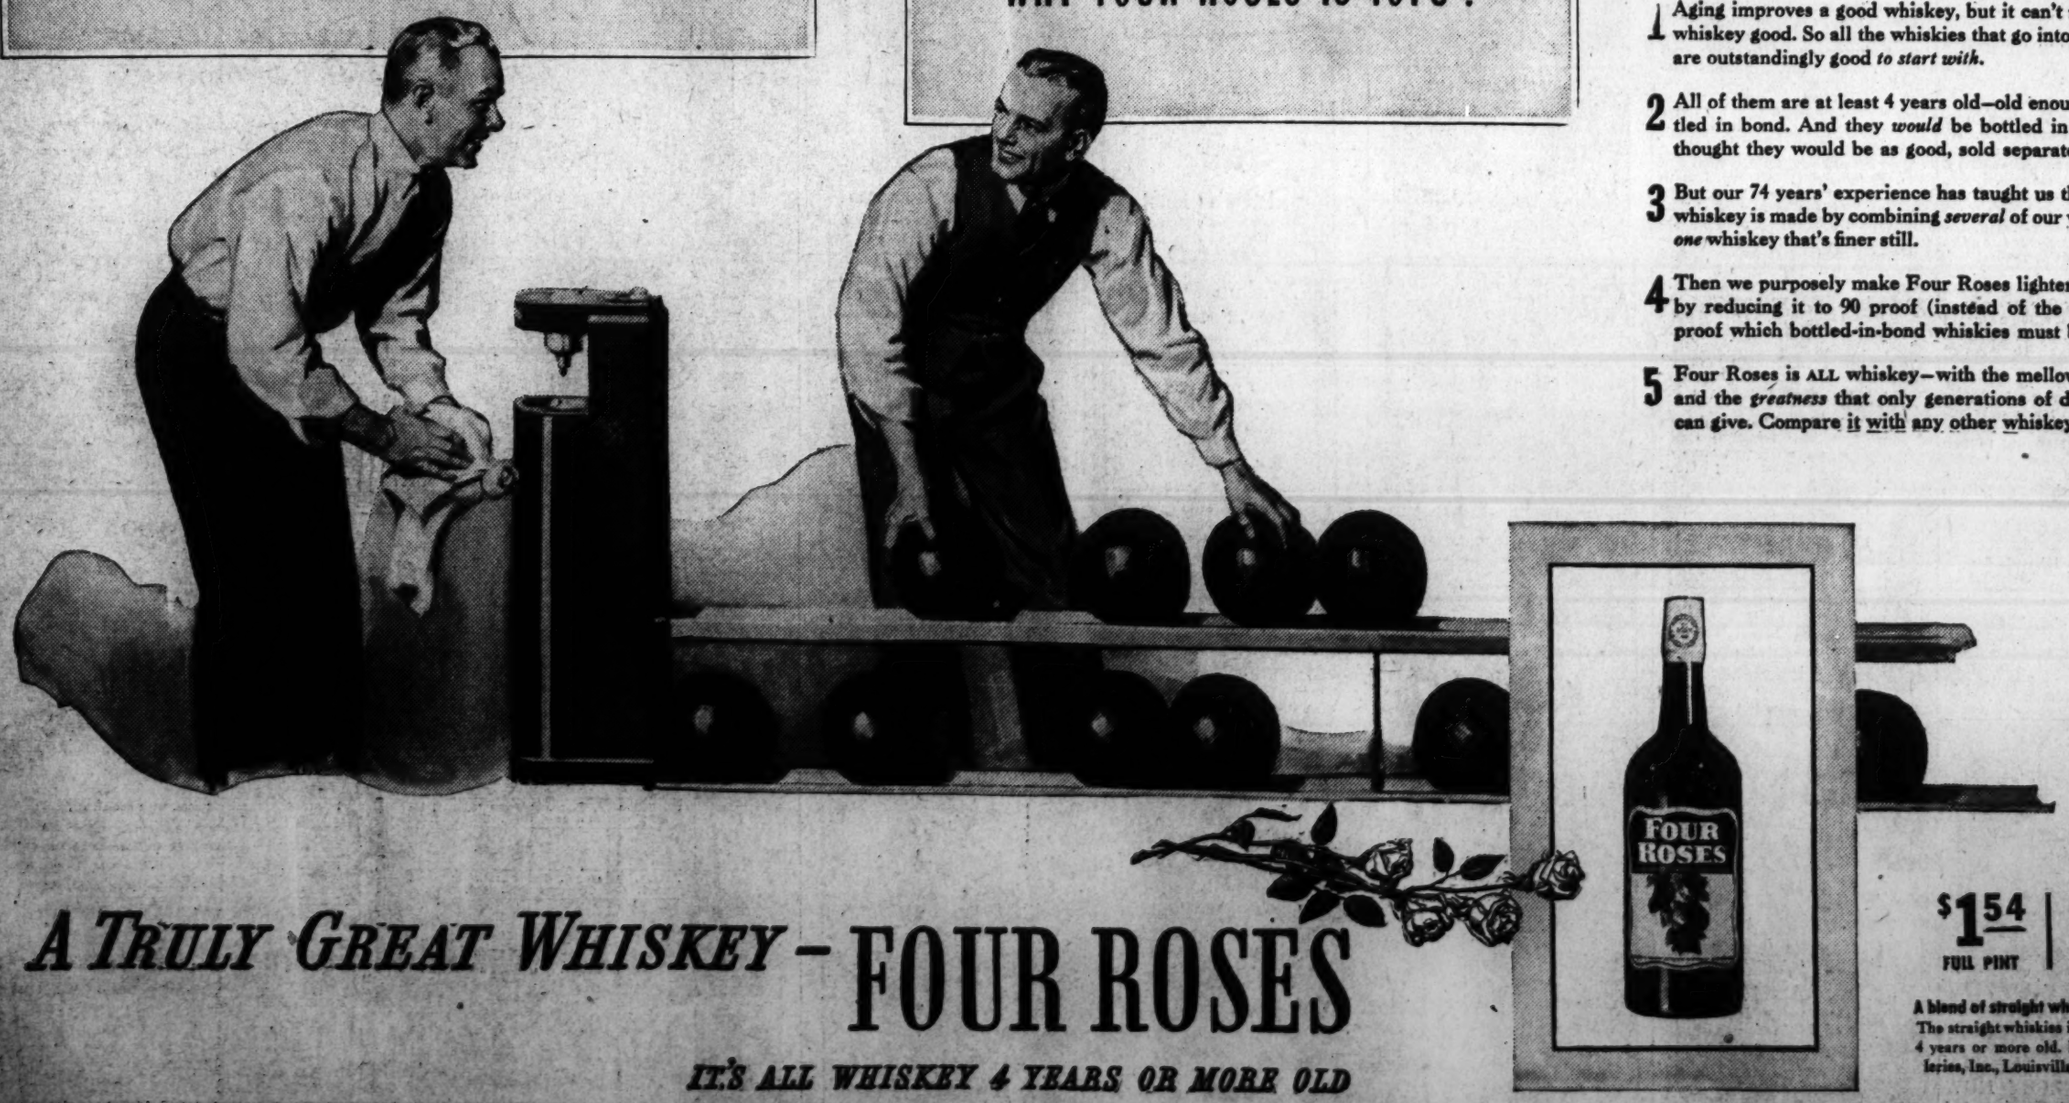
I KNOW FOUR ROSES IS ALL WHISKEY. AT LEAST 4 YEARS OLD—IS THAT WHY YOU SAY IT'S AMERICA'S FINEST WHISKEY?

AGE IS MIGHTY IMPORTANT, ED—BUT IT'S ONLY ONE OF 5 REASONS WHY FOUR ROSES IS TOPS!



DO YOU KNOW

1 Aging improves a good whiskey, but it can't make a poor whiskey good. So all the whiskies that go into Four Roses are outstandingly good to start with.

2 All of them are at least 4 years old—old enough to be bottled in bond. And they would be bottled in bond, if we thought they would be as good, sold separately that way.

3 But our 74 years' experience has taught us that the finest whiskey is made by combining several of our whiskies into one whiskey that's finer still.

4 Then we purposely make Four Roses lighter and milder, by reducing it to 90 proof (instead of the stronger 100 proof which bottled-in-bond whiskies must be).

5 Four Roses is ALL whiskey—with the mellowness of age, and the greatness that only generations of distilling skill can give. Compare it with any other whiskey made.

RFC to Occupy Building on McLean Site

Two Former PWA Officials Share In $1,000,000 Fees

Building

ministrator of the Public Works Administration and architect for the building, will receive a fee of 5 per cent of the cost, which Jones pointed out is "1 per cent less than the standard rate fixed by the American Institute of Architects."

An 8 per cent construction fee, Jones explained, will go to Thompson-Starrett Co., New York contractors, of which Col. Horatio B. Hackett, also a former assistant administrator of PWA, is president. The Lafayette Building Corporation was formed by Thompson-Starrett, the builders, to own and operate the building.

$1,040,000 in Fees

On the basis of an $8,000,000 cost, these fees would total $1,040,000. Clas said that, owing to the fact that his own staff is inadequate, he had farmed out a major part of the architectural work to Holabird & Root, Chicago architectural firm, with which he was associated from 1929 to 1934.

Hackett was a member of the firm of Holabird and Root from 1922 until resigned in 1934 to assume direction of the PWA housing program. Clas left Holabird and Root in the same year to become a member of the PWA housing division. Both later became assistant administrators. James W. Cramer, who was Clas' right-hand man when he was head of the PWA housing division, was associated with his architectural firm until recently.

Jones said that he conferred with President Roosevelt before approving the arrangement. The deal was approved by the RFC board of directors, he explained, on condition that the Lafayette Building Corporation should be able to obtain the McLean property for $2,000,000, "which, upon investigation, we thought would be a conservative but fair price."

Safety Margin of $1,000,000

Lafayette Building Corporation, he said, agreed to put up $500,000 in cash, in addition to assuming the builder's, architect's and engineers' fees. This, together with the conservative price at which the land was bought, Jones declared, gives the RFC mortgage company a safety margin "substantially in excess of $1,000,000."

The rental which the RFC will pay, Jones said, will be sufficient only to pay an interest rate of 5 per cent on the $5,600,000 loan, plus taxes and depreciation on the building at 1 per cent annually. The depreciation allowance, he declared, is small.

"The only thing these boys get out of it," Jones said, "is the fees for their work.

"So far as the RFC is concerned, we feel that we have made a very good trade."

RFC to Supervise Work

Construction of the building, Jones said, at all times will be under supervision of the RFC engineers. Terms of the deal, he declared, will allow "only a moderate profit to the builders, engineers and architects, and that will be invested in the equity of the building."

RFC offices now are located in four different buildings, he said. By moving into one building, cost of operation will be reduced to some extent. Although the exact amount of rent the corporation will pay has not been worked out, he said, it will not be appreciably greater than the amount now paid.

"In view of the crowded condition of many governmental agencies," Jones declared, "and the inadequate and uneconomical quarters that they are forced to occupy, we would be glad to finance the construction of other such buildings in Washington on similar terms."

Stock to Cover Fees

Clas said stock would be issued to Thompson-Starrett, Holabird and Root and himself to cover fees. He also is putting up a certain amount of cash, he said. Thompson-Starrett will be the principal owners.

The building, he predicted, will be completed early next spring. As present officers are temporary, the corporation will elect officers later. Whether the RFC Mortgage Co. will exercise the option to buy the building at cost is undetermined. The option runs for five years.

A number of shops will be located on the ground floor, Clas explained. The building will be air-conditioned throughout.

A definite arrangement whereby the RFC will occupy the building, Clas explained, was made only recently, although there had been a kind of tacit understanding to this effect. He said the building was his own idea. He took the matter up with Hackett after broaching it to Jones. Later they both talked with Jones.

Fitzgerald Dies; Successor Is 80 and Ill

Fitzgerald

Dickinson, who will be 80 years old next month. Dickinson is serving his seventh term as Lieutenant Governor, but has not been in office continuously.

Dickinson himself is confined to his home at Charlotte with influenza and it was uncertain yet when he would be sworn in as Governor.

Gov. Fitzgerald rose in 22 years from an humble clerkship in the State government to its head

In his campaign last fall to return to the Governorship, Fitzgerald condemned the labor policies of Murphy, who was in office during the wave of sit-down strikes. Only a few hours before his death the Michigan House approved and sent to the Senate the Governor's labor relations bill.

Fitzgerald was born in Grand Ledge. He is survived by his wife, Queena, and a son, John, 14.

Dickinson is a Republican and a farmer, like Fitzgerald, an avowed conservative, the lieutenant governor is one of the State's outstanding prohibitionists and is a national vice president of the Anti-Saloon League.

His physician, Dr. H. A. Moyer, said his patient probably would be able to take oath as Governor at his residence tomorrow.

Attorney General Murphy said last night that the people of Michigan have "lost a good citizen and a good friend" in the death of Gov. Fitzgerald. He said:

"Gov. Fitzgerald was a good and able man beloved by everyone who knew him. I will always remember with gratitude his kindliness and helpfulness after I was elected Governor two years ago. And in a mild way, I tried to reciprocate when Gov. Fitzgerald was returned to office. He, however, set the example.

"The people of Michigan have a very good man as lieutenant governor and I am confident he will act in the public interest."

Senator Brown (Democrat), Michigan, commented:

"Gov. Fitzgerald's death is a great personal loss to me. We were friends of many years' standing. He appointed me to the State board of law examiners, and, as is well known in Michigan, after my election to the Senate in 1936 he appointed me to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Couzens, thus giving me seniority in the Senate. It was a very generous gesture."

Vandenberg Shocked

Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, said:

"The shockingly sudden death of Gov. Fitzgerald is a heavy loss to Michigan and the Nation. He was just reaching the climax of a lifelong career of splendid public service. He took up a difficult assignment at Lansing last January, and once more was making a brilliant record. The whole country had its eye on him. I have no doubt the heavy strain and burdens of his public works were largely responsible for this tragedy.

"He probably had more personal friends than any other Michigander in my time. I deeply grieve his passing."

John D. M. Hamilton, chairman of the Republican National Committee, said Fitzgerald was "one of the country's outstanding Governors."

Architects Hear Reps. Keller And Barton

Latter Told He Wouldn't 'Make Bad President, As Republicans Go'

Democratic Representative Keller, of Illinois, told 200 members of the Association of Federal Architects last night that Representative Barton (Republican), of New York, "wouldn't make a bad President at all—as Republican Presidents go, of course."

Earlier in the evening, the New Yorker approved the proposal to preserve Decatur House as a historic monument. Calling Washington public buildings in general "magnificent and impressive," he said they are a "tribute to the genius and patriotism of their architects."

Prizes for the best advertising page designed by a Government architect exhibited at the banquet went to Joseph W. Rogers, jr., Procurement Division, Treasury Department, first prize of $75, and Alan B. Jacobs, Navy Department, second prize of $25. Certificates of general excellence were awarded the exhibits of Sloan Valves Co., first; Hope Windows Co., second, and Armstrong Cork Co., third.

The jury of awards included Arthur B. Heaton, president, Washington Building Congress; L. M. Leisenring, superintendent of Architecture, War Department; Admiral Ben Moreell, chief of the Bureau of Yards and Docks; W. C. Clark, procurement division, and Leon D. Hanson, vice president, Batton, Barston, Durstine and Osborn advertising agency.

G. E. Chappelear, H. G. Hartig and E. B. Morris, sr., composed the banquet and exhibition committee. W. S. Bessell and E. B. Morris, jr., gave a short dramatic skit satirizing the architectural profession.

Justice Declares McLean Estate Under D. C. Law

Justice Laws yesterday approved, as a practical matter, administration of the $10,000,000 McLean estate in the last five years by Rear Admiral Mark L. Bristol, retired.

The justice said the de facto administration could not be allowed to continue, however, and called for a legal decision in the District of McLean's mental condition.

McLean, once a newspaper publisher and sportsman here, inherited the estate from his father, John R. McLean. The son was adjudged incompetent. Admiral Bristol was appointed his committee, and later his ancillary committee here.

Bristol's removal was asked last year by Attorney Austin F. Canfield, who had been named McLean's guardian here, and by McLean's eldest son, John R. McLean, who asked that he be appointed.

Justice Laws pointed out in his ruling that the objections presented were technical.

From now on, however, Justice Laws said, disbursements from the estate must be governed by District law and not by the Maryland law.

In Capital Night Clubs

By Mary Harris

ST. PATRICK'S: Sure, and it's the fine day for the wearin' of the green! All of the clubs and night spots will pay merry tribute to St. Patrick, some with big and fancy parties while others will content themselves with quantities of Irish songs. Wherever you go you'll meet "My Wild Irish Rose" and "Mother Machree" and it's our bet that Irish jigging will break into many a fox trot. Here's a summation of high lights.

SHOREHAM: The Blue Room will actually be the "Green Room" for the evening—and we mean a literal emerald green. Can't tell you how it'll be done. Irish flags will fly all over the place. "Honey" Murray will dance an Irish jig. Gene Archer will return for the evening because he knows how to give that mellow touch to Irish ballads. Barnee has arranged a whole symphony of Irish music in dance time. Pete, the boxing kangaroo, will wear a four-leaf shamrock in his glove just to make sure that he wins his bouts with Ted Elder. P. S.—Dr. William Mann, director of the Zoo, and Mrs. Mann, paid a special visit to the Blue Room just to meet Kangaroo Pete, were both delighted with him.

WARDMAN'S METRONOME: Green and white balloons and the emerald colors of Erin will convert the Metronome Room into an Irish festival hall. Tricky favors in the Irish mood. And Paul Kain and his boys will swing the old Irish songs right up to the ceiling. Metronome's St. Patrick party is always one of Wardman's biggest annual events.

MADRILLON: St. Patrick's spirit will march into Madrillon at noon and remain until away past midnight. Special Irish dishes on the menu and green carnations for every lad and his colleen. Carr and Don will double-piano that Irish music.

LISCEE

MAYFAIR: That combination of Leo and Louanna was just made for Irish balladeering. They know all the Irish songs ever written. Just name your preference. Ditto for Beverly Stull. Cocktail special for the day will be the "Emerald Clover Club." It's a Clover Club in an entrancing green.

HI HAT: All Hi Hat patrons will be given little booklets containing the words of the best-loved Irish songs and invited to go in for community singing. The Red Jackets will wear green ties and posies. There'll be a special St. Patrick's cocktail made with Irish whisky and trimmed with a green cherry.

ANCHOR ROOM: Matt Windsor says that though born in Russia, he's both Irish and gypsy at heart and he's going to play Irish music with a gypsy swing and gypsy music in Irish jig time.

BROWN DERBY: Al Simmonds and George Berg are going to put on a full-sized Irish revolution, as far as we can make out. Everything but Irish confetti.

Derby Special-Special: Al now has a tame duck that follows him all around the Derby. Its name is "Derby, Jr." and Al bought it for a duck dinner and then fell in love with it.

MARY LaMARRE, sweet singer at the Madrillon

DOUBLE PIANO AT UPTOWN: The two-piano innovation continues to sweep along. Now the Uptown cocktail lounge has just installed two pianos, with Howard Tophan and Freddy Williams spanking the ivories for a couple of loops. Both boys sing, too, and with warbler Libby Frazier will combine in vocal trios. Freddy is a newcomer at Uptown and formerly led his own orchestra on the West Coast.

BEAU BRUMMELL MUSICIANS: White ties and tails are worn by Pete Macias and his orchestra at the Lounge Riviera. "Tiny" Meeker's trio at the Cafe Caprice are also arrayed in full formal regalia.

But the new trio to step on Hour Glass's bandstand next Monday has a new idea in Esquire-ish attire. They will wear morning coats, striped trousers and white carnations, just like a group of wedding ushers. Hour Glass's Beau Brummells will include Bill Gibson, guitar; Lew Williams, saxophone and clarinet; Al Oddone, vocalist, bass and Spanish guitar; Jackie Burroughs will sing with them. She'd better wear a garden frock and picture hat.

NEPTUNE MUSIC: The soft Hawaiian music of Johnny De Leon and his Hawaiians will resound through the beautiful undersea decorative effects now being created for the new Neptune Room when it opens during the first week in April. The De Leon Hawaiians recently starred on Atlantic City's Steel Pier.

TROIKA CAUCUS: So many Congressmen and Senators favor Troika that a political caucus could be held there any time. The other evening we saw Senator and Mrs. Clyde M. Reed, Senator Styles Bridges, Senator Tom Connally, Senator Arthur Capper, Representative and Mrs. James F. O'Connor, Representative William Sirovich and Representative B. J. Monkiewicz.

AFTER DUSK ANGLES: Lotus' Bill Strickland received his surprise of the year, when after he'd finished emcee-ing the midnight show the other evening, all the Frances Allis girls grabbed him and swung him around a la ring-a-rosy.

"Riviera Moon," radio theme song of Mario de Polo's Pall Mall Room orchestra, is Mario's own adaptation of an old Italian fishermen's song.

There are no music stands in Carlton's Sha-rad Room because all of the Biltmore Boys play entirely from memory, need no written music.

Tomorrow, March 18, is the birthday of Durward Bowersox, violinist of the Rainbow Room orchestra. Durward says he will be just 18, never expects to get any older.

Bamboo Gardens' "Dance Cocktails" hold a dance revue record for keeping busy. They've "worked solid" for more than a year.

Faster Healing Seen in Use of Sulfanilamide

Johns Hopkins Doctor Says Drug Sped Cure Of Surgical Wounds

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, March 16.—A hint that sulfanilamide may hasten healing of surgical wounds has appeared at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Dr. Perrin H. Long said today.

Speaking before a regional meeting of the American College of Surgeons, Dr. Long, who brought sulfanilamide to this country, said "our house staff thinks healing by use of the medicine is faster, but we are not sure yet."

He did not elaborate on the observation, made while he was discussing cases in which the drug was given before infection appeared. These cases, he said, are those of pregnant women who have been exposed to streptococcus infection and all cases of crushing wounds and compound fractures.

No Diet Restrictions

The Welsh, or gas, bacillus usually appears in wounds caused by crushing, and this type of infection is the one most quickly controlled by sulfanilamide, Dr. Long said.

No diet restrictions are necessary because sulfanilamide is being administered, he said, and the drug apparently does not bar the use of anesthetics.

The use of sulfapyridine, a new derivative of sulfanilamide, has reduced the pneumococcus pneumonia mortality at Johns Hopkins from about 19 per cent to about 7.5 per cent Dr. Long added. Out of 70 cases, he said, there were only three deaths.

Sulfapyridine, which was made available commercially only last week, is the most effective agent now against staphylococcus, Dr. Long said. A still newer form of the drug which may be available next fall will avoid one great objection of sulfapyridine, he predicted.

At present it is absorbed into the blood from the stomach very irregularly. The new form will permit it to be injected directly into the veins.

The "neglected man" provides most of the urge toward group medical care, F. V. Altvater, superintendent of the Duke Hospital at Durham, N. C., told hospital executives at the meeting. He defined this man as "relatively poor, gets a small salary and is honest."

"Whether socialized medicine is a good thing I do not know," Altvater continued, "but from the way we hospitals are charting now I suspect there is a need for it.

"Trends in hospital rates are upward, whereas I think we all agree they should be downward . . . how it is to be done I don't know."

Cutting Lecture To Be at Belasco

The last Bronson Cutting Memorial lecture of the season, presenting Dr. Gunnar Myrdal, will be held Monday, March 27, at the Belasco Theater, it was announced yesterday.

Previous lectures were given at Constitution Hall, but because of the refusal of the Daughters of the American Revolution to allow Marion Anderson, colored contralto, to sing at the hall Easter Sunday, the committee decided on the change.

Justice Roberts Reported Gaining

Justice Owen J. Roberts, of the Supreme Court, last night was reported "getting along fine" at Garfield Hospital, where he underwent a minor operation Tuesday.

Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes was reported recovering from the grip, and both are expected to be present when court reconvenes a week from Monday.

New 1939 Electrolux Gas Refrigerators at LOWEST PRICES IN WASHINGTON HISTORY!

The SERVEL ELECTROLUX Gas Refrigerator

DIFFERENT FROM ALL OTHERS!

BUY ONE FOR AS LITTLE AS $129.90 • NO DOWN PAYMENT TERMS AS LOW AS 14c A DAY

The Gas Refrigerator—the only refrigerator on the market with no moving parts and permanent silence—is now popularly priced! The amazing popularity of this basically different refrigerator, made it inevitable that prices would go down. More than a million Gas Refrigerators (over 21,000 in Washington alone!) are serving silently and economically . . . and users say it quickly pays for itself in the savings it effects on food alone.

Before you buy any Automatic refrigerator, learn why more and more people every year are changing to the Gas Refrigerator—Electrolux. At these new low prices you can't afford to overlook "the refrigerator you hear about but never hear!"

THEY PROFITED BY EXPERIENCE

Mrs. R. E. Acton, 1909 17th Street, S. E., says
"Now that we've learned what a joy a permanently silent refrigerator can be, no one could part us from our Electrolux Gas Refrigerator. Its low running cost is a pleasure, too."

Mrs. Blanche Finch, 7510 17th Street, N. W., says
"This time, silence is what we looked for in a refrigerator. This time, silence and low operating cost are what we got in our new Electrolux Gas Refrigerator."

- No moving parts in its freezing system
- Continued low operating cost
- Permanent Silence
- More years of carefree service
- Savings that pay for it

'Made for Each Other' Is Finely Wrought Film

Carole Lombard and James Stewart Costar; Chinese Cultural Group Plan Benefit; Sidelights on the Current Theater

"MADE FOR EACH OTHER." David O. Selznick picturization for United Artists of a screen play by Jo Swerling, co-starring Carole Lombard and James Stewart, with Charles Coburn, Lucille Watson, Ruth Weston, Alma Kruger, Eddie Quillan, Donald Briggs, Harry Davenport, Esther Dale, Russell Hopton, Ward Bond, Olin Howland, Louise Beavers and Jackie Taylor. Directed by John Cromwell. Reviewed Thursday afternoon. At Loew's Palace Theater.

IT IS A SIMPLE, direct and poignant domestic drama that Jo Swerling has contrived from the familiar tale of the two young people who married in haste and fell genuinely in love at their leisure.

"Made for Each Other," disclosed yesterday for the first time to the Washington public on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater, is made of the homespun stuff on which both the cinema and its audiences have thrived. It deals with people who are not at all remarkable in a rather remarkable way—remarkable because without any excursions into the sphere of the "super," "colossal" or "terrific," it manages to hold interest and compound sympathy for every character concerned, from first flash to last.

BELL

John Mason is a young attorney practicing his profession as one of the underlings in a firm of many hyphens. On a junket to Boston, to secure an important deposition, he meets a young blonde with a battery up her sleeve, whom he marries that same night. Returning to the modest apartment presided over by his mother, and the office, presided over by a kindly, but practical, legal light, John discovers that in such circumstances complications set in. These harassments, in his case, take the form of every manner of domestic difficulty; demotion, instead of promotion, in the office, and a resultant financial and professional impasse which makes it appear that separation from his wife is the easiest solution.

But it is just about as this decision is reached—at a New Year's Eve celebration, of all places!—that the baby is taken down with pneumonia and the anxiety over a tiny life brings all of the mildly belligerent factions together again. It would be difficult to estimate how many times the same fable has been unfolded on the silver shet. It is not so difficult to catalogue "Made for Each Other" as the best-acted and most skillfully directed version of the lot.

Perhaps the greatest surprise of the picture is the acutely perceptive performance contributed to it by Carole Lombard, as the young wife and mother. Miss Lombard who, for the past several years, has been looked upon as a comedienne of the first rank—ever since "Twentieth Century," with John Barrymore, and "My Man Godfrey," with William Powell—here demonstrates that she also is a serious actress of fine sensitiveness, deep intelligence and emotional power. Playing opposite her, in the role of the young husband without a horseshoe, rabbit's foot or four-leaf clover in his possession, James Stewart has the sort of role that might be said to constitute his trademark. It is not unlike the one he played with Ginger Rogers in "Vivacious Lady." He plays it with consummate skill and complete effectiveness.

In the suporting cast are to be found such admirable mimes as Charles Coburn, Lucille Watson and Alma Kruger. Mr. Coburn is cast as head of the law firm that seems to do Johnny Mason such rank injustice—up to that ultimate moment when the worm turns, just as the last scene fades into "The End." Lucille Watson appears as Johnny's mother, that bugadoo of all young brides—so a bachelor is led to believe—the interfering mother-in-law. The veteran Miss Watson does much to maintain the superlative excellence of a cast that has been permitted to make no mistakes under the deft direction of John Cromwell.

"Made For Each Other" is by no means devoid of its comedy moments, although in essence it is a serious play. Its action embraces a nicely fashioned travesty of the omnipresent servant problem and other flashes of "comedy relief" that keep it safely on the side of enjoyable adult entertainment. Esther Dale, Louise Beavers and Baby Jackie Taylor have a hand in these lighter moments. The play ends on an hilarious comedy note.

Not in any sense a great picture, "Made For Each Other" emphatically is a good one.

The auxiliary attractions on the new Palace bill are interesting and colorful. Foremost among them should be placed the Fitz-Patrick Te hnicolor journey to "Imperial Delhi," in India. Here are revealed in most harmonious tones the many beauties and wonders of a city rich in tradition and historical importance. The secondary short-reel offering is one of John Nesbitt's "Passing Parade" releases, bearing the title of "New Roadways." This reel is dedicated to the "back-page" scientists, researchers and workers for the common weal, whose amazing accomplishments seldom bring them into the headlines. You will particularly admire the sagacity of some white mice in this film, whether you have ever liked white mice before or not. The "News of the Day," rich in its reflection of timely world events, rounds out a program that is as palatable as it is easily digestible.

Washington theatergoers have an artistic treat in store for them. On next Wednesday night in the Belasco Theater, there will be repeated that extraordinary evening in the theater known by the name of "An Evening in Cathay." This exotic reflection of the spirit of ancient China is presented by the Chinese Cultural Theater Group from Shanghai. Wednesday night's performance will be a benefit for the Chinese refugees. It is sponsored by a distinguished list of patrons and patronesses, led by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Ambassador Hu Shih. Prices range from 50 cents to $5. Seats now are on sale at the A. A. A., in the lobby of the Belasco Theater and at Mrs. Dorsey's Concert Bureau, in Droop's, Thirteenth and G streets.

Dropping into line with the current trend in such matters, Sidney B. Lust, local independent exhibitor, some weeks ago hit upon the scheme of running Friday night "Jitterbug Contests" in his Boro Theater, out Bethesda way on Wisconsin avenue. Another is to be held tonight as just one more step toward the effulgent evening on which the "finals" will be held. These dancing soirees have been pegged on the 10:30 hour each Friday night in order that all who wish may be present to take part in the goings-on, regardless of outside occupation, lodge meetings, frat dances and what have you. One of the surprising eventuations of the Boro jitterbugging has been that as many adults enter the weekly contests as juveniles. It makes for high hilarity—even if you don't particularly care for the syncopated application of severe muscular stresses to the human frame. Anyhow, there it is!

In contrast with other cabaret entertainments, so I am told, the "Washington Political Cabaret," opening tomorrow night at 1423 Pennsylvania avenue—that would be over Child's Restaurant—will present a satirical revue, dealing with national and international affairs and, in large measure, dedicated to the genial spoofing of Washington and Washingtonians. Helene Vanderpool Sinnott, Alexander Knowlton, Mimi Norton and Eugene Kressin will head the cast.

This innovation is strictly a Saturday night affair. As Saturday nights drift by, it is said that revisions in the script of the revue will be made to keep it up to date.

It will be practically useless to try to get in tomorrow night, unless you already have secured your tickets. The place is sold out.

Grabbing-the-Brass-Ring Note

The most exciting exercise in town this week has been trying to keep up with John Boles. His date book averaged an engagement a minute. No wonder he wants to do a little fighting with sailfish, marlin, barracudas and sardines in Florida waters. They don't want autographs!

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, March 16.

SOLUTION: Eddie Dowling, the producer, and Paul Draper, the dancer, visited the White House last week and sat at the President's fireside . . . The President spoke about the forthcoming visit of the King and Queen of England . . . "They're a very nice couple and I'm looking forward to seeing them," said the President. "But I'm a bit worried about how to entertain them. I'd like them to see something they'd remember when they return to England" . . . Dowling mentioned some Broadway shows, but Roosevelt shook his head . . . "If you'll pardon my saying so," suggested Paul Draper, mindful of the current events, "the best things to show them and which they might take back to England—are your own courage and strength."

SWANK: Moss Hart, who just returned from vacationing at a Palm Springs ranch, last week-end bedecked himself with his $40 10-gallon hat, a $30 striped shirt, cowboy pants which cost $28, sold-silver spurs and $50 boots. Then he visited his Doylestown, Pa., neighbors, the George S. Kaufmans . . . Kaufman spied Hart's elegant Western wear and greeted: "Hi-ho, Platinum!"

CONFESSION: Mayor LaGuardia, who was the hit of the Inner Circle show when he surprised the customers by doing a skit with Sophie Tucker, rehearsed the act for almost two hours at Miss Tucker's apartment the day before . . . Yesterday Sophie received as a reward an autographed photo of LaGuardia . . . It was inscribed: "To Sophie—from Just Another Ham."

TRUTH: Charles Washburn, the press agent, returned this week after publicizing the road tour of Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne . . . Mr. Washburn discussed the tour and began to philosophize about the drama . . . "When you come right down to it," he sighed, "what's the theater? They take a pancake, throw a blue light on it—and it looks like a waffle."

SURPRISE: Col. Jay C. Flippen lives at the Astor . . . Down the hall is the suite occupied by Arturo Toscanini, in front of whose door the management has placed two huge plans—both as a token of affection and as a guide for the Maestro's eyes . . . Jules Howard and Rube Bernstein decided to confuse Flippen by transferring those plants to his doorway . . . At 1 a. m. the plotters tiptoed to Toscanini's door, heaved and tugged at the 500-pound plant and carried it to their friend's room . . . They returned and began transferring the second plant—when a husky man approached and suggested that they replace the plants . . . You're not Toscanini, and you're not Flippen," Bernstein countered, "so mind your business" . . . "But it is by business, gentlemen," was the reply, "I'm the house detective."

FINANCE: Dorothy Lamour now is being beset by the usual lawsuits brought by the usual people . . . In some of these cases attachments are pending. . And so Miss Lamour, who is in New York to make a two-week personal appearance at the Paramount Theater, had her salary prepaid two weeks ago. The payment was made in out-of-the-jurisdiction Hollywood.

CHATTER: Father Coughlin's intimates insist that he again will retire from the air waves in four weeks . . . John Monks and Fred Finklehoffe, authors of "Brother Rat," have been signed by Warner Bros. to write a sequel. They'll work in the East. . . Trujillo of Santo Domingo is inviting American legislators to visit his country in a chartered clipper at his expense . . . Finland will bestow its highest honor, Order of the White Rose, upon Harold Borer, of the Cunard Line . . . Comm. of Purchase Russell Forbes is being mentioned most prominently for the job of Prexy at Brklyn. College . . . Spec. Pros. Amen also is interested in the drive against ambulance chasing and will announce it soon. His witnesses against railroad case counsel are being held at Raymond street jail.

ENTERPRISE: Reynal & Hitchcock, the book publishers, are canvassing all the advertising agencies, trying to sell to them a newly released book which might stimulate the advertising business . . . The author is described as the Dizzy Dean of propaganda and advertising, and this solicitation stresses his art in picking men, winning adherents and changing customs . . . The author they refer to is Adolf Hitler. The "Advertising" textbook is his "Mein Kampf."

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, March 16 (I.N.S.).—If Robert Donat steps foot in Hollywood there will be legal fireworks and excitement that will be heard round the world.

He is claimed by both Eddie Small and Warners, and I don't see either of these companies sitting by idly while the British player emotes before the M.-G.-M. cameras at Culver City. So I would say off hand that when Mr. Donat appears in "Beau Brummel" the famous play which starred Jack Barrymore in the silent days, it will have to be made in England.

LOUELLA PARSONS

Donat has just finished "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" and before that "The Citadel." He was an academy contender last year but his first American claim to fame was in "The Count of Monte Cristo" and he never made the follow-up Small says is due him. Warners, too, insist they have a prior claim so I reckon Joe Mankiewicz, the producer, will be forced to make "Beau Brummel" anywhere but in Hollywood.

"Flashing Stream," an English play which has been much commented upon, has been bought by David Selznick as an Alfred Hitchcock production. I was interested to hear that it is by Charles Morgan, whose "The Fountain" was so widely read a few years ago. Hitchcock is now in Florida on a holiday and returns here in a few weeks to discuss filming "Rebecca," the Daphne du Maurier novel. Let's hope that Mr. Selznick and his associates will profit by their "Gone With the Wind" experience and not let "Rebecca" hang fire until it becomes yesterday's news. "Titanic," the story of the disaster at sea, is also to be directed by Hitchcock, whose "The Lady Vanishes" was one of last year's important British pictures.

I saw "The Dove" so long ago that I've almost forgotten the plot, but I do remember that both Judith Anderson and Dorothy Mackaye did beautiful jobs on the stage, and that Norma Talmadge was lovely as the screen heroine. There was a rumor that Lupe Velez would play the heroine, but they tell me at RKO that Steffi Duna is now practically set. I think everyone will be glad to see Steffi get a break. Leo Carrillo, as you know, plays the bad man and that reminds me—when Joseph Schenck produced "The Dove" he had to change the Mexican locale to an imaginary country because Mexico wanted all their characters 100 per cent perfect.

"Rip Van Winkle," Joseph Jefferson's greatest character role, is to be revived by Ccott Dunlap for Monogram. Way back in 1921—before the movies had a voice—Thomas Jefferson, a son of the great actor, brought his father's famous character to the screen. Dunlap is now busy searching the stock companies for another character actor who can play Rip. He doesn't care about a name since the part is actor proof and he plans to surround the old man who slept for 20 years with a cast of youngsters who have had movie experience.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Buddy Westmore's latest heartbeat is Dian Manners; wonder if the Frank Case romance is dead. Adrianne Ames and Freddie Brisson (Carl's son), a striking Brown Derby duet; Gloria Brewster in the hospital for a tonsillectomy. She is the married one; Johnny Weissmuller trains in Monday. He will marry Beryl Scott in July after he gets his final decree; Gloria Stuart and Arthur Sheekman are in Reno—but not for the usual reason. He is writing a story and she is keeping him company; Sally Eilers hostess at a small dinner honoring Ruth Taylor Zuckerman. The Buster Colliers have asked Ruth's friends to dinner Friday night. Stevie Collier looks so handsome since she dropped 15 pounds on a new diet; the Casey Robinsons saying au revoir to their friends. They leave tomorrow for Phoenix where Casey will work on the next Bette Davis script; Peggy Morrow glimpsed at the night spots; the Jimmy Ellisons will spend the next few weeks on Waikiki Beach. J. Carrol Naish, who went blond in "Beau Geste," is happy again to have his locks back to their natural shade.

Carole Landis and Kenny Morgan, handsome trade paper reporter, are seldom apart; Bert Lahr and Dizzy Dean, the baseballer, in close conversation at the Brown Derby; Billy Rose has offered Tony Martin twenty-six weeks at the World's Fair; Galli Curci again trying her luck on the ice with her husband, Homer Samuels; Constance Collier Mary Pickford's guest at Pickfair; "The Life of Alexander Graham Bell," previewed for a 675 seat audience, brought back 550 opinion cards and all of them good.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Copyright, 1939.

Wins Coveted Role

Robert Preston, regarded as Paramount's best bet for stardom, has won the role of Digby in "Beau Geste," William A. Wellman's next production. Gary Cooper and Ray Milland complete the trio of brothers in the tale of the Foreign Legion.

Fields Comedy Remains on Keith Screen

Charlie McCarthy and Edger Bergen Also In Circus Frolic

The magnificent W. C. Fields returns to his home pastures of the sawdust rings, and the irascible McCarthy continues to heckle for another week in RKO-Keith's merrily satisfying "You Can't Cheat an Honest Man."

Names being one of the most constant of Fieldsian traits, it is pleasing to note that in this venture he masquerades under the neat one of Larson E. Whipsnade. Say it fast and you get something like "Larceny Whipsnake." And compared with such classic Fields aliases as McGonigal or McGargle, Whipsnake is a happy augury.

He is again the sadly pressed circus impresario who flees across State borders with the ease that only a central European could fully appreciate. His companions, ill paid and ill fed, to hear their complaints, are Charlie McCarthy and his pal, The Great Bergen. For good measure there is also that eminent country bumpkin, Mortimer Snurd.

Never Mind the Plot!

A plot of any credulity would be insulting to the comic powers of the stars. It is a relief not to be bothered with what is going to happen next, for then one enjoys to the full Charlie, Mortimer and Edgar in a fugitive balloon, or Fields whipping a ping-pong ball in one of those elegant houses where only he can seem so out of place. Charlie is swallowed by a crocodile and has some jokes you have not heard before. He is sawed in half and threatened with a buzz-saw for his flippancies.

Fields himself, under the name of Charles Bogle, is responsible for what story there is and the gags are obviously his own, too. The Bergen-McCarthy cross-talk is as sure-fire as ever and in the end the honest ventriloquist gets his girl. Though you are barely conscious of it, there are other people roaming about, such as Thurston Hall, Princess Baba, Constance Moore, Mary Forbes, Edward Brophy and John Arledge.

There is another light-hearted spot on the Keith program in the also held-over "Donald's Lucky Day," with Mr. Disney's web-footed fellow and a leery black cat we'd like to see in further scrapes. "Pilot Boat," the short, weaves around the intricacies of New York harbor with some natty views of the Queen Mary, the Aquitania and the Manhattan and the problem of getting them clear of buoys and ferryboats.

Smooth Surface Adds 500 H.P. To Airplanes

Aerial Engineers Meeting Here Told How Speed Increased

Smoothing the "skin" of a large high-speed airplane will add 500 more horsepower delegates to the national aeronautic meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers were told yesterday.

More than 200 of the leading airplane designers and engineers are registered at the Washington Hotel for a two-day session, which will conclude tonight with a talk by C. Grant Mason, of the Civil Aeronautics Authority. Mason will discuss American aviation in world affairs, with special reference to European air developments, including those in Germany and Italy.

Smoothing Explained

Adding to the power of large planes by smoothing their skins was explained yesterday by Manley J. Hood, assistant aeronautical engineer of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics. The smoothing consists of counter-sinking rivets so their heads do not extend above the "skin," making butt joints instead overlapping ones, and straightening out wrinkles that appear in the skin where it is not sufficiently reinforced.

The "skin" is all the surface of a plane that comes in contact with the air, and embraces the wings, fuselage and the nacelle, which is the motor housing.

Eliminating wrinkles and protuberances reduces the drag caused by air pressure, and the high speeds at which airplanes now operate explain the tremendous increase in power through eliminating such apparently small obstacles.

Won't Guess at Speed

No one attending the sessions would hazard any guesses as to the speed possibilities now before transport or military planes. With the large commercial planes operating in the 300-mile-an-hour range, and military planes in the 400's, and occasionally higher, predictions were not considered safe.

Aircraft fire hazards, for example, were discussed by A. W. Dallas, of the Civil Aeronautics Authority, who reported activities of the technical development division of the authority.

Feathering propellers in airline operation was discussed by M. G. Beard and E. W. Fuller, of American Airlines, Inc. This is a method for turning the blades of the propeller while the airplane is in flight, and braking them, so that when a multi-engined plane has trouble the propellers will not drive the engine to which they are attached.

Safety Fuels Discussed

Use of safety fuels for spark ignition aircraft engines will be discussed today by F. C. Mock, of Bendix Products Co.

The Washington section of the society is co-operating in the meeting, which is one of the minor technical conventions of the industry held annually. The meetings are sponsored by the Aircraft and Aircraft Engine Activities of the Society of Automotive Engineers, headed by William Littlewood, vice president, engineering, American Airlines, and H. K. Cummings, chief, automotive power plants section, National Bureau of Standards. Other speakers at yesterday's sessions included Don R. Berlin, Curtiss aeroplane division, Curtiss-Wright Corporation, Francis Masi, Naval Aircraft Factory, Oscar F. Olsen, college of engineering, New York University, C. C. Spanglore, eecutive vice president, Bendix Aviation Corporation, D. S. Hersey, Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Co., and W. G. Lundquist, Wright Aeronautica, Corporation.

Jotin to Talk on India

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., March 16.—"Ask and ye shall receive." I did and now I'm sorry I received so much, because my broadcast cuts me out of a trip to Dodge City and the fun that goes with it. The plans Warner's have made for that trip sound so exciting and amusing. And then there's their own crowd of stars which includes Errol Flynn, whom they've been paging all over creation. Only when he heard his dog was sick would he listen to them.

HEDDA HOPPER

I believe Marlene Dietrich, Mary Pickford, Buddy Rogers, Mary Brian, Leo Carrillo and William S. Hart will be on that train besides Warner's own stars. Can you imagine the blood pressure of the citizens of Dodge City?

Eighty-six-year-old Ham Bell, for whom the stadium seating 8,000 people has been named, expects to have his physician, Dr. C. E. McCarthy, in constant attendance. The doctor, a sapling of 75, was the first white baby born in Dodge City.

On the train a special car will be turned over to Perc Westmore, Warner's famed make-up expert, with three assistants in attendance. And they'll give the visiting wives the once-over lightly with all the new beauty gadgets. Perc has offered a prize for the best beard grown, but if you look closely among the props, I bet the beard will be on that train.

They're taking along our finest stunt horses, with their riders. Will be met by five Governors and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, who may be able to plant a thought somewhere.

No, they won't have a bull fight. They had one in 1884. Nor will our visitors have to pay 15 cents for a bath. Dodge City had the only tub between Kansas City and Denver years back. It cost you 50 cents to use for half an hour.

Their first jail was a 15-foot hole in the ground where they dropped drunks so they could sober up.

It was there a saloon was first called a "joint," and a dead man a "stiff." And that old saying, "West of Chicago there is no law and west of Dodge City, no God."

There, too, in 1870, they had the first red light in a window—not for the prodigal son.

Eddie Foy's father was nearly hanged there by mistake. They thought he was a horse thief.

Along Dodge City's wooden sidewalks were barrels of rain water so peace-loving citizens could jump in and dodge stray bullets.

Yes sir, that sounds like a city. And a party!

Wonder how much Mae Robson will charge now that she owns the parking lot across from the Metro Studio?

Walter Connolly (who reminds me of a good-natured bear in semi-hibernation) has been under contract to Columbia, but hasn't worked there for a year. His first picture back will be "Good Girls Go to Paris Too." Walter cracked, "good boys go to Columbia, too—if they're lucky."

Kay Francis is dickering with Metro on a picture deal. Guess Kay meant it the night she said to a group which included Grace Moore, Gladys Swarthout and Gloria Swanson, "When I'm finished as a star, I'll play leading parts, then supporting roles, then character women. Hollywood is a gold mine and I intend to get my share." She's a smart gal and my hat's off to her.

Legless Veteran Asks for Job At Cemetery in Belleau Wood

Writes Michigan Senator That He Wants To Care for Graves of Fallen Comrades; Brown Appeals to Gen. Pershing

Bert Charles Smith, whose legs were blown away while he worked a machine gun in Belleau Wood, wants to return there and keep the graves of his comrades.

This is his ambition as he works now in the card division of the Congressional Library on the artificial legs they gave him after the whirling steel splinters from the German trench mortar stopped the rattle in his machine gun and took his legs away in June, 1918.

Senator Prentiss M. Brown, of Michigan, Smith's home State, has asked Gen. Pershing, chairman of the American Battle Monuments Commission, to help the veteran get the job on the ground where his comrades died and from which Smith himself was carried with part of his body gone.

Smith wrote to the Senator: "A recent communication from an acquaintance in Paris informs me that the superintendent of the Belleau Woods Cemetery, or one in that vicinity, soon is to resign and I am especially anxious to file my application for the appointment to fill this vacancy. It was in the vicinity of the Belleau Woods that I lost my limbs while engaged in active service . . . and it is in that cemetery that hundreds of my comrades are interred . . ."

Senator Brown wrote Gen. Pershing his belief in "every word in Mr. Smith's application, and have no hesitancy whatever in recommending him to you for the position he seeks in the highest terms."

"Let's talk about it in the hall outside; they're too many people in here; I don't want to be a center of attraction," Smith said yesterday. So he walked actively outside to say that he simply wanted to go back to Belleau Woods. "I lost a lot of my friends there," he said.

In the letter to the Senator he said: "I would take great pride in expending every possible effort for its (the cemetery's) proper care and efficient upkeep."

Smith lives at 1303 North Buchanan street, Arlington, Va.

Live Shamrocks From Auld Sod Banned by U. S.

Ireland's Emerald Isle must stay right where it is, the Department of Agriculture ruled yesterday.

Explaining plant quarantine regulations for the annual importation of Irish shamrocks, officials indicated they have no objection to the wearing of the green but will shake off any particles of the auld sod still clinging to the Celtic badges on arrival in this country.

The precaution is necessary because many insect pests have gained admission to the United States in soil adhering to plants, it was pointed out.

Coronation Scot to Be Shown at Union Station

The Coronation Scot, said to be the finest train in the British Empire, will be on exhibit at Union Station next Wednesday from 10 a. m. to 7 p. m. Sponsors of the showing, the London Midland and Scottish Railway, have invited many local business men to view the train.

Howard R. O. T. C. Band To Give Concert Sunday

The Howard University R. O. T. C. symphonic band will give a concert at 3:30 p. m. Sunday in the Andrew Rankin Memorial Chapel. Among the 62 musicians will be Jane Cleo Marshall, and Lillian Singleton, first women to qualify for membership in the concert band.

Willses in College Play

Marshall and Lora Wills, of 1328 Webster street northeast, will appear in the annual student musical production of Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., "Guess Again," which will be presented in Evanston daily the rest of this week.

Dr. Everett to Speak On D. C. Reorganization

Dr. Frank O. Everett, who helped draft the Griffenhagen report, will discuss reorganization of the District Government, at 7 p. m. Sunday in the Lincoln Temple Congregational Church, Eleventh and R streets northwest. Other members of the forum panel will be I. F. Jordan, chairman, the Rev. Dr. R. W. Brooks, pastor, Woolsey W. Hall, former president of the Federation of Civic Associations, and Charles W. Longus.

North Carolina Group To Hold Party Tonight

Huntington to Speak

W. Chapin Huntington, will present an illustrated lecture on "Russia Up-To-Date" in a dinner meeting of the Washington Society of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, at 5 p. m. today in the Lafayette Hotel.

"No more 'tired' let down feeling for me"

"—I feel and look better —there is color in my cheeks —my appetite is keen —my weight is back to normal.

"This I am noting in my Diary and I give full credit to S.S.S. for causing me to 'feel like myself again.'"

So we suggest—

Don't try to get well in a day . . . this is asking too much of Nature. Remember, she has certain natural processes that just cannot be hurried.

Therefore, if you are pale, tired, lack a keen appetite, have lost weight and feel run-down . . . a frequent sign that your blood-cells are weak—then do try in the simple, easy way so many millions approve—by starting a course of S.S.S. Blood Tonic.

At all drug stores in two sizes. You will find the larger size more economical.

The Silver Lining

The smashing of windows and damaging of automobiles in connection with the hotel strike further emphasizes the vital importance of an early settlement. It cannot be regarded, however, as an indication that the negotiations between hotel managements and the unions are in danger of breaking down. On the contrary, these acts of violence may be, as Dr. Steelman suggests, the work of trouble-makers who would like to prevent the conclusion of a settlement.

There is ample reason for the delay in settlement of this strike. In the first place, the issues between employers and employes are unusually complicated. Moreover, the managements of 13 hotels are involved on one side and three unions on the other. A seemingly endless amount of negotiating is essential to induce such large groups to make concessions and to bring about agreement as to what those concessions should be. Then, of course, the points which each side is willing to yield must be matched and extensive minor differences ironed out.

Primarily, however, the extent of these negotiations seem to reflect the newness of the collective bargaining process in Washington hotels. Employers entered the negotiations without much experience and apparently without recognizing the desirability of encouraging a responsible type of unionism. Some of the union leaders were inexperienced and inclined to make demands that would not even work out to the advantage of their followers. In the intense negotiations of the last week there are indications that both groups have learned a great deal. The very fact that negotiations are continuing through long sessions suggests that both now recognize the necessity of a settlement that will be mutually satisfactory.

Both employers and employes are losing heavily by this strike. If it results in the establishment of collective bargaining on a basis of mutual confidence, however, these losses will soon be overshadowed. Among too many employer groups there is a tendency to accept collective bargaining in theory and sabotage it in practice. And union leaders, for their part, are often inclined to resort to irresponsible action when the best interests of the workers call for the opposite technique.

A strike which brings employers and union leaders to see the desirability of co-operation on the basis of mutual confidence may be a salutary affair. If that objective, which evidently actuates Dr. Steelman as conciliator for the Labor Department, is achieved in the hotel strike, it certainly will not be without a silver lining.

Cycle Of Subsidies

Secretary Wallace's latest experiment is based upon a most commendable objective. He wishes to distribute surplus farm products in homes where undernourishment is common. In other words, he is making a complicated attack upon the dilemma of overproduction on the farm and underconsumption in the home.

In some respects the new plan has advantages over the previous practice of buying up surplus commodities and distributing them to the unemployed through the Surplus Commodities Corporation. A limited number of WPA workers will now receive blue and orange stamps which can be used to purchase food. In this way they will be able to obtain the type of food they desire at times when it is needed. The expense of maintaining a separate food distribution system for surplus commodities will be eliminated. And more scientific diets in the homes of the unemployed will be encouraged.

Yet it is difficult to see how the complicated scheme now being tried out on an experimental basis can serve as anything more than a temporary expedient. As a permanent policy it would seem to run counter in theory to the aims of the AAA. That agency is subsidizing farmers to curtail production and thus maintain food prices at a higher level than would otherwise obtain. The greater its success in this endeavor the greater will be the need to subsidize the millions of families who can not buy all they need to eat at the prevailing level of farm prices.

Would it not be more reasonable to stop trying to bolster up farm prices and thus encourage greater consumption without special subsidies to the unemployed? Incidentally that policy would also permit a larger flow of farm products into foreign markets. It is everywhere admitted that some farm aids from the Government are essential to maintain a reasonable balance between industry and agriculture. But these benefits do not need to take the bewildering form of crop curtailment and price pegging and then distribution of new subsidies to enable the unemployed to buy all they need to eat.

It is time to consider whether these expedient measures are not actually hampering natural adjustments that would permit greater consumption of surplus farm products. At least the Administration ought to investigate the desirability of relaxing price controls while it experiments with artificial stimuli to consumption.

'Include All Germans'

It is on the form of government to be given the newly acquired provinces of Germany that the attention of the far-sighted will now concentrate. For the way in which Bohemia, Moravia and Slovakia are being incorporated into the Reich provides a substantial basis for understanding Hitler's future plans while such understanding may still be of value.

From the political viewpoint the most important aspect of the annexation of Czech territory lies in the extension of German sovereignty over non-Germans. To such a development the Nazis have seemed theoretically opposed. In a much-quoted passage from "Mein Kampf" Hitler sharply criticized prewar attempts to Germanize the Slavs of the old Austro-Hungarian empire. "This," he wrote, "is the beginning of bastardization," since "cultural powers in particular would disappear on mating with a lower race, even though the resulting mongrels spoke the language of the former superior race a thousand times over."

In the past the Nazi claim of a right to govern Germanic communities has seemed to carry the implication that non-Germans, as inferior and contaminating peoples, would be left to their own devices. Now, however, the German need of foreign exchange to finance imports, the need of agricultural lands and the need of diverting the attention of his anxious people have all combined to make Hitler step forward more rapidly. Having crossed the Rubicon by annexing several million Slavs there is no reason why he should hesitate to take other "lower races" under his sway. And, in fact, there is nothing in his theory which makes the new development illogical.

This may be seen by studying the formula now being worked out for governing the non-German areas incorporated in the Reich this week. The dispatches, while still fragmentary and confused, indicate clearly what the general line will be. Bohemia, Moravia and probably Slovakia will be definitely made over into German provinces, retaining only such local autonomy as does not "run counter to the spirit of the Reich." But it is the land which is being incorporated rather than the people who live there. For the most part they come as chattels, not as men.

The German inhabitants of Czecho-Slovakia, so far as they fulfill the Nazi definition of what is German, will form a preferred class with all the rights of German citizens. The great majority of Slavic blood, however, are to be a subject class, a race of helots doomed to social, economic and political inferiority except in so far as they can slowly acquire German characteristics. This policy accords perfectly with Hitler's statement, in "Mein Kampf," that "Historically, the thing usefully Germanized has been the soil that our forefathers conquered with the sword and settled with German peasants."

Adjacent countries, indeed all countries where there is a sizable population of German origin, will, if wise, study the current development closely. For the fact that the Germanic element may be a small minority is now seen to be immaterial. In the evolution of Nazi doctrine a third, and highly alarming, stage has now been reached.

At first the demand was only that Germans separated from the Reich by the Treaty of Versailles must be restored to it. Then, in the case of Austria and the Sudetenland, the claim ran that communities German in race, though never in citizenship, must be joined to the racial state. Now the argument is that Germans everywhere shall be united to the Fatherland, through the medium of the Nazi party, and that as occasion arises annexation will follow, regardless of the will of the "inferior" non-German population.

At the stage which Hitler's pretensions have now reached it becomes impossible for any country, harboring a large German element, to remain indifferent to his policies. "Bund" organizations, profiting from the guarantees of free speech and assembly in liberal countries, take on a new aspect. They are revealed not as pro-German organizations but as actual German outposts on foreign soil, holding advanced positions until such time as the Fatherland is ready to move out to them.

Students of Hitler's philosophy have long realized the implications of his close identification of race and state. But it runs so strongly counter to all civilized thinking, it is so antagonistic to the very basis of modern democracies, that relatively few have ever seen the doctrine for the menace which it is.

The annexation to Germany of some 10,000,000 Slavs, all to be subjects, none to be citizens, of the Reich, will help to bring the Nazi policy into sharper perspective. It will emphasize that Hitler meant precisely what he said when he asserted that:

> The German Reich as a state must include all Germans, with the duty not only of gathering and preserving the most valuable racial elements among that people, but of raising them slowly and surely to a dominating position.

Navy Changes

The accent in the impending shift of ranking officers of the Navy, as announced by Secretary Swanson, is on youth.

A number of highly important posts in this service have been assigned to men who, on the basis of seniority alone, would probably have had to wait years before receiving such advancements. It is reasonable to assume, therefore, that the guiding motive behind the shift was to place in key positions able and experienced officers who can look forward to more than a brief period of service before reaching the retirement age.

It cannot be doubted that the move will work hardship on some of the older men who, despite outstanding ability, have been passed over in favor of their juniors. Nonetheless the shift in the higher reaches of the Navy will probably meet with the general approval of the service and the public. And none will understand and approve the wisdom of the step more than the patriotic officers who seemingly have been slighted when the current promotions were handed out.

Not only does the Navy face a period of very considerable expansion but the international situation is such that the United States must prepare well in advance for all possible contingencies. Secretary Swanson's order makes it certain that during the next few years the constant shift in the higher command that the Nation can afford to permit in normal times will be reduced to a minimum.

The Courting Season

Lovely is the lay of the amorous woodthrush, rich the harmonics of the bullfrog choir, sweet the whispered antiphons of lovers in the dusk, noble the noise of peanuts crunching in the bleachers. But gladdest of all glad sounds of spring, to many an ear, is the vibrant spang-g-g! of taut catgut when arresting the flight of a tennis ball. In March the very thought of it suffices, they say, to turn the blood to wine.

Tell us what it is that drives the infatuated salmon from the warm and cosy currents of the seas up and up the perilous stream. Then we shall tell you what it was that coaxed nearly 2,000 persons away from their firesides on Wednesday night to battle through a ferocious downpour to the Ritchie Coliseum. There they saw Mr. Donald Budge prove again that, indoors and out, amateur or professional, he is the greatest player since the incomparable Tilden. They saw him take our British friend, Mr. Fred Perry, in two sets as easily as Hitler took Czecho-Slovakia, also in two sets.

Messrs. Budge and Perry have gone their ways. But the cult of tennis remains in Washington and the fervor of its devotees increases with each upward impulse of the thermometer, each new bud upon the tree. Soon these devotees will be swarming abroad in their tens of thousands in rubber-soled shoes and brief or bountiful duck pants. It would be a hard-hearted park service that would disappoint such ardent and trusting souls —that failed to provide them with an abundance of courts in the primest of condition.

Forms Of Magic

The Department of the Interior reports that year after year it continues to get letters from a gullible public asking about divining rods and their uses. And the streamlined organization, presided over by the active Ickes, seems perplexed that there are still individuals who believe that a forked hazel twig, properly held, is a sure guide to buried treasure, mineral deposits or hidden water.

Undoubtedly science is skeptical as to the claim made from time immemorial in behalf of the "dowser," or divining rod. But at a time when so many rabbits have been pulled out of so many hats, particularly those perched on the heads of high officials, people are hardly to be blamed for believing in the simpler and more innocent forms of magic.

After all, there is not much essential difference between a belief in a forked hazel twig and a belief, let us say, in the theory that the greater the deficit the greater the prosperity.

Good Night, Ladies!

From the New York Sun.

In the war to end war the kilted Scots won from the enemy the nickname, "The Ladies From Hell." The confidently predicted war to reinstate wars will be highly mechanized and its engineers feel there will be no place for the kilt. The rumor that it is to be proscribed has spread through Scotia, and the general command, in company with the Highland Brigade Club, has felt it wise to announce the War Office has in mind no action that will banish this characteristic garment on ceremonial occasion or for "walking-out dress." It is officially believed, however, that "the question of the suitability of the kilt . . . for instance when worn by the occupants of a mechanized vehicle," is to be questioned and "in the interest of comfort and safety some modification may be found necessary."

The D. C. Milk Problem

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The editorial in The Post of March 14 is well stated and I wish to thank you for giving some attention to the milk situation, both as a subscriber to your paper and a producer of milk for the Washington milk shed; therefore you immediately get the point that I have the view of the farmer.

The Congressional investigation may help some, but I have very grave doubts about any real benefits being derived therefrom, because Congress has authorized the District of Columbia Health Department to require a superior milk for the consumers in the District compared to that which is produced for other markets in this region. The farmer, however, is being paid less for producing this superior product than producers in other comparable Atlantic seaboard cities receive for a product inferior to that which is sold here.

Even the dairy holding companies pay the farmer more for an inferior product in some other milk sheds and sell the same product for a higher price to the consumer than is paid here; whereas in Washington the same dairy holding companies pay the farmer less for this high grade milk and sell for the same or slightly less than on other markets where they control the price as they do in Washington.

The Department of Agriculture has for the past six years been trying to raise the standard of the laboring class and the farmer, especially in the South. In 1932 I was receiving $3.78 per cwt. for 4 per cent milk. Today I receive $2.81 per cwt. for 4 per cent milk, a reduction of about 30 per cent. In 1932 the consumer paid 13c a quart for 4 per cent milk in Washington. Today he pays 14 cents per quart.

The association, of which I am a member, takes .118 cent per cwt. for union dues, and to sell my milk the cost of transportation from Fauquier County, Virginia, to Washington is 25 cents per cwt. This leaves me a net of $2.442 per cwt., and the only way it is possible to produce milk for this price is to work your family hard, deprive them of a great many of the ordinary necessities of life, and pay starvation wages to your hired men.

Irish Stew

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The time seems opportune for additional light on the proposed plans for government of the District of Columbia. The nonvoting residents of the District are in a hell of a fix. The planning of its future by its friends in and out of Congress, and the hired investigators and others, reminds me of Dinty Moore's Irish stew without the rich flavor of that tasty dish.

I don't know why I should put my finger in the pie, but I know something of the misgovernment of the District, having lived there for a period of over 25 years. I firmly believe that Congress is going at the solving of District troubles the wrong way.

Congress should first find, by way of the Supreme Court if necessary, just what are the legal relations now between the two parties to the contract of 1878, which has not, I understand, been repealed.

There can be, no doubt, a considerable reduction of the expenses of the District. This should be accomplished by fair dealing and not by chiseling discounts from public utilities, as now done by the Federal Government, nor by the free use of water as now prevails.

"Upon This Rock" (More Exegeses)

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Recently a very mannerly and temperate letter appeared in this column, in which a correspondent objected to the application to St. Peter, the first Pope, of the words of Christ, "Upon this rock I will build my church."

Catholics have always believed that Christ is the ultimate foundation stone upon which the church is built. Their catechisms have always insisted that Christ is the Invisible Head of the church, and the Pope the visible head; that the power of the Pope is not human, but Divine, flowing from Christ Himself.

But the text of St. Matthew XVI: 15-19 (which is not the only passage in support of the authority of St. Peter and his successors in the papacy), can bear no other reasonable meaning than that St. Peter is promised a magnificent power. It is well to remember, first of all, that Peter's name was Simon Bar-Jona. In St. John I:42, we read that Christ changed his name to Cephas, or Peter—an action which in Christ's case always held a deep signification.

Now read the text of St. Matthew XVI:13-19—the whole context. Our Lord asked the Apostles whom men said He was. They answered that some said Elias, others Jeremias. Then Christ asked: "But whom do you say that I am?" Simon Peter answered, "Thou art Christ, the Son of the Living God." The following words of Christ are completely out of context, if they do not express a reward given to the faithful Apostle. Verse 18 reads: "And I say to thee: that thou art Peter; and upon this rock I will build my church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it."

What Christ really said, for He spoke in Aramaic, in which language the word for "rock" and the word for "Peter" is exactly the same, "Cepha," was this: "Thou art 'Cepha' and upon this 'cepha' I will build my church." It is surely stretching the interpretation beyond reason to suppose He was rewarding Peter for his faith, began with his name, and then pointing to Himself said: "Upon this rock I will build my church."

By way of conclusion, it may be mentioned that not only have the gates of hell not prevailed against the church through 19 centuries of conflict—they have also failed to destroy the papacy upon which that church is established.

CLARENCE DUHART.
Washington, March 13.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The first Pope was a Jew—Peter (John 1:40-42).

The first Pope was a married man (Mark 1:30). James, not the Pope, presided at the first council of the Christian Church (Acts 15:12-18). The sentence of the council was declared by James (Acts 15:19). The first Pope proclaimed himself to be merely a fellow elder (1 Peter 5:1). Paul withstood the first Pope to his face and proved him to be in error (Gal. 2:11).

The first Pope did not have the care of the churches; Paul had this honor (2 Cor. 11:28). The first Pope was merely a pillar in the church; a pillar is not the foundation, a pillar rests on a foundation (Gal. 2:9). The mother of the primitive church, including the first Pope, was "Jerusalem, which is above, which is free, which is the mother of us all" (Gal. 4:26; Heb. 12:22-23; Rev. 21:1-10). Many other facts could be produced; the above, however, are to the point.

PRO-PROTESTANT.
Takoma Park, D. C.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Rev. C. S. Longacre did not say of what "persuasion" he is, but since I am of the Catholic conviction, it is my duty to answer his letter which appeared in The Post on March 13, and which stated that St. Peter is not "the rock" of the church:

His reasons are:

1. Because Moses and David, in the Old Testament, speak of Christ as a rock.

2. From St. Paul's words: "Ye are God's building . . . For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ."

3. Because the Greek word "petros" means "pebble," while "petra" means "rock." Thus (he says) Christ meant that He was the rock, and brought that out by contrasting Himself with Peter, the "pebble."

In regard to his first objection, the Rev. Mr. Longacre is merely quoting a metaphor which has been applied several times with one significance, and saying that that metaphor can be applied in no other way. His argument comes down to this: If Moses called Christ a rock, Christ had no right to call Peter a rock.

St. Paul's words are not to be contradicted. Christ, and therefore God, is the foundation of the church, its very fountain-head. And no man could or did lay any other foundation; but Christ, who is God, did make Peter the foundation of His church on earth. A man who finds that the lot on which he is to build his house is solid rock still builds a foundation into that rock. In the same way, our Lord built Peter into the heavenly rock and set the church on him.

Whether or not the Rev. Longacre has ever had the pleasure of studying Greek is hard to say. For, though he has taken the trouble to find out that "petros" means "pebble," or, more correctly, "a piece of rock," he has failed to note its second meaning (to quote the Liddell and Scott Greek-English Lexicon): "It (petros) is sometimes used for 'petra.'"

His objection to this will be: How can we tell whether the first or second meaning was intended? His only argument in favor of the first meaning is the assumption that Christ made a gesture toward Himself when He said "this"—which is not an argument, but a guess. The argument for the second meaning is much more conclusive. (Here, again, I am forced to question his knowledge of Greek.) For Christ said: "Thou art Peter and upon this rock I shall build my church." But the Greek word "this" refers to the nearest preceding substantive, which is "petros." Besides all this, in the Syrio-Chaldaic, which tongue our Lord spoke, the word "Cephas," which means rock, is used for both Peter and the rock.

Certainly all this goes to prove but one thing: that Christ meant Peter, and not Himself, as "the rock" on which the church was to be founded. His inference that one who is subject to human frailty could not be the "rock" we will put down to his incapability of distinguishing between infallibility and impeccability.

A CATHOLIC STUDENT.
Washington, March 14.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I wish to reply to the Rev. C. S. Longacre's letter published in The Post March 13.

He says he does not believe that the new Pope is the Rock of Peter. Christ himself said to Peter, "Thou art Peter and on this rock I will build my church." If he truly has never read the above statement he should get himself a Catholic Bible of the Old and New Testaments and, after reading it, may the grace of God lead him to the true church.

St. Patrick's Purgatory

THROUGH THE SETTLED NIGHT of the Middle Ages, three great and thrilling legends passed like wildfire from mouth to pounding ear. There was the tale of Prester John, the mythical priest who ruled the East as a Christian Emperor. There was the saga of the Wandering Jew tramping inexorably throughout Christendom. And from the remote northwest, wild rumor fathered wilder rumor of an Irish lake which contained an island in which were steps of descent into the world of the dead.

When the other legends withered from the scorn of the scoffer, the story of the lake and of the island continued to haunt Europe and englamour Ireland long after the first peal of the Reformation.

The lake was and is Lough Derg. Today, boatmen ferry the pious across its muddy waters to the island where legend hath it that St. Patrick slew the serpent monster and his kin in the dark reaches of the underworld. The huge opening with locked door and steps leading below can be seen only in imagination now. But the legend finds its echo still in the belief that one night's watch on the island is the open sesame to salvation.

Lough Derg, or the Red Lake, derived its name not from St. Patrick's valorous exploit, however. In the spacious times of the long ago it was the mighty Finn MacCoul, father of Oscar, who was the father of Ossian, who had battled the serpent and destroyed it and the blood from the gaping wounds of the monster was said to have gushed forth in mighty torrents to change the color and the name of the lake. Finn had mighty wounds too, so the story goes, but the healing properties of the trefoil, now known as the shamrock, saved him for further immortal exploits with his Fianna and the loves of many more golden-haired women.

The importance of so mysterious and legended a pagan spot was not lost on the Celtic church. But it did not begin to Christianize the myth in favor of St. Patrick until the twelfth century. Cambrensis and Jocelin, Anglo-Norman writers, seized upon it for literary purposes. The monster slain by Finn became serpents destroyed by Patrick, although Europe already was aware Ireland was not beneficial to snakes. So too with the trefoil. It became the symbol of the new Christian land in honor of the Trinity.

There was even a best seller written. In 1186, Henry of Saltrey wrote his Tractatus de Purgatorio S. Patricii. And though Henry never was in Ireland and did not have the faintest idea where Lough Derg was he told the hair-raising story of the descent of Knight Owen into the nether-world and prescribed the proper ritual of entrance for other hardy knights-errant.

The fame of the lake and of the island—known now as the Island of St. Patrick's Purgatory—was soon blazed throughout Europe. And along dusty medieval roads, terrified travelers and awed crusaders, puzzled theologians and swashbuckling knights-errant huddled together in the comfort of companionship and added to the legend's stature through the years.

As soon as maps were made of Ireland, St. Patrick's Purgatory took an important place together with the mysterious island of Brasil, which St. Brendan discovered off Galway. No two maps agreed on the location, however. Some placed it on the edge of the Atlantic. Others charted it inland. Sometimes even it was confused with St. Brendan's Island. Brasil passed into the American continent, but the island purgatory appeared as late as in the ambitious Bull, by which Pope Alexander VI divided the New World between Portugal and Spain. Gradually as an "undiscovered island" it was removed by mariners from their charts; but even as late as the seventeenth century, certain still credulous Irish gentlemen took out patents to acquire it.

The religion of the Gaels of Patrick's time was not a connected system but a mixture of different tribal beliefs now loosely known as Druidism because the ceremonies were conducted by druids. The druid (Gaelic, draoi) was not so much a priest as a teacher and magician. Pagan Ireland worshiped the natural elements—light, fire and water—and their religious festivals coincided with the changes of the seasons. They believed in a future world known variously as Tir-na-nog (Land of Young), Magh Mell, Ui Breasail, and they paid much attention to the cemeteries of their dead. Idols of stone were sometimes worshiped, as, for instance, Crom Cruach, which together with 12 smaller idols, stood on Magh Sleacht in the present County Cavan.

And though Christianity was well established in Eire when St. Patrick died, paganism still was strong. Two centuries later it found a champion in Congal Cloan, King of Ulaidh (now Down and Antrim). Assembling a large army Congal warred on the Christian champion, the High-King Domhnall. They met at Moira and the battle raged six bloody days. Congal and his army were annihilated. Druidism had fought its last fight.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

So You Wanted To Be President!

ALL RIGHT, you think you are so hot, you're elected. You're elected President of the United States. Now go on. Get in there and do it your way. You're so hot.

Write us an inauguration speech. About 6,000 words will do. Did you ever have any experience in writing? Do you know how much copy 6,000 words is, just as wordage alone, and never mind what the words say? That one will keep you up a few nights, and if you get by inauguration without making a chump of yourself then you have only three years and 364 days to go. Just a breeze.

No, don't try to climb down. You are so hot. You thought Coolidge looked funny and Hoover dopey, and I have heard you crack wise about some of the activities of Mr. Roosevelt's wife.

Well, what do you think people are saying about your looks? You are no Robert Montgomery yourself, and that old lady of yours is going to give you plenty of headaches shooting off her face before your term is out. And both of you had better go up the pole for duration, because you are inclined to take socks at people when you are drammed up, and it wouldn't look so good if the papers came out some morning saying, "President Spelvin swings on German Ambassador and is goaled by left to chin. Diplomatic relations severed. War imminent."

Just An Open Target For All Crackpots

AND YOUR ever-loving has a habit of telling dirty stories. How do you think it is going to sound to the public when that gets around and all the commuters' gags are attributed to Madam President? People will be saying the White House must be nothing but a joint nowadays.

And about appointments. There is a judgeship open in Jersey, and the boys send you a name, because you can't be expected to know enough people individually to select ideal men for all the jobs that must be filled. So you name him, and in a couple of days you discover that they have slipped you a terrible burglar. Oh, an awful thief. Been robbing taxpayers and widows and orphans for years and shoved the unions around something awful in half a dozen cases when he was a county judge. But you hired him and you are stuck with him—you, with your prattle about a clean judiciary and court reform. So you are an anti-labor President, eh? Boo, you dirty scab!

How are you doing, chum? How do you like it in the White House by now, funny face? Where does your old lady buy those hats? And, God, that voice! I heard her on the radio. Fresh fish! What's this about your son beating his wife? Do you know what the labor guys are saying about you and your son? They are calling you a tyrant and him the tyrant's heel. Not bad; not bad.

Well, You Wanted To Be President!

GET GOING, you. You are President. You were the one who could turn in a better job than Mr. Big. Give us a tell about this gold business. What's all this about gold? Look that one up and write us a message about it, and then tell us how you are going to save the farmers. No stalling, now. Lay it on the line. As a matter of fact, you don't know what it's all about—do you?—and that bunch of phrenologists who call themselves economic experts have boxed you up pretty.

You never realized that there could be so many problems calling for single-handed decisions affecting the living, even the lives, of the people and on matters about which you know nothing, but you wanted to be President.

Look out for those Communists, President Spelvin. You have to detect them by ear, because they aren't enrolled. A real Communist has to turn his dough over to the party. This kind just say they think the capitalist system is obsolete and doomed and the sooner it is wrecked the better. You have got some of those bums around telling you how to promote recovery. Better get them out of there.

Keep Going, There, President Spelvin

TIME TO WRITE us a nice, long fireside chat, Spelvin. Say about 4,000 words of analysis, optimism and policy. What about neutrality? Why don't you balance the budget? Why don't you clear the slums and reduce taxes and build up the Army and Navy? You know you are strangling business, don't you? Write it tonight. Got a diplomatic dinner tonight? Well, write it after they go home. Read all those tables and reports in your spare time—and, oh, what about Mexico? Of all the dirty outrages! You call yourself an American, and the President at that, and you let those mugs confiscate our oil wells? Make them give them back.

What's the matter, Spelvin? Whatever you do, somebody squawks. They crack wise about your wife. Remember how you used to crack wise? Remember those lunch-wagon jokes about the Roosevelts? Those lousy poems you used to carry around and read out loud?

Oh, so your health is failing. Can't take it. Get back in there! Get back in there and pitch! You asked for it.

The Case For Japan

By Henry Misselwitz

The Necessity Of Pacifying China

THE BASIC REASON why Japan now is moving in on China, and has been for a generation, is almost wholly economic. Japan during this generation has been going through a peaceful (so far) revolution of her own—an industrial revolution.

Her infant industries had to have a ready source of cheap raw materials, for one thing; and once they had turned them into finished products, they had to have a ready, easily accessible and if possible a controlled market for their goods. The answer was China.

But Japan, beginning to walk as an equal among the family of nations in this era, found progress toward her goal to become a first class power blocked by constant fighting in China. Her source of raw materials was destroyed or badly damaged, and a war-torn China overrun by warlords and bandits, was a sorry market for anyone, including themselves. And leaders in Tokyo determined to restore peace at any price in their gigantic, potentially powerful neighbor on the continent of Asia.

The Chinese refused to quit fighting among themselves, even after their notorious warlords were defeated at Peking in 1928 and the national capital was removed to Nanking.

Says Chiang Failed To Pacify China

FOR A TIME those of us in Shanghai who were reporting the Kuomintang (People's Party) revolution led by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and inspired by the late Dr. Sun Yat-sen, thought China under a central government at Nanking would find peace.

But a few months after Peking fell and Gen. Chiang Kai-shek changed the name to Peiping, or Northern Peace, that June of 1928, the Chinese were in an uproar. Fresh rebellion broke out at Hankow, far up the Yangtze River. The uprising was quelled, but calm was brief.

For nearly ten years, Chiang Kai-shek tried in vain to quiet the Chinese peoples who constantly rose against any attempt to rule them with a strong federal administration at Nanking. He had to suppress one uprising after another, north, south, east and west. Or rather, all but east; for to the east of Nanking lay Shanghai, and he did control that small but rich segment of an uneasy Cathay, but very little else. Fighting among the Chinese themselves went on and on and on.

What Tokyo wanted, be it remembered, was a peaceful market in China first, under a strong federal government able itself to maintain order at home and friendly relations abroad. The Chinese failed to evolve such an administration at Nanking, even after ten years of tireless efforts by Chiang Kai-shek and his followers in his "new deal" in China, forever beset by armed uprisings and guerrilla warfare.

Then Japan acted, seizing the three eastern provinces of Manchuria in 1931-32, and going ahead with her campaign to control a second "autonomous area," or "independent" (puppet) state in North China, second. Both puppet states were to act as buffers if and when a second Russo-Japanese war begins, and they were to be great reservoirs of raw materials for Japan's vital industries, as well as the controlled market for products manufactured by these industries.

The Japanese had no idea of bothering Nanking itself when they started their drive to slice five northern provinces down to the Yellow River away from the rest of China. At least, I personally am convinced they were forced into the second "undeclared war" around Shanghai the summer of 1937 and have been in up to their necks ever since.

The fighting in North China was planned as part of an old program. This began with the Marco Polo Bridge "incident" outside Peiping on July 7, 1937, when armed Japanese on maneuvers clashed with Chinese in the Peace Preservation Corps there. No movie script could have been better planned, I think.

But the Shanghai "incident" at the Hungjao Airport out past the International Settlement on August 9, 1937, I believe was an accident. A Japanese naval patrol, ostensibly searching for a missing man, sought to enter the Chinese military airport. A clash ensued and both sides suffered casualties—and the fight was on.

This was Japan's final showdown with the Chinese, which is still going on. It will go on for years.

Thinks 'Pax Japana' Will Mean Prosperity

JAPAN TODAY controls the key cities of China from the Great Wall to the north down to the borders of French Indo-China and Burma on the south. Her cash resources may run low, as they are doing now, but she will cling on for years to come, despite economic troubles.

Meanwhile, China remains united for the moment against the Japanese, who have done more to bring them together in a united front than Chiang Kai-shek has been able to do in years. I will venture to say that if by any miracle we could get the Japanese to withdraw from China (of course that's not possible!), the Chinese would be fighting among themselves again before the last little thin soldier had set sail for Dai Nihon!

Instead, there will be guerrilla fighting in China from now on. There will be Chinese puppets who will be moved into high places by Tokyo while Japan pulls the strings. The guerrilla warfare may be a little more intense than against Nanking under Chiang Kai-shek, that's all.

A PAX JAPANA in China may restore order and a measure of prosperity to the Asiatic races there, who are the restless neighbors of Nippon. And Japan's factories will prosper with those restored markets of China.

Alaskans Ask for Home Rule As Future State; Hit Bureaus

By the Associated Press.

Fairbanks, Alaska, March 16.—The Alaska Home Rule Association, a pioneer group, today issued a "declaration of necessity" demanding "full territorial status" now and eventual statehood for Alaska.

The declaration sharply assailed "taxation without representation." It asserted the "despots," the "Lord Norths" and "tories in our own country" were retarding development of a territory "which should now be supporting a population of millions."

Lord North was the member of the British government who sponsored the stamp tax which led to the historic Boston tea party and spurred the independence movement.

Since Alaska already has territorial status, technically at least, the demand for "full" privileges of that nature was interpreted as a contention that some of the Federal departments and bureaus in Washington should relinquish their Alaska activities to territorial agencies.

"Free Alaska from Federal bureaucracy.

"Speed establishment of full territorial government and future Statehood.

"Lay solid economic and political foundations for development of resources and future Statehood."

The association declared "the white man will not be stopped. There are 30,000 of us up here, and the only certain result of such widespread reservations of land and hindering of development will be continual friction between Alaskans and Federal officials, which will have a strong tendency to culminate in disastrous encounters."

The association sponsors said they were signing members all over the territory pledged to fight a system by which "the Federal Government taxes the people and refuses them representation in Congress—for representation without vote is farcical."

The Tax Controversy

By Ernest K. Lindley

174 'Points Of Friction'

THERE MAY BE a major controversy over tax revision, with the conservative Democrats and the Treasury on one side and the White House inner circle on the other. I have read about it. But I have been unable to find it.

There are, as usual, differences of opinion as to what, if anything, should be done about tax revision now. But—and this is not usual—they are over narrow issues and—so far at least—they have not led to any clear-cut divisions between the New Dealers and the conservative Democrats.

Neither the Administration nor the conservative Democratic leadership in Congress is seeking more taxes in substantial amount. The most that the President asked for in his budget message was a moderate increase, including taxes to finance the parity payments to farmers provided in the 1938 farm bill. He is not pressing his plea.

Roswell Magill, who resigned as Undersecretary of the Treasury last fall, wanted a rather stiff increase in taxation. He believed that the Federal Government should balance a budget of seven or eight billion dollars on a national income of between $65,000,000,000 and $70,000,000,000 such as we had in 1937, and probably will have again this year.

Dissent On Budget Lies In Expenditures

JOHN W. HANES, who succeeded Mr. Magill as Undersecretary, and so as chief manager of the Treasury's tax program, is an $80,000,000,000 man. He believes in balancing the budget by increasing the national income until the revenues produced by the tax levies of about the present severity are sufficient to cover outgo. According to Treasury estimates, the present tax mechanism would harvest more than $8,000,000,000 in revenue from a national income of $80,000,000,000. At about that point, making allowance for smaller relief expenditures, the budget should balance. On this basic point of strategy, Mr. Hanes is in complete agreement with the inner circle of the New Deal. On the side of taxation the conservative Democratic leadership in Congress is also in agreement. Its dissent is on the other side of the budget problem: the volume of expenditures.

What Mr Hanes has done, with the aid of 42 Treasury tax experts, is to put his finger on approximately 175 "points of friction" between business enterprise and the tax laws. Some of these already have been removed by revision of Treasury regulations, and others will be lubricated by the new decentralization of the Bureau of Internal Revenue so that a businessman can settle a small tax dispute without making a trip to Washington.

A residue of 49 "points of friction" required, and were deemed appropriate for, Congressional consideration. The more important fall under two headings.

One Corporate Levy Is Simplification Aim

THE FIRST of these is simplification of the corporate tax structure by the repeal of the capital stock, excess profits, and undistributed profits taxes. This would leave only one general corporate levy, the corporation income tax, plus the social security taxes. The excess profits and capital stock taxes are Siamese twins, born in 1933, of nothing more distinguished than a desire for about $150,000,000 in additional revenue.

The present undistributed profits tax is nothing but a mocking vestige of a significant reform. This tax met its Munich at the hands of Congress in 1936 and its occupation of Prague when Senator Harrison and his colleagues resumed their march a year ago.

As proposed by the President, the undistributed profits tax would have taken the place of all other general corporation taxes. Now it is proposed that the corporation income tax take the place of all other general corporation taxes. Having reaffirmed his devotion to the undistributed profits tax at Arthurdale last year, after Congress had extinguished it in all but name, the President can hardly be expected to ask for its formal burial. But, as a practical matter, not much of it is left to fight over, or to mourn.

Better Break Planned For Firms "In The Red"

THE SECOND important division of Mr. Hanes' 49 points is concerned with capital losses of corporations. The net purpose is to give the corporation which has suffered such losses a little better break, and so to encourage capital to take risks in new enterprises.

No change in the personal income tax is proposed except a reduction to 60 per cent of the surtax on the very largest incomes. This would cost the Treasury about $11,000,000 in revenue; so its effect could be only psychological.

At his press conference Tuesday the President indicated that his chief concern was that no loss of revenue should result from the revision of the tax laws along the lines now proposed. The losses could be recouped by moderate increases in the corporation income tax or in the gift and estate levies.

When tax revision is under way almost anything may happen. But to date there has been no mobilization for a major conflict.

On The Record

By Dorothy Thompson

Cassandra Speaking

THIS COLUMN, at least, is no longer susceptible to shocks over what is happening in central Europe. We feel pain and sorrow. But we did not share the perennial and amazing surprise of Mr. Chamberlain.

On February 18, 1938—that is more than a year ago now, and before the entrance of Hitler into Austria—we wrote:

"Write it down. On Saturday, February 12, 1938, Germany won the World War and dictated in Berchtesgaden a peace treaty to make the Treaty of Versailles look like one of the great humane documents of the ages.

"Write it down. On Saturday, February 12, 1938, military bolshevism, paganism, and despotism started on the March across all of Europe east of the Rhine.

"Write it down that the world revolution began in earnest—perhaps the World War . . .

"Why does Germany want Austria? For raw materials? It has none of consequence. To add to German prosperity? It inherits a poor country with serious problems. But strategically, it is the key to the whole of central Europe, Czecho-Slovakia is now surrounded. The wheat fields of Hungary and the oil fields of Rumania are now open. Not one of them will be able to stand the pressure of German domination.

"It is horror walking. Not that 'Germany' joins with Austria. We are not talking of 'Germany.' We see a new crusade, under a pagan totem, worshiping 'blood' and 'soil,' preaching the holiness of the sword, glorifying conquest, despising the Slav, whom it conceives to be its historic 'mission' to rule: subjecting all of life to a collectivist, militarized state. Persecuting men and women of Jewish blood, however diluted it may be. Moving now, into the historic stronghold of Catholic Christianity, into an area of mixed races and mixed nationalities, which a thousand years of Austro-Hungarian empire could only rule tolerably with tolerance."

'Four-Power Accord' A Fantastic Plan

ON SEPTEMBER 21 we wrote an "Obituary for Europe" and on October 1, following the pact of Munich, we wrote a column called "Peace—And the Crisis Begins!" which was severely criticized in some quarters for its failure to rejoice over the peace. We said:

"What happened on Friday is called 'peace.' Actually it is an international Fascist coup d'etat.

"The 'four-power accord' is not even a diplomatic document. It is certainly not a normal treaty. It is such a fantastic piece of paper that it is difficult to describe except as a hurriedly concocted armistice made in advance of a war to permit the occupation 'by German troops' of a territory which by sheer threat and demonstrations of force they have conquered by 'agreement,' . . .

"There is not the most elementary consideration of justice. . . .

"The pressure of the Nazis in contiguous territories occupied by German troops, their immense and cunningly organized propaganda, their house-by-house and name-by-name political organization; the ever-present threat that if the territories go German the political minorities will be exterminated, will assure the outcome of these plebiscites. One might just as well cede them to Germany in the first place. . . .

Facts Not Given British, French

"Even on the basis of what internal evidence would seem to be a rigged report (the Runciman report), Germany is guilty of provoking what was nearly an all-European war. And the punishment for this guilt is that she received everything that she was going to fight the war over.

"This 'everything' is more than the Sudeten territories. It is more than a free hand in the East. It is the domination of Europe . . .

"In this whole affair, described as an attempt to keep peace, the democratic process has been completely suspended. In both Britain and France the facts have been suppressed by the exercise of government pressure on the controlled radio and on the newspapers. The people of England and France are confronted with a fait accompli without even being able to gain in advance possession of the facts on which it is based!

"Not only is Czecho-Slovakia dismembered—what is left is destroyed as a democratic republic. It will be utterly impossible for the new state to exist under the conditions created" . . .

Heine's Prophecy Again Recalled

On October 17 we wrote a column on "The Case of Cardinal Innitzer" in which we recalled the prophecy of Heine:

"It is the greatest merit of Christianity to have assuaged the joy of the German in brutal bellicosity, but when, one day, the cross of Christ is broken the savagery of the old warriors, the wild berserker wrath, will break forth anew in all the barbaric fury of which our Nordic poets tell in song and saga. Even today the talisman of Christianity has begun to rot, and the day will come when its power will piteously collapse. Then will the old stone gods arise from the accumulated rubbish of the past...When that day comes, take good care, Frenchmen, and do not interfere with those affairs which we are settling among ourselves. Take care neither to fan the fire nor to quench it...Do not laugh at my advice...the advice of a dreamer...German thunder is admittedly German: It is not very agile...But it will come one day, and...you will hear an explosion such as has never yet occurred in the history of the world.

"The hour will come, when, like spectators in an amphitheater, the nations will crowd around Germany to watch the great tourney."

Tax Revision as Recovery Spur Wins House Support

Tax

placing returns for the entire month at $425,000,000.

Representative Treadway, of Massachusetts, ranking Republican member of the Ways and Means Committee, charged the Administration is not contemplating "any lifting of the oppressive tax burden on business." He said proposals to substitute a single high percentage tax on corporations would add to their burden. And he predicted the Administration will "turn a deaf ear" to every move for economy or business aid.

Upturn in Business Predicted

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics said some upturn in business activity, beyond the seasonal increase, may be looked for in spring and summer, induced by larger building operations and increased Federal outlays. No marked increase in the total volume of industrial production was predicted. The bureau said "the critical time will come" when the impetus furnished by spending and housing operations is reduced.

A new statement of anti-trust policy, designed to "avoid needless friction" between Government and business, is being prepared by the Justice Department. Attorney General Murphy said the policy, to be announced in the next ten days, will be "'preventative, rather than harassing." He said it would involve no abandonment or relaxation of enforcement of the anti-trust laws.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace told a Senate Banking subcommittee "we must be ready for armed conflict among the currencies of the world." Wallace urged extension of the President's power to devalue the dollar, operate the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund and continue the domestic silver purchase program to guard against currency action by foreign nations.

Senate exponents of a shift in the corporate tax structure, that would not cut total revenue, but would remove so-called "deterrent" levies, were reported still hopeful the President might take the leadership. Lacking Administration initiative, and originating House action, Harrison was reported on good authority ready to strike for the reforms in the Senate. He has strong support, which may become vocal in the Senate in the next few days.

McCormack's statement was regarded as significant, as the House originates tax action, and the Senate must wait for a revenue bill from the House before moving for amendment. McCormack is a member of the House Ways and Means tax subcommittee, headed by Representative Cooper (Democrat), of Tennessee.

Urging prompt tax revision, McCormack referred reporters to an exchange of views between himself and Representative Celler (Democrat), of New York, published in the appendix of yesterday's Congressional Record.

The Once Over

Elmer On The Air-Conditioned Circus

Ringling Brothers Circus,
Sarasota, Fla.
Gents:

Ever since reading the recent announcement that the big show this year is to be streamlined, air-conditioned and even given a new style tent with a blue ceiling I have felt worried and depressed. Say what you may, I know I ain't going to like an air-conditioned circus.

I could stand for the streamlining and the blue ceiling stuff but the minute a circus begins tampering with the smells I get sore.

The announcement said the big top would be air-conditioned "with 22 refrigeration units cooling the air and making it fresh and pure," and I don't think a real genuine circus fan in the country read that without his heart sinking. No circus-lover worthy of the name ever minded the heat or gave it a thought. He was too much interested in the circus.

Circus air should be just chock full of the odor of buttered popcorn, peanut roasters, tanbark, freshly turned earth, sealions, perspiring performers, acetylene torches, hay, straw and animals. I can't imagine anything more disappointing than a sweet smelling circus.

Even circus chariots, cages, nets and clowns have a certain distinct aroma which amounts to a tradition. It has always been possible to locate a good circus by the nose. You could tell one a half mile away, even with an unfavorable wind. And once you air-condition the big top you will begin sweetening the air in the menagerie tent, which will bring all circus-lovers up on their toes with screams of opposition.

The first thing circus-lovers know you will be air-conditioning the camels and the elephants! Imagine trying to make a camel smell like anything except a camel!

It will be only a step from that to announcing that the hyenas get a bath in attar of roses three times a day and that in the Ringling circus you can't tell the seal cage from a flower show.

Stop the trend, gentlemen, before it is too late. A circus should look like a circus, behave like a circus and smell like a circus at all times, and I deplore the present tendency to confuse it, even in the decorative field, with a cocktail bar or a Ziegfeld show. You've got Charlie Le Mair, the former Ziegfeld wizard, redecorating the show and he did a good job last year, but hold that fellow in check, please. I can't quite picture the remodeled big top with its blue ceiling and drapes of blue and gold. I like a circus tent to look like a circus tent.

I don't want to go to the greatest show on earth and be unable to tell for a few minutes whether I'm in a high class restaurant or a cocktail lounge.

Yours apprehensively,
ELMER ("Jumbo") TWITCHELL.

P. S. And don't let 'em wash and shave Gargantua or change his name to Bertie!

JOHN E. GREEN

[This series is about men and women 70 or older who are finding that so-called "old-age" is really a lot of fun. They still are producing and getting a big thrill out of their work or hobbies. You know some qualifiers. Tell us who they are.—Editor's note.]

By Gerald G. Gross.

This being St. Patrick's Day the subject shall be a Green, John L., who has the twinkling eye and witty tongue of an Irishman though, truth to tell, he was born right here in the District of English ancestry.

Seventy-seven years old, his twin passions are fishing and flowers. It has been thus ever since he was an urchin selling newspapers at Seventh and F streets northwest. When this department called upon him he was planting a half-dozen rosebuds in the rear of his home at 1622 Hamlin street northeast. This week-end, as usual, he will be stalking hardheads and bluefish in Chesapeak Bay.

"When I was a boy I fished in Tiber Creek, which is now covered over with Government buildings," Mr. Green says. "Mainly the mullet and sunfish I hooked.

"There was a floral shop across the street from where I sold papers. The flowers in the display window sort of fascinated me. What with my thoughts of going fishing and the distraction of those posies, I scarcely paid any attention to paper selling."

It finally reached the point where he simply had to ask the florist for a job so he could be nearer his wares.

"It was John Saul, father of the late real estate dealer, B. F. Saul," Mr. Green continued. "When I asked him to hire me he said, 'You're too skinny lad. Eat a barrel of mush and come back.'

"He was joking, of course, but I took him seriously. The next few days I ate mush until I thought I'd burst. Then I went back. I got the job."

For several years thereafter Mr. Green worked in nurseries and greenhouses. The greater part of his career, however, was spent in the building and real estate business. He retired a couple of years ago that he might do greater justice to his fishing and gardening.

"I don't think there's a hole in Chesapeak Bay that I haven't fished in," he says. "I seldom miss a week-end on the water and sometimes I go out in the middle of the week. The son has a boat and a cottage and we make good use of them."

At home he keeps busy in the garden by day, topping off his labors with a movie nearly every night in the week. Around the front, back and sides of his home are planted lilies of the valley, roses, dahlias, azaleas, petunias and other flowers.

Their custodian is tall and lithe, with a border of white hair around the back of his head. The top is quite bare. He has been a resident of the Northeast section for nearly 60 years and put up many of its homes

"The more I keep going, whether it's work or play, the better I feel," he says. "Occasionally I try letting up for a day and every time I do I begin feeling poorly. So why loaf?"

Citizens Hit 15 Points Of D. C. Plan

Propose Labor Department; Favor Co-ordinator Chosen By Commissioners

The Citizens' Efficiency Committee yesterday dealt a blow to the Griffenhagen plan for reorganization of the local government by unanimously opposing 15 of its major recommendations.

The committee produced a supplemental report to its original 1937 survey on reorganization attacking the Griffenhagen report on many fronts.

The major points opposed follow:

The appointment of a single administrative officer.

Substitution of the commission form of government with a city council.

Vesting of legislative power in the proposed governing body.

Transfer of the functions of the present Public Utilities Commission to a department of public utilities.

Change in School System

Placing the system and the libraries in departments subject to the administrative officer and to the part-time governing body.

Placing the various District functions under 17 departments.

Creation of a Department of Law, under the administrative officer, with the law officer the director of the department, instead of the corporation counsel, as at present.

Placing the Parole Board under the proposed Department of Public Welfare.

Placing the Alley Dwelling Authority under the proposed Department of Public Works.

The proposal that the control of traffic be split up, part going to Department of Public Works, part to Department of Revenue, and the enforcement to police.

Proposal placing the Alcoholic Beverage Board under the police and revenue departments.

Abolition of Peoples' Counsel

Abolition of the office of people's counsel.

Creation of the department of parks and recreation.

Abolition of the commission on mental health.

Placing the Board of Tax Appeals under other departments.

In addtion, the committee, headed by former Corporation Counsel E. Barrett Prettyman, recommended creation of a Department of Labor to enforce labor laws.

The committee supported a suggestion offered by the commissioner to set up an Administrative Officer as general manager or co-ordinator. The officer would be appointed by the Commissioners.

The Prettyman committee was reconvened last week by the Commissioners and was requested to examine the Griffenhagen report.

In the outset the citizens' report said:

"We find that the report (Griffenhagen) is silent as to a number of matters which we deem essential to any proposed reorganization. The outstanding example of this is the method of the selection of the proposed governing body . . .

"We find much in the report with which we agree. In most of its general principles it is identical with the report which we submitted . . . December 13, 1937.

Prettyman's committee said it did not see in the Griffenhagen report any recommendation that the governing body, or council, be elected and we do not believe that a single appointed officer is wise or safe.

Explanation Sought

The citizens new recommendation will be ready for the Commissioners by next Monday, Prettyman stated yesterday. Meanwhile, the House sub-committee on District appropriations has asked representatives of Griffenhagen & Associates to explain next Monday how District operating expenses might be cut $3,000,000 a year, it was learned yesterday.

Representative Kennedy (Democrat), of Maryland, and Frank C. Everett and Gerald Gross, of the Griffenhagen organization, will appear before the sub-committee.

Kennedy is the author of the $3,000,000 estimate, but he explained that it was made by the Griffenhagen specialists on condition that the reorganization plan is adopted.

Constitution Defense Theme Wins Prize For Schoensee

Liberties guaranteed in the Constitution are as important today as they were when the document was written, Burke E. Schoensee, of Georgetown University, winner of the District College-University Oratorical Competition, declared last night.

"We should look forward to attaining ideals incorporated in the Constitution, rather than backward to conditions existing when it was written," he said.

Other speakers in the contest, held on the anniversary of the birth of James Madison, father of the Constitution, were Miss Mary Slappey, of American University; Miss Rita Walsh, of Trinity College, and Francis A. Spitzig, of Catholic University.

Representative Sol Bloom made a short address, while the contest winner was being chosen and later presented a silver cup to Schoensee.

Judge Declines to Hear Mrs. Stinson's Poisoning Story

Official translation of a Southern expression was supplied yesterday by Justice Luhring, in the hearing of Mrs. Pepita Crounse Stinson's action to annul her marriage to Joseph Whitlaw Stinson, and get back money she claims she had given him.

Northern-bred attorneys wrinkled their eyebrows when Mrs. Stinson was described as "lookin' po'ly" in the summer of 1937, when she married Stinson without, she claims, knowing what she was doing.

Noting their bewilderment, the court broke into the testimony to explain, "that's an old Virginia expression, gentlemen; it means that she was not looking well."

Earlier yesterday Justice Luhring stopped a line of questioning about Mrs. Stinson's supposition that somebody was trying to kill her in 1937.

"I don't wan't to hear any more of this poison business," said the court. Let's get on with the case."

The case involves the claims of Mrs. Stinson, who inherited $700,000 from William L. Crounse in 1925, that Stinson plotted with her nurse, Jessica Shoemaker, to give her drugs so she would marry him. She wants to cancel a $230,000 trust fund she set up for herself, to go to Stinson after her death, and she wants him to repay an alleged gift of $27,000.

Mrs. Stinson, 54, plump, and author of what she told Justice Luhring were "foolish little books of poems," testified nearly four days. She based her demand for an annulment instead of a divorce on her claim that she was only a "spiritual bride."

Supporting Mrs. Stinson's case yesterday was Rutherford Bingham, of Newton, Pa., who testified that he had told Miss Shoemaker two years ago that Stinson "was a bad egg and he ought to be run out of town."

Bingham, who said his father was once Washington police commissioner, testified also that Stinson was "a gigolo, a loafer and only after a rich woman's money."

It is expected to take two more days to hear all Mrs. Stinson's other witnesses.

Lutherans Urge Fight on Evils

An educational program to combat the numbers racket, liquor and other community evils was urged last night by the Men's Brotherhood of Takoma Park Lutheran Church.

The main laid the groundwork for a program designed to give Christian men a more active voice in civic affairs, according to Carl Hickman, president, who said "this is an opportunity for us to really do something."

Hickman, in suggesting means to defeat the numbers racket, declared that "I think Maj. Brown would welcome the co-operation of such groups as this in stamping out community evils."

Later in the meeting, the Rev. Adrian Pfeiffer, pastor, said he did not think the church should take the position of lobbying

Sun to Gild Shamrocks Here Today

Solemn Rites, Dances, Parties Honor St. Patrick Under Fair Skies

Shamrocks will sprout on Washington streets today and green neckties will be conspicuous in honor of St. Patrick, the Scot who became patron saint of Ireland.

Celebrations will range from solemn ceremonies by the Irish war veterans at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington Cemetery to an open house party by the Interior Department Recreation Association at the National Press Club at 9:30 p. m. Other dances and parties will be held tonight.

Clear and cold weather was promised for the day, with the mercury expected to drop as low as 28 degrees in the morning.

Hibernians to Banquet

Irish War Veterans of the United States, members of the District Post No. 17, will place a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington at 11 a. m., after ceremonies at 10 a. m. at the statue of Commodore John Barry, Fourteenth and Eye streets northwest.

The group will hold a buffet supper dance at 9 p. m. at the American Legion Hall, 414 Ninth street northwest, instead of at the Colonial Hotel as previously announced.

The Rt. Rev. David T. O'Dwyer, of Catholic University, assistant chancellor of the Baltimore diocese, will speak at the banquet of the Ancient Order of Hibernians at 7 p. m. in the Mayflower Hotel.

The Friendly Sons of St. Patrick will hold their banquet at 7:30 p. m. in the Mayflower. Frank Hogan, president of the American Bar Association, will be the speaker.

Others to Celebrate

Other celebrations include a dance for members of Bunker Hill Post, No. 31, of the American Legion, at 9 p. m. tomorrow at 807 Monroe street northeast; a dance at the Manor Country Club, Norbeck, Md., tonight; and a dance given by the Brookland Council, No. 27, Daughters of America, at 8:30 p. m. tomorrow in the Masonic Temple, Twelfth and Monroe streets northeast.

Legends cluster as thickly about St. Patrick as bees in a field of clover. He brought Christianity to Ireland, where he had been held six years a slave, in the fifth century, and used the shamrock to illustrate the principle of the Trinity.

Fight Forms Against D. C. Sales Tax

Representatives of organizations indorsing the program of the Citizens Committee for Fair Taxation will be asked to appear before the House sub-committee on fiscal affairs in opposition to a proposed retail sales tax in the District, Mrs. John Boyle, jr., chairman, said last night. Mrs. Boyle appeared before the sub-committee Wednesday.

The committee's program she explained, favors:

Repeal of the busines privilege tax on gross receipts.

Enactment of a corporation profits tax in lieu of the business privilege tax on gross sales.

Enactment of a graduated personal income tax with "such exemptions as will safeguard the living standards of those least able to pay."

Repeal of the intangible personal profits tax, but only if there is substituted for it a graduated tax on personal net income.

Among organizations indorsing the citizens committee's program, she said, are the American Association of University Women; National Women's Trade Union League, Washington committee; Washington League of Women Shoppers, D. C. Co-operative League; Consumers Council of Washington, Bennings Citizens Association, Bladensburg Road Citizens Association, Brookland Neighborhood Civic Association, Hillsdale Civic Association, Pleasant Plains Civic Association, Rock Creek Civic Association, Washington Highlands Citizens Association.

American Federation of Teachers, Local 440; Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, Washington Division; Hotel and Restaurant Employes Alliance, Local 80; United Garment Workers of America, Local 11; Washington Industrial Union Council, including 31 locals of the United Federal Workers of America and Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, Cleaners and Laundry Department, Local 188-B, Amalgamated Clothing Workers, Journeyman Tailors' Department, Local 124; American Radio Telegraphists, Local 35; Federation of Architects, Engineers, Chemists and Technicians; Oil Workers, Local 403; United Cafeteria Employes, Local 471; United Fur Workers, United Mine Workers of America, Local 7325; United Office and Professional Workers of America, Local 27; United Retail Employes, Local 113; United Shoe Workers of America, Local 136; Washington Newspaper Guild.

Capital News In Brief

Schoolboys Seek Fame

Two Taft Junior High School students ventured forth in search of fame and fortune yesterday afternoon. Police are searching for them.

The boys, John V. Yeager, 15, of 2815 Twelfth street northeast, and Wilfred (Billy) Pouliot, 14, of 1238 Evarts street northeast, both in the eighth grade, left notes.

The notes, delivered to John's father, John V. Yeager, sr., and Billy's mother, Mrs. Beatrice Poulit, by a classmate known only as "Gino," said the boys thought they were wasting time in school, that they knew a place where work could be obtained, and that they thought they would try to make their own living.

Sees Colored Light

Light in springtime colors and soft autumn shades will be used for illumination in the future, S. G. Hibben, authority on lighting effects, predicted last night.

In a demonstration for the Illuminating Engineering Society, he made a large glass ball, unwired to a power source, glow with a bright yellowish green light.

Hibben explained the brilliance was obtained by coating the inside of the sphere with flourescent pigments and then bombarding it with short-wave radio beams."

Merchant Routs Bandit

An attempted holdup ended in the loss of five bottles of ketchup last night when Max Kozlow, 60-year-old proprietor of the Silver Star Market, 317 Massachusetts avenue northwest, drove a colored man from the store by breaking ketchup bottles on his head after struggling to get his gun away from him.

Kozlow was alone when the man entered and asked for cigarettes. While he was getting the cigarettes, the man pushed a gun in his face but Kozlow grabbed his arm and pushed the gun up in the air.

Reaching for a ketchup bottle with the other hand, he broke it over the thief's head, and threw four more at his back as he ran for the door.

Pease Elected Exalted Ruler Of District Elks

Harold Thurlow Pease, of 1626 Montague street northwest, Wednesday night was elected exalted ruler of the Washington Lodge of Elks for the year beginning April 1.

PEASE

A member of the board of governors of the Optimist Club, and of Portland Lodge of Masons, Pease has been successively lecturing knight, loyal knight and leading knight of the lodge.

Others elected were William J. Kelly, esteemed leading knight; S. Albert Mickler, esteemed loyal knight; Allen Duvall, esteemed lecturing knight; William S. Shelby, secretary; William F. Engle, treasurer; Daniel Cleary, tiler; Gustav W. Brahler, trustee, and L. Martin Young, alternate delegate to the grand lodge convention.

S. A. R. Re-elects C. S. McConnell As President

Chalmers Seymour McConnell was re-elected president of the District Society of the Sons of the American Revolution at a meeting in the Mayflower Hotel.

Other officers named at the meeting were C. Leonard Brown, Lawrence V. Benet and Frank T. Tracy vice presidents; W. Harvey Wise, jr., secretary; Thomas C. Washington, jr., assistant secretary; Dr. Clifton P. Clark, treasurer; William W. Badgley, registrar; Benjamin D. Hill, jr., assistant registrar; Dr. John D. Wolcott, historian; the Rev. Samuel M. Croft, chaplain; John F. Little, librarian, and Robert C. Tracy, trustee.

The society named Milo C. Summers, Lieut. Comdr. S. S. Williamson, Stephen C. Ford, Col. Charles Y. Latimer and Dr. Louis Charles Smith as members of the board of management for the term ending in 1942.

Delegates to the congress of the national society elected at the meeting were Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, Seiden M. Ely, W. Harvey Wise, jr., Col. Alonzo Gray Robert C. Tracy, William W. Badgley, Kenneth S. Wales, Col. John P. Hains, Milo C. Summers, Maj. Harry A. Davis, Thomas C. Washington, jr., and Laurence V. Benet.

The society heard Representative Guyer (Republican), of Kansas, praise the system of "checks and balances" as the bulwark of American freedom and civil rights.

Georgetowners Protest Home Streamlining

The Progressive Citizens Association of Georgetown wants the colonial architecture of that historic section of the District protected from twentieth century streamlining.

It appealed to the National Capital Park and Planning Commission for assistance in its "keep Georgetown architecturally pure" drive, but that agency pleaded it had no authority in the matter, and suggested they see the American Institute of Architects.

Opening their monthly two-day meeting, the planners approved development plans for three new recreation centers, discussed street changes incident to the Alley Dwelling Authority's proposed housing project on Alabama avenue in Anacostia and considered plans for new roadways in the National Arboretum, which the Department of Agriculture is developing near Fort Dupont.

G. U.'s Glee Club Presents Program

The Georgetown University Glee Club presented a musical program last night under the auspices of the University Club.

George H. O'Connor, jr., son of George H. O'Connor, long a favorite in Washington musical circles, was one of the first basses of the glee club.

Cecil J. Wilkinson headed the entertainment committee, composed of William Roy Vallance, James H. Lemon and James Hayes. Edward P. Donovan directed the program.

Prizes Given In Chocolate Use Contest

"Devilish" Ideas Reign; Ginger as Garnish for Reversed Cake Wins Award

By Alice Clayton
The Post Food Editor.

THAT old culinary favorite—chocolate—appeared in many diabolical guises in The Post's recipe contest this week. Among the entries were Red Devil's cake and Devilish Chocolate dessert, while a man cook from the South contributed Chocolate Imps, which were nothing stronger than baked raisins, graham crackers and nuts combined into cookies. A chastening influence came in the entry, Nun's Puffs, mellow, cocoa-filled fluffs, which won one of today's recipe prizes.

Mrs. Barbara Lipscomb, 20 H street northeast, the originator of the recipe theme, has contributed some helpful hints on the preparation of chocolate. Here they are:

Some Helpful Hints

To melt chocolate over hot water, cut it in pieces and put it in a pan over the water—never over direct heat.

To melt chocolate in liquid, cut it in pieces, add it to cold liquid, heat gradually, letting it melt slowly. Then beat with a rotary egg beater until smooth.

One square of chocolate is one ounce. If cocoa is substituted for chocolate, 1-3 cup of cocoa equals one square of chocolate.

In making chocolate boiled frosting, cool the melted chocolate then fold it lightly into the frosting just before spreading it on the cake.

Reversal of Procedure

Mrs. W. E. Osborne, 415 Gallatin street northwest, reverses the usual procedure of baking cakes by placing her topping at the bottom of her cake. She has also blended the blandness of pears with the more decided flavor of chocolate. Her addition of chopped ginger as a garnish for her upside-down cake makes a winner of her entry this week. In fact, she has been awarded first prize of $3 for her originality.

Mrs. Osborne

Chocolate Pear Upside Down Cake

Mix and sift together 1 cup of flour, 1½ teaspoon of baking powder, ¼ teaspoon of salt and 2-3 cup of sugar. Mix 1 well beaten egg with 6 tablespoons of milk and ½ teaspoon of vanilla. Melt together over hot water ¼ cup of butter with 1 square of chocolate (1 ounce). Cool slightly. (Before mixing, prepare the following: 3 tablespoons of butter, ½ cup of brown sugar and 6 halves of canned pears. In a round baking dish, about 8 inches in diameter, melt the butter and sprinkle the sugar over it. Cook over low heat until blended. Arrange the pears radiating from the center with the cut side down). Complete the mixing of the chocolate mixture by adding the liquids to the dry ingredients and stirring in the chocolate butter mixture. Pour same over the pears and bake at 350 degrees F. for 45 minutes. When ready to serve, turn upside down on a dish and serve warm. Garnish with whipped cream. Sprinkle with 2 tablespoons of chopped crystallized ginger, if desired.

Light and Airy Confection

One of the chocolate confections entered this week was the Nun's Puff submitted by Mrs. Frank Edwards, 7 Belle Grove road, Brooklyn Park, Md. She has been awarded second prize of $2 for this sweet, which is as frothy as a candy and as satisfying as a cake dessert. This formula is an unfailing one for those special splurges of entertaining when nothing but the most epicurean is good enough for your guests.

Nuns Puffs with Cocoa Filling and Cocoa Sirup

Beat 2 eggs without separating, until very light. Add 1 cup of milk, pour this gradually into 1 cup of sifted flour. Mix and beat until smooth. Pour into 12 hot muffin or popover irons, which have been brushed with butter or lard. Bake in a moderate oven for 30 minutes. If oven is too hot the puffs will not be light; they should be like cream puffs when removed. Split and fill with cocoa filling. Mix ½ cup of cocoa with ½ cup of sugar and ½ cup of milk. Add 1 well beaten egg and ¼ teaspoon salt. Add to boiling cocoa and milw and boil for 10 minutes, stirring constantly. Set aside until cold. When the puffs are filled with cocoa mixture, serve cocoa sirup over each puff. Combine, for sirup, 1 cup of cocoa, 1 cup of sugar and ¼ teaspoon of salt in saucepan. Add 1 cup of water slowly and place over low flame, stirring until smooth. Then boil 2 minutes, stirring constantly. Add 2 teaspoons of vanilla, pour into a jar, cover until needed.

Two in One

Both the sweetness of candy and the more substantial goodness of cake are reproduced in the recipe entered by Mrs. Harry Dickman, 1405 Crittendon street northwest. She has been awarded a prize of $1 for her two-in-one combination which includes an excellent basic coffee chocolate cake recipe as well as a delicious seafoam frosting formula. Mrs. Dickman obligingly provides a substitute almond filling and icing recipe.

COFFEE CHOCOLATE CAKE Topped With Sea Foam Frosting

Melt 3 squares of unsweetened chocolate with ¾ cup of strong hot coffee. Add ½ cup of corn sirup slowly, beating in well. Cream ½ cup shortening with 1 cup sugar, beating well. Add 3 unbeaten eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add 1 teaspoon of vanilla extract. Sift together dry ingredients which include 1¾ cups of pastry flour, 3 teaspoons of baking powder and ¼ teaspoon of salt. Add alternately with cold chocolate mixture to first mixture. Bake in 2 greased square cake pans in moderate oven at 350 degrees F. Put layers together and cover top and sides with seafoam frosting, which follows: Boil ½ cup of light brown sugar with ¼ cup of water, 2 tablespons of strong coffee and ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar, without stirring until sirup spins a thread at 248 degrees F. Remove from the fire and beat 2 egg whites until stiff. Add sirup very slowly to egg white, beating continuously, then add ⅛ teaspoon of salt. Beat until thick, then add ¼ teaspoon of baking powder. Continue to beat until thick enough to spread on cake without running. Cocoa almond filling may be substituted by creaming 6 tablespoons of butter with 3 cups of confectioners sugar slowly and 8 tablespoons of cocoa, beating well. Add ½ cup of cream slowly to make good spreading consistency. Add ½ teaspoon of almond flavoring. This makes enough for a four layer cake.

Tropical Influence

It may have been Mrs. James Jay Lawlor's recent visit to semi-tropical countries that influenced her entry in this week's chocolate contest. She has contributed a rare chocolate recipe which she calls Hula Moon pie. It may be the pale golden tint of the pineapple which she combines with banana that prompted this romantic name. Mrs. Lawlor, of 1627 Thirty-fifth street northwest, has been awarded a $1 prize for this recipe.

Mrs. Lawlor

HULA MOON PIE

Combine and cook in double boiler until thick ½ cup sugar, 2 squares chocolate (chipped), ¼ teaspoon salt, ¾ cup pineapple sirup from can of crushed pineapple, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Stir in 1 large banana thoroughly mashed, combined with yolks of 2 eggs, well-beaten, 1 1-3 cups drained crushed pineapple, add 1 tablespoon butter. Cook for 5 or 6 minutes. Turn into uncooked graham cracker shell. Cover with meringue made by whipping the whites of the two eggs until stiff and folding in sugar. Sprinkle with a few graham cracker crumbs if desired. Bake in a slightly under moderate oven (325 degrees F.) for about 20 minutes. Serve cold.

Luscious Loaf

Every bit as appealing as a lavish dessert is the fruited chocolate bread entered by Mrs. Arthur Rhoads, 520 Elm street, Frederick, Md. She has won a $1 prize for this recipe, especially for her clever method of putting chocolate to such healthful use. Her combination of dates, walnuts and raisins would, at least, assure an ample supply of their daily bread when such an agreeable chocolate tinged loaf was put before them.

FRUITED CHOCOLATE BREAD

Beat 1 egg well, add 1 cup of milk and 2 tablespoons of melted butter. Add 3 squares of melted chocolate. Blend well and then add sifted 2½ cups of flour, 4 teaspoons of baking powder and 1 teaspoon of cinnamon and ¼ teaspoon of salt, ingredients combined with ½ cup of chopped walnuts and ½ cup of seeded raisins and ½ cup of chopped dates. Pour into well-greased loaf pan and bake for 45 minutes at 350 degrees fahrenheit.

Fudge Loaf Lures All Appetites

There are few appetite laggards who would not respond to the luscious quality of chocolate fudge loaf. This delicacy has the same appeal for hearty eaters as for fastidious Lenten dieters, who may refrain from rich candies but cannot find it in their hearts to pass up a fudge loaf, such as the serving above. This butter-filled recipe is one of many nutritious chocolate recipes entered in this week's contest

GOLDEN SALAD

Dissolve 1 package of lemon gelatine in 1 cup of boiling water. Cool and thicken until quivery. Pour in following ingredients and chill in mold until stiff ½ cup of crushed pineapple, one-third cup of orange juice, ½ cup of grated carrots, ¼ cup of chopped pimientos, 1 cup of finely chopped cabbage, ¼ teaspoon of salt, ¼ teaspoon of paprika and ½ cup of cottage cheese. Serve on finely shredded cabbage with mayonnaise.

Noodle Dishes To Be Theme Of Post Contest

Any type of nourishing macaroni dish will be eligible for one of five cash awards in this week's recipe contest. Macaroni au gratin, macaroni and cheese, stuffed in tomatoes, or macaroni salad—cool, crisp and spicy, with herbs and seasoning. In event you have no favorite tried-and-true macaroni formula as an entry in the new Post contest, enter a noodle, spaghetti or vermicelli recipe. Any of these cereal grain products may be included in your competition entry.

Spaghetti with meat sauce, or spaghetti Neapolitan may be your cereal-conscious way of getting around meatless Lenten dishes, as well as a way of submitting a recipe worthy of The Post's first cash prize of $3. There is a second prize also of $2 and three additional awards of $1 each. Entries must be submitted to The Post Food Editor, Alice Clayton, not later than March 25. All recipes must be kitchen-tested and carefully written.

If you are partial to the nourishing richness of noodle ring or Viennese noodles or to the tender zestfulness of vermicelli soup, enter your formula at once. Use your originality and knowledge of fine flavor blends in any of these rich cereal foods and see if you can win the honor of being one of Washington's most outstanding chefs of macaroni, spaghetti or noodle entrees.

Helium Gas Used to Treat Asthma Has Had Life Saving Effects Also Aid in Caisson Disease

The uses found for the gas called helium represent beautifully the idea that the discoveries of science may be either beneficient or destructive accordingly as man decides to use them.

Helium can be used to inflate Zeppelin bags and military balloons. So long as the Zeppelin is used for transportation this is all right, but when it floats over a city and drops bombs on school buildings full of young children, it is time for some more humanitarian purpose to control its use.

And even more beneficient uses for it than air travel have been found. We described a year or so ago, in this column, its use in asthma and pneumonia when it first began to be applied to these diseases. Now it can be said definitely that it has sufficient value to justify the United States in refusing to export it for military purposes in order to reserve it for the medical applications.

Its Principle

The principle on which helium acts consists of its lightness. It is only one-seventh the weight of nitrogen. Nitrogen constitutes 79 per cent of the air. It is entirely unnecessary in sustaining life; it simply dilutes the oxygen which practically constitutes the rest of the 21 per cent of air, other gases existing only as minor fractions or traces.

It occurred to a physician watching a patient struggling in a paroxysm of asthma that a lighter gas than air, containing as much oxygen, would constitute a great relief. The asthmatic's condition is due to a constriction of the bronchial tubes so that they are narrowed down to the diameter of the shaft of a pin. In order to get enough air into the lungs to sustain life, he has to pump his muscles until he is almost exhausted. It did seem logical under these circumstances that a thinner air would go in with less effort.

And this worked out in practice. According to Dr. Alvan L. Barach, in his testimony before the Congressional committee on the uses of helium, they had not lost a single patient in an asthmatic attack in the hospitals where helium is being used. The treatment may be truly life-saving in some instances, when patients are in extremis and no pulse can be felt.

In caisson disease, which afflicts divers, helium mixtures have also been used to advantage. Its action here is quite as logical as in asthma. Caisson disease occurs when there has been confinement to high atmospheric pressure, and then too rapid exposure to ordinary pressure. The explanation of it is that during the high pressure period, nitrogen is forced into the tissues of the body. With rapid reduction in pressure, the nitrogen forms bubbles in the muscles and causes cramps, which are known in the trade as the "bends." The replacement of an easily diffusible nitrogen mixture naturally cor-

Advice on Food

Salt Risin' Bread Recipe Supplied After Long Search

THERE is something about salt risin' bread. At least a dozen Washington women have recently evidenced a desire for recipes of real old-fashioned salt bread. After the Food Editor had groped fruitlessly through several old-time country cook books for this agreeable though tedious methods of bread preparation, a reader of the food pages dropped into the office one day and volunteered her authentic old recipe. She offered it for the benefit of other local cooks who wouldn't feel it too much trouble to spend an entire day over the cook stove.

This salt risin' recipe appears in today's Consumers Counsel along with other contributions from homemakers. There are several informative household hints sent in by generous and helpful homemakers. If you like the delicate yet decided flavor of water cress you will want the hint on this salad green contributed by a reader. If you have some useful kitchen tip, hidden away in your pantry closet, send it into Alice Clayton, The Post Food Editor in care of the The Consumer's Counsel. Cooking queries will be answered in this column, although personal replies cannot be given.

Old Timer Recipe

Mrs. Roland Mason, 222 Fourth street southeast, is the gracious homemaker who wished to share her salt risin' secret. After personally sampling her delicious freshly baked loaf, with its faint flavor and aroma akin to cheese, it was esay to understand why she has many times been asked to bake this bread for her friends at a neat price per loaf.

Grandma's Mother's Salt Risin' Bread

Take an egg and beat into it all the meal it will take to make a stiff batter. Pour over this ½ cup of boiling water with a pinch of salt thrown in. Place in a warm spot until next morning. Then put it in a jar, adding ½ pint of the morning's milk and ½ pint of boiling water, sifting into the flour mixture enough for a nice batter. Set the jar in a pan of warm water to keep it warm until it rises. Now make your bread up, using ½ gallon of flour, 1 scant tablespoon of salt, 1 large tablespoon of lard and ½ cup of warm water to the quantity of batter prepared as above. Knead until smooth, forming into loaves, put in greased pan, well warmed. Let rise again before baking. Many people suffering with indigestion, it is said, can eat this old fashioned loaf bread.

Cress Popularity

One of the weekly food page contributors, who never fails to have practical and agreeable cooking suggestions, has sent us this tip on the preparation of tender, fresh water cress. She is Mrs. E. E. Smith, 868 Park avenue, Baltimore.

"Water cress is one of our most delicious greens," she writes. "I have never seen anyone eat it as I do, so your readers may want to know of this idea. Wash the cress well, being careful not to bruise or tear its leaves. Have before you some very thinly sliced sandwiches—well buttered. Have also a cellar of salt and the cress. Dip each sprig of cress very gently into salt. Eaten with the sandwiches, the cress is delicious."

Household Hints

Several readers have contributed homemaking tips this week. The following will be helpful to women who never even go near a kitchen for it pertains to the care of hosiery—a problem which never seems to be completely solved. Mrs. W. W. Griffiths, of Laytonsville, Md., sends this to Counsel-ites.

FEWER HOSIERY BILLS

"To protect silk hose from pulls and runs caused when troubled with rough hands and nails, keep a pair of fabric gloves handy. Slip them on before putting on your silk hose you will be pleased with the neat results."

Miss M. E. Grady, 2308 south Inge street northwest, knows a thing or two about the care of dish cloths and mops. A lowly subject, but one that has troubled many an efficient and sanitary-minded housewife. Here is Miss Grady's prescription:

CLEANER CLEANERS

"Have you often been ashamed of your dishcloth or mop when friends wanted to help you clean up your dishes? I have! My mother discovered that you can put your dishcloths in a bowl of water to which 2 small tablespoons of chlorine solution have been added. Let the cloth or the mop set for one-half hour. Presto! Take it out, rinse it, wash with soap and water and it will appear as white as snow. If cleaning it thus before going to bed, use only 1½ tablespoons of solution, and in the morning cloths will be spotless. This method also removes mildew."

The ever faithful Mrs. Sara Lee Orange, 2025 I street northwest, is again up to her clever homemaking tricks. This week she contributes a hint on the use of wire egg whippers.

WHIPPER WHISKS

"I buy little wire egg whips for 5 cents at sales—and how these inexpensive gadgets have saved me time, steps and worry, and helped me to turn out superior treats from the kitchen! I use them to stir all thickenings for gravies and sauces, also to stir all custards and pie fillings that boil over direct heat. They're grand for smoothing out lumps, too. While making doughnuts, French fried potatoes or potato chips, I use a whipper to lift foods out of deep fat without a bit of grease adhering. There are continuous uses for these whippers which pop up during the course of a day."

Party Suggestions

Why not a fleet of banana boats for a 12-year-old's birthday party? Stuff hollowed bananas with diced pineapple and peaches. Attach flags of variegated gum drops stuck on wood picks.

Wearing of Salad Greens Today

Whether or not you're wearing the green today, you can, at least, serve it for dinner. Benign St. Pat would probably beam with satisfaction could he see the appropriate St. Patrick's Day dish, above. The softened marshmallow and gelatine salad shows its streak with clover-leaf garnishes of green pepper and a bed of watercress. Another effective way of serving this brilliant salad green is given by a reader in the Consumer's Counsel on this page

College Lists Some Questions On Home Thrift

Ithaca, N. Y.—Are you a thrifty cook or do you waste some of the family's vitamins and minerals in the kitchen drain and the garbage pail? Before saying "Of course, I'm thrifty!" answer these questions suggested by the New York State College of Home Economics.

1. Do you remove "skin only" when paring vegetables? Vitamins are often close to the surface, and a reckless knife can easily cut away many of them. When cooking vegetables, do you frequently bake or boil them in their skins. This saves water-soluble vitamins and minerals.

2. Do you cook vegetables "to pieces?" Vitamins B and C and minerals are soluble in water and long cooking does much to dissolve them out.

3. When cooking vegetables, do you save the water to make soup. You can thicken it with a little cream sauce and add a few vegetables and seasoning. Such a soup is good nourishing and inexpensive.

4. Do you save the oil on the top of the can of salmon for cooking. This is valuable oil, rich in vitamins A and D.

5. Do you squeeze your orange juice fresh each time you serve it? Orange juice squeezed overnight loses some of its vitamin C.

6. Do you use the green outside leaves of cabbage and lettuce? These green leaves are the richest part of the head in vitamins A and C. They look attractive when carefully washed and finely shredded.

To Remove Stains

To remove cod liver oil stains from clothing apply a tablespoonful of banana oil mixed with a tablespoonful of soapy water. After 5 minutes or so wash the stained article in warm water and soap suds.

Eastern High Presents Radio Workshop

Seventh of Student Series Sponsored by Post Goes on Air

Students of Eastern High School last night brought to the air the seventh in the current series of "Student Radio Workshop" programs, presented each week by undergraduates in the District's 10 senior high schools under the sponsorship of Station WJSV and The Washington Post.

Opening with a mixed chorus of 45 voices singing the traditional song of Eastern High, musical selections included: "Pavanne," second movement of Gould's "American Symphonette," by the 18-piece school orchestra; a double quintet of boys and girls singing Sanderson's "Until;" the mixed chorus in Huhn's familiar "Invictus," and the popular musical comedy number, "Sing for Your Supper," with the orchestra and a vocal trio made up of Margaret Fleming, Dorothy Boutchyard and Charles Bright.

Dramatic skit of the show was a one-act play, "The Brink of Silence," written by Miss Esther Galbraith, D. C. schools faculty member. In the playlet were William Goldenzweig, Bill Stewart, Arthur Sislen and Tim Hurst.

Brief talks were made by Maybelle Davis and Miss Esther Jonas, teacher of Home Economics.

The program was under the general supervision of Miss Zella B. Faris and Miss Florence Milliken of the English department, and Paul D. Gable of the school's department of music.

Next Thursday evening's "Student Radio Workshop" will be heard over Station WJSV at 7 p. m., presented by the students of Dunbar High School.

Margaret Fleming	Ruth Lancaster
Dorothy Boutchyard	Anne Bumann

Y.W.C.A. Requests Restudy of District Dual School Setup

Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, chairman of the Senate District Committee, was asked yesterday by the national board of the Y. W. C. A. to urge Congress to reconsider its action in setting up a dual school system in Washington.

"We deplore the existence in the Nation's Capital of a dual system of schools, which we conceive to be contrary to the principle of the Constitution and the Declaration of Independence. It is also, we believe, contrary to the principles of the Christian religion," Senator King was told in a letter signed by Dr. Emily Hickman, chairman of the "Y's" Public Affairs Committee.

The letter was actuated by the Marian Anderson incident, which was caused in part—the Y. W. C. A. said—by the "law which is being used as a basis for the decision."

Text of Radio Talks by Teacher, Student Broadcast Over WJSV on Workshop Program

Students from Eastern High School, broadcasting over The Post-WJSV sponsored "Student Radio Workshop" last night presented a one-act play, "The Brink of Silence." Left to right, Arthur Sislen, Tim Hurst and Bill Stewart. Broadcast was eighth in a series given every Thursday night

Below is a transcript of the talk on "The Value of Home Economics Training in the High School," given by Miss Esther Jonas, teacher of home economics at Eastern High School, on last night's "Student Radio Workshop" program over Station WJSV.

Prof. Paul Hanna, of Teachers College, Columbia University, has written: "Home-making is the one and only practically universal occupation of boys, girls, men and women. Because home-making is so universal and because it is so complex and difficult it seems reasonable to expect every member of our society to have adequate training in school for this work."

JONAS

Training for worthy home membership and the art of right living is the keynote upon which the home economics curriculum is founded.

We of the District of Columbia are proud that our city was the first in the country to make home economics a part of the public school curriculum.

Home economics courses in the senior high schools are planned on the unit basis, so that a girl may elect those units which interest her most. Each unit gives one major credit.

For two years Eastern has offered a boy's course in first aid and hygiene which is growing in popularity.

This year two high schools are experimenting with another type of home economics work for boys.

It is hoped that Washington, like other cities, will soon recognize the need for this training.

Annually there are new positions opening for young people trained in home economics.

Below is a transcript of the talk on "Washington, the City Beautiful," given by Maybelle Davis on last night's "Student Radio Workshop" program over Station WJSV.

I like Washington. You may say what you will but Washington is the nicest city in the land. It is not grown up yet, and it still believes in Santa Claus. It is terribly in earnest, but it laughs at everything.

DAVIS

Gradually Washington has developed from a struggling municipality into a cosmopolitan metropolis. The campaign to make it such was started by Alexander Shepherd during President Grant's Administration. Today Shepherd is recognized as the statesman through whose vision and persistence so many improvements were brought about. Lord Bryce, the British Ambassador to Washington more than 30 years ago, in writing of America stated that Washington City, because of its natural location, picturesque river, wide avenues, magnificant parks and monumental buildings, is the most beautiful city in the world.

Our city is so typically American in every detail. It is representative of every section of the United States. We have the speed of the North, the hospitality of the South, the versatility of the East and the friendliness of the West.

We are privileged to have with us part of the year our Congressional friends, who for the most part are splendid, hard-working citizens of wisdom.

Our city boasts of excellent colleges and universities, a symphony orchestra, fine galleries of painting and sculpture.

Washington is up to date but not aggressive, steady not dull, well to do but not rich, gracious but not condescending.

Washington, rich in the traditions and glory of our country, is certainly the city beautiful.

Ruth McKenney to Talk

"The Writer in a Troubled World" will be discussed by Ruth McKenney, author, tonight at an 8 o'clock meeting of "The Book Shop" Association at 916 Seventeenth street northwest. A reception for the author will be held tomorrow afternoon at the Book Shop galleries.

Owners Reject Miners' Offer To Extend Pact

Action Would Close Pits if Contract Is Not Signed April 1

By the United Press.

New York, March 16—Appalachian bituminous coal operators today rejected an offer of the United Mine Workers to continue work pending negotiation of a new contract after their present collective bargaining contract expires on March 31.

The rejection was announced by John L. Lewis, president of the U. M. W., who said the offer was made "in order to allay any public apprehension concerning the possibility of a suspension of mining operations." Under the offer, the terms of the present contract would have continued until a new one was reached.

Charles O'Neill, spokesman for the operators, said his group voted against the motion because it was "premature." They believed, he said, that a new agreement can be made before the end of the month.

"Deeply Regret Action"

"Does this mean that the operators are asking for a strike?" Lewis was asked.

"Our resolution speaks for itself," Lewis replied. "The mine workers deeply regret the action of the operators, but they have no alternative but to accept the decision and proceed in the time left to consider the proposals before the conference."

The union asks a 50-cent daily wage increase, and the operators ask a reduction of the same amount. An agreement by April 1 appears impossible, Lewis said.

Mrs. R. T. Holden Sues for Divorce, Charges Cruelty

Mrs. Margaret Burch Holden charged cruelty in a divorce suit she filed in Reno yesterday against Dr. Raymond T. Holden, 34, of 3111 Sixteenth street northwest, who sued her in Washington Tuesday for a legal separation.

Dr. Holden charged in his complaint that his socially prominent wife had gone to Nevada to divorce him so she could marry another man.

They were married in New York, January 7, 1932, after an elopement, and have a 6-year-old daughter, Mary.

Less than six months after his release from jail on similar charges, George W. Murphy, 43, no address, was given a 660-day sentence yesterday in Police Court on 11 bad check charges.

Murphy pleaded with Judge Curran that he was sorry.

Corcoran Rejects Painting Satirizing Duce and Fascists

'The Eternal City' by Peter Blume Rejected for Show on Its Merits Say Officials; Deny It Was Turned Down Because It Was Controversial

A painting satirizing Mussolini and Fascist Italy has been rejected for exhibition in the Corcoran Gallery of Art biennial show and a minor tempest in art circles of Washington and New York may result, it was learned yesterday.

The unsuccessful entry is "The Eternal City," by Peter Blume, a young Russian-born artist who won first prize in the Carnegie Art International at Pittsburgh in 1934 for his "South of Scranton" and who has twice received Guggenheim fellowships.

Both Maurice Sterne, noted artist and chairman of the biennial jury, and C. Powell Minnigerode, director of the Corcoran, united yesterday in saying "The Eternal City" was turned down on its merits, rather than because it is controversial.

The coming exhibition will open March 26. Not only have the pictures been selected but the winners of the four major prizes have been decided upon, it was learned. They will be announced in a few days.

"Some 375 paintings have been accepted, which represents about one-tenth of the number entered," said Sterne. "They were judged strictly on their artistic quality. Mr. Blume's painting was not rejected because of its controversial nature."

Blume has put a $16,000 price tag on the picture, it is reported.

A Woman's New York

520 Stephens Girls Give N.Y. a Whirl, And Vice Versa

New York, March 16.

DURING THE LAST week we have turned on our culture full-strength, for during this period 520 young ladies from Stephens College, Columbia, Mo., have halted in our midst in the course of their annual educational tour of the country. Even though the girls are hedged about with protection, they manage to have a swell time in spite of the sore feet received from our harsh pavements. But our sympathy must go out to those who ride herd on this troupe of attractive youngsters between 17 and 20.

Every press agent and promoter in town, and there must be millions, leap hopefully to the attack, trying their crafty best to tie up their particular racket with the gorgeous gang from Stephens. Then of course, there is always the matter of boys—who are also eager and alert. The question of dates is a major problem for all concerned. Two key-people seem to be in charge of heading off both the agents and the would-be escorts. It required three floors of a hotel to shelter this enormous crowd of culture-seekers, and they were watched with ceaseless vigilance. One of the most interesting characters in authority is a former New Yorker named Mr. Barry Holloway. It has been his job to head off the promotional chiselers, and I need not add that Brother Holloway lived on a co-educational floor.

In charge of the horrid dating problem has been Miss Ann Sorenci, alumnae secretary of the college. And what a job it is. Every girl who wants to break away from the herd momentarily must get Miss Sorenci's permission, and she says she has made over 4,000 dates for the girls so far. Among the heaviest mass attacks have come from the handsome gallants at West Point and Annapolis. In addition, poor Miss Sorenci has to check carefully on the apartments vacated by her 520 chickadees—and you can imagine how many odds and ends are left behind by that many excited college girls. Well, we entertained them and sent them safely on their way, trusting that their culture was not badly bruised.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN: Those of us who have been confined in this municipal madhouse all winter are driven completely daffy this month by the return of lovely girls wearing handsome gloria tans. A few nights ago I saw Mrs. Warren Pershing wearing a white evening gown that set off her patiently acquired Southern coloring to perfection, and another well-browned girl on the same floor was Mrs. Foxy Gwynne, who was wearing a black lace dress with her tan. And people like Aunt Alice wander the streets of New York looking as though they have just recovered from a three-month bout with typhoid fever.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Is It Duty or Lack of Love Which Prompts Wife To Leave Husband and Go Home to Nurse Relatives?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Three years ago I married a woman much younger than I. We lived together very happily for about a year. She was the youngest of her family and very close to her mother. The mother was taken very ill, and she went home and didn't want to come back here. So I quit my job and went up and worked on the farm. Her mother disliked me and made it impossible for me to stay there. So I came back to the city and got a job and sent for her.

Her brother is separated from his wife and has two children that are staying with the grandparents. My wife thinks it is her duty to stay there and take care of the house. I really believe that deep down in her heart she cares for me and I am madly in love with her and have done nearly everything I can to get her to come back to me. Her parents won't let me see her and she hasn't written for three weeks.

I have always been true and kind to her, and have steady work now and could keep her nicely. What should I do? I hate to give her up, but it doesn't look as if she will leave her mother. Do you think it possible she could care for me and still stick to her mother? I do not want to do anything to hurt her. What I would like to know is whether she loves me. What is your idea? WORRIED.

Vacillating Personality

DEAR WORRIED: The fact that the woman was willing to marry you in the first place, plus the fact that you two "lived together very happily for about a year," (or until she was recalled to her mother's home by the latter's illness), offers some reason for believing that she was deeply fond of you—at one time, at least. But perhaps she is one of those meekly amiable, scrupulously conscientious, emotionally malleable, duty-driven individuals who are constitutionally incapable of asserting their own preferences against the needs, demands or opinions of strong-willed intimates.

Perhaps she is, and always has been, so mother-dominated that when her mother sets out to convince her of the rightness or the wrongness of a given course of action, she cannot muster adequate powers of rational resistance—of logic, argument or quietly courageous and warranted defiance. She may be one of those women of whom we say, "She has no mind of her own"; the sort of daughter of whom it is said, "she is tied to her mother's apron strings," the kind of person who is always being led around by the nose by some militantly determined relative or friend.

It is perfectly possible that the mother found in her own illness a long-sought opportunity for launching a campaign to break up the marriage. Once she got her daughter home again, she may have subjected her to a constant barrage of piteously sentimental insistence upon her need of her care; upon a daughter's duty to her parents; upon her moral obligation to serve her own relatives rather than seek her own happiness. She may, also, have concerned herself insistently with poisoning your wife's mind against you; may have painted you as an unattractive, undesirable, altogether unsuitable husband, etc., etc.—with the result that the girl doesn't know, now, either what she should do or what she would rather do.

On the other hand, it is equally possible that your wife was never so happy in the marriage as you supposed her to be, or would like to believe. She may have discovered, after a few months, that marriage had been, for her, a leap from the frying pan into the fire. Maybe she married to escape family domination, and thereafter decided that her last state was worse than her first, so that, actually, she welcomed a pretext for going back home without telling the whole truth and shaming herself before her family. One of her (seemingly) meek and vacillating disposition naturally would find it difficult to tell her husband she did not love him and no longer cared (or intended) to live with him. She would lack the audacity, for one thing; the decisiveness, for another thing; and she would hesitate to act in such a way as might deliberately inflict hurt, for a third thing.

Inasmuch as your marriage has been continuously disrupted for about two years, I am of the opinion that the chances of your wife's ever returning to you are exceedingly slim. I daresay that she is happier where she is; and that there she will remain. She may not be happier in the sense of knowing a greater enjoyment of life than she could find with you; she may not, in her secret heart, care as much for any member of her family as she does for you; but it is reasonable to believe that she is the sort of person who can only know peace when she is moving with the tide of majority opinion and approval.

One can readily imagine that she might be the sort of woman who can only face life, or find existence tolerable, when she is marching in the ranks of a closely knit family circle. One can imagine that she does not possess and never will develop the hardy self sufficiency, the faith in her own judgment, the dependence upon her own abilities, to break away from the family group and become a person in her own right. Which is what she would have to do, of course, if she were ever to become a successful wife, giving her first and last loyalty to a really deserving husband.

M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Queen Bess Liked Walnut

Oak was the common wood used for furniture of Queen Elizabeth's day, so when someone brought her a few pieces of walnut furniture from Italy, she was so thrilled with them that she ordered walnut trees to be planted throughout England. Maybe she thought she'd have the wood in her own time, for furniture, but the truth is that some of us today, possessing an English walnut piece, may well own wood from these trees planted at the order of the Regal Bess. These fine trees were a treasured part of her heritages to the future.

Preview of Spring Bridal

Toward the end of March many maidens begin to think seriously of their trousseaux, for April in Washington is a great bridal month. Local shops are not unmindful of this romantic urge and are now showing glamorous ensembles for the entire wedding party. Two of these ideas were snatched by a Post photographer at fashion showings yesterday. Left, here comes the bride in lustrous cool satin, which is still the traditional bridal fabric for early spring. The long, slim sleeves, simple tulle veil and mile-wide skirt follow bridal tradition. The handsomely flaring coat (right) was modeled at a local hotel as the perfect going away outfit. Its fabric is French Rodier woolen. The furred collar is blue fox, the coat is soft rosy beige, the accessories, blush-rose. A distinguished costume for the bride who elopes in a hurry

Sash Bows Finish Curtain Top in Bright Bedroom

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

VERY FRESH and crisp are the spring curtains I've been seeing these last few weeks. Like little girls all ready for a birthday party.

Sash bows finish the tops of one bright window for a bedroom. The glass curtains are of white net, with over-curtains of red and white candy striped taffeta looped across the top.

Fine white lawn is used for some other curtains I liked . . . they are made sill length, very full, and to tie back. They're finished all around with ruffles of pink and white checked gingham cut on the bias.

Plaid chintz window shades with over-curtains of sheer white organdy or swiss are bright and gay too.

Your Figure, Madame!

By Ida Jean Kain

Converting Fat to Energy Is Problem Of Reducer; Diet May Be Cut One-Third If Protective Foods Are Included

FAT IS FANTASTIC. You can't visualiz food as turning into fat, but first it's on a plate, and then it's on your waist! Of course, the process is not quite so direct so direct, but that is the way it happens.

It is next to impossible to make fatty tissue without an excess of food. You begin by eating just a little more than you need and put on a pound here and there. Before you know it you can put on 5 extra pounds and it is hard to recognize them as the few extra rolls, butter, pieces of pie, second helpings of favorite foods and occasional sweets that you have been indulging in. It doesn't seem possible they could have turned out so badly for your figure.

Storage Increases

But, after all, 5 pounds is a mere trifle, and at this stage you couldn't stretch your imagination enough to see yourself as ever being 50 pounds overweight. But there is something very fatal about eating more than you need. Every time you do it, the excess is stored as reserve fuel, and if it is not used as energy, it remains in storage. When you eat all you need for energy, there isn't a chance of calling on this reserve, and when you continually eat more than you need, you keep right on adding to your storage.

If someone were to hand you a 50-pound bag of cement and suggest that you carry it around for a few years, you would think he was crazy. But you never question your own sanity in carrying around 50 pounds of adipose tissue.

Convert Fat to Energy

Once you accumulate this burdensome reserve, the only way you can rid yourself of it is to convert it into energy, pound by pound. It may sound very tedious, but it probably will take you much less time to lose this weight than it did to gain it. You are just reversing the process, too; all you have to do is eat a little less food each day than you actually need. About one-third less does it nicely.

You cannot, however, cut down on all foods. You can do without some altogether, others you must have. If you have lean meat, an egg, one or two glasses of skim milk or one glass of milk and a serving of cheese, fresh fruits and vegetables and bread and butter in the amounts specified in the daily menus, you are assured of the foods you need for strength—proteins, minerals, vitamins and and some carbohydrates. You will, on this list, use up your stored energy at the rate of 1 pound a week, perhaps two.

The Gentler Sex

By Malvina Lindsay.

At the Theater

"Here, let me help you with your coat—no, wait, we better let these people in first. That's one disadvantage of end seats, somebody's always wanting in. Oh now, I've dropped one of my gloves! . . . Well, but I MUST have dropped it. They were both here in my lap. No, no, don't get up. I'll find it—well, all right then, maybe we both better get up—oh, here it is, right in my hand! Now isn't that funny!

"Here now, let me hold your pocketbook while you take off your scarf! Wait! I'll get it! . . . Oh there went my beads! The string's broken! They're simply rolling everywhere! Wait now, till I get hold of the rest of the strand . . . hold it, will you, while I pick up a few . . . 'Oh, thank you! . . .' 'Thank you so much . . .' 'Yes, thank you, they're my beads' . . . 'Yes, the string must have busted' . . . 'Oh, thank you.' 'Thank you.'

"Now I'll put them all here in my coat pocket—Oh here are some more people wanting in. It does look as if they could have come in from the other side . . . especially when I was picking up beads . . . 'Oh, that's perfectly all right' . . . 'You're welcome' . . . 'No trouble at all' . . . 'That's all right.'

"Well, now I guess we're settled Oh, say, we forgot to get a program! 'Usher! Usher!' . . . Oh, he's gone! Well, we certainly can't see a play without a program.

"You know, I don't believe I'll take off my hat . . . No, it's so small it really won't be in anybody's way. Oh, there goes an usher! 'Usher! Usher!' They simply won't look you in the eye! Say, will you pull my coat up in the back—Oh, there goes your scarf! . . . 'Usher! Usher! Could we have two programs, please . . . Thank you.'

"Here, now, let's see what it says. You read it . . . You can't? Well, I can't either, without my other glasses . . . Oh, well, I guess we'll find out what it's all about when it begins.

"You know a lot of people say this play is—well, sort of—you know . . . Oh, yes! . . . Yes, Mrs. Finch Plummer was telling me about it. She simply wouldn't come . . . No! . . . However, personally I'm very broad-minded about such things. What I say is this—we're living in a modern age now—Oh, there are some more people wanting in . . .

"You know, it certainly seems to me that if I had an inside seat I'd come early enough so I wouldn't have to step all over everybody——Oh, there went my compact! Now where on earth did it roll? . . . 'Oh, excuse me! I was just trying to find my compact . . . 'Oh, thank you so much.'

"Now I guess at last we're settled . . . My hat? . . . No, I'm not going to take it off. No, it's so small, and anyway, my hair isn't——What? . . . Your pocketbook! . . . Well, what did you do with it? Well, are you sure you had it after you came in? . . . You did? Well, let's both stand up and shake out everything. Oh, there went your scarf again!

"Do you see it? . . . Say, this is serious! Are you sure you had it? . . . Well, then, somebody MUST have taken it! I'd better call an usher. 'Usher! Usher!' . . . How much did you have in it? . . . $1.25! . . . Well, then, of course somebody's taken it. 'Usher! Usher!' Oh, there's the orchestra! We've got to do something quick!

"Now, maybe it rolled under the seat. Let's ask these people in front. 'Beg pardon, but would you mind getting up? My friend's lost her pocketbook and she had $1.25 in it'—Oh, here's an usher! 'Usher! Usher! Say, usher, this lady's lost her pocketbook . . . Yes, but she just this minute had it! . . . Yes, but it couldn't have walked off. Somebody MUST have taken it.'

"Wait, now, let's lift up our coats and get out in the aisle. 'Oh, I beg your pardon! We were just looking for a pocketbook.' Say, where's my other glove? I just had it in my hand—Oh, say! HERE'S your pocketbook . . . Why, it was right here in my hand! Don't you remember, I took it to hold when you were taking off your coat? . . . Well, that's certainly a relief.

"Now, then, I guess we're really settled—no, wait, my other glove! Oh, have you got it? Thank you Now are you all right? . . . Yes, I'm fine, only—well, just as soon as the curtain goes up, you know what I'm going to do? I'm going to ask this woman in front to take off her hat."

Pillows Require Daily Airing

Lifeless bed pillows that have been used too long can be pushed up to look attractive enough on a bed, but the perfect housewife will not tolerate them. Her pillows must be soft, plump, and free of the hard little lumps that aren't apparent to the eye, but are the cause of much discomfort to the sleeper.

Every morning her pillows are aired and fluffed up before the beds are made, but the airing is never done in the direct sun, because it robs the feathers of some of their springiness.

Capital Society Shows No Signs Of Foregoing Parties During Lent

Dinners Lead Entertainment Field; Minister of Denmark and Wife And the Moffats Among Hosts

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

ANYONE WHO SAYS Capital society closes down its partying calendar during Lent, folds its hands, and foregoes entertaining and being entertained . . . simply doesn't know his Washington. A schedule that gives no hint of letting up soon, or ever, is full speed ahead with dinners taking over the field as the favored type of get-together.

HOPE R. MILLER

Last evening, for example, members of diplomatic, official and residential circles assembled around many a festive board; in fact, it looked as if at least half the town was dining out.

The Peruvian Ambassador, Don Manuel Freyre y Santander, was the ranking guest at a dinner for 20 given by the Minister of Denmark and Mme. Wadsted. Tonight the Danish Legation will be the scene of another dinner when the Minister entertains in compliment to Karl Eskelund, chief of the press division of the Danish foreign office. For the most part, the company will be made up of newspapermen and officials from the State Department.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Pierrepont Moffat entertained 14 guests at dinner last evening in honor of the French Ambassador, Count Rene de Saint Quentin, who is rapidly piling up a record for popularity around these parts.

One of the most pleasant of the parties on last evening's calendar was the dinner given by the Counselor of the Swiss Legation and Mme. Eduard Feer in their home on Rodman street. The event was arranged in compliment to two popular Capital couples who will be leaving Washington this spring, the retiring Financial Counselor of the British Embassy and Mrs. T. K. Bewley, who will leave next month for London, and Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Achilles, who will be off in May for the same city. Mr. Achilles, who is with the State Department, is to be a member of our embassy staff in the British capital.

Peters Attend Feer Dinner

The Minister of Switzerland and Mme. Marc Peter were among the dinner guests. Others there included the Counselor of the Swedish Legation and Mme. Wennerberg; the First Secretary of the German Embassy and Frau Tannenberg, and Mr. and Mrs. William Chapin Huntington.

Another on the long list of dinners last evening was the small one given by Mrs. John Henry Dwight in her apartment at 2101 Connecticut avenue. Her guests were Lady Bradford Leslie, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. White, Mrs. George Thorpe, Mrs. Margaret Dressler Nohowel, Edwin Flather, Col. Frank Morrow, and Mr. and Mrs. S. H. McKnight, who recently moved here from Pasadena, and have taken the Hewitt Wells house at 2425 California street.

Very informal was the dinner given by Justice James Clark McReynolds in his apartment at 2400 Sixteenth street. Like many of the parties at which the hospitable Justice is host, last night's was planned only a few hours ahead of time, and the guests, close friends of the hosts, were invited yesterday morning.

Bride-Elect Feted At Chevy Chase Club

Miss Ordway Whitford, whose marriage to Burton Wadsworth will take place tomorrow, was guest of honor at a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Emory Wheeler at the Chevy Chase Club. Those in the company included Mr. and Mrs. Aston Howlett, of Warner, N. H., who recently arrived for the round of pre-nuptial parties. Mr. Howlett, who is a brother-in-law of the prospective bridegroom, will be his best man.

Still others in the party were Miss Harriet Whitford, who will be maid of honor; Richard Scoot, of Danville, Va., and Edwin Kintner, who will be ushers; Miss Suzanne Kintner, Miss Alma Whitford, of Warner, N. H., cousin of the bride-elect, and L. C. Collins.

Yesterday afternoon, Miss Evelyn Chase entertained at a small cocktail party in honor of Miss Whitford and Mr. Burton. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Spencer, cousins of the bride-elect, who came by plane from their home in Hermosa, Calif., for the wedding.

But back to last night's dinners—still another on the list was the one given by Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Chatfield Taylor for Lady Burney, of England, who is their house guest. Today, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor and Lady Burney will leave by motor for Yorktown and Williamsburg to spend the week-end.

Mrs. Worthington 3d To Entertain at Dinner in Miami

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Worthington 3d will entertain at a dinner tomorrow evening at the Surf Club in Miami, where they are wintering.

Farther north in Florida, in Palm Beach, a large fashion show was held on Wednesday at Whitehall under the chairmanship of Mrs. Edward B. McLean, of Washington. The show, which contrasted styles new and old, was for the benefit of the Y. M. C. A. Among the gowns shown was a white velvet dress and pearls worn by Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury at the time of her marriage to the late Mr. Stotesbury. It was modeled by Mrs. E. E. Lodgson.

Mrs. McLean entertained a party of guests at the luncheon. Mrs. John H. Gibbons, of Washington, also entertained at the Tombola at the Everglades Club.

Mrs. Fred Irish Will Be Honored

St. Patrick's Day is today, and sure it's the day to honor the Irish, so Mrs. Fred Irish will be honor guest at a luncheon at the Army and Navy Club, which will be given today at 1 o'clock by Mrs. Colden L'Hommedieu Ruggles.

Other guests will be Mrs. James Aleshire, Mrs. N. F. Case, Mrs. James Casey, Mrs. Eustis Lee Florence, jr., Mrs. E. A. Garlington, Mrs. Joseph A. Gaston, Mrs. Benjamin Hill, Mrs. John Walker Holcomb, Mrs. George Howe and Mrs. E. A. Keyes.

Also Mrs. Fritz Lanham, Mrs. David Shanks, Miss Jane Lindenberger, Mrs. R. E. Miller, Miss Alma L'H. Ruggles, Mrs. Francis Key-Smith, Mrs. Joseph Stiles Wall, Mrs. Robert Walsh, Mrs. James A. Tillinghast and Mrs. David E. Stephan.

About The Town

With Dudley Harmon

IT WAS SPRING inside as well as out at the luncheon which Mrs. Richard Southgate gave yesterday at her home on Kalorama circle. The grass of the small terraced garden behind their house is already green, and the drawing room was filled with bowls of red roses, pale lavender sweet peas, and one tall vase of flame colored gladioli.

Green and yellow, the colors of spring, were in the dining room. Against the pale green walls were two enormous clusters of forsythia, and the long brocaded curtains at the windows further carried out this sunny shade.

THOUGH Mr. Southgate may be sent any minute to London or Paris as European representative of Pan-American Airways, Mrs. Southgate intends to remain here until their children finish school in June. Yesterday Mr. Southgate flew bac kfrom a trip to New York on the new transatlantic clipper.

Conservation yesterday was not limited to hair and clothes, but ranged from Hitler's latest coup to music and books. Naturally the falling apart of Czecho-Slovakia is of great interest to Washington just now, not only for general reasons, but because everybody is very fond of the Czech Minister and Mme. Hurban, and wonders what they will do now.

MRS. STANLEY REED wore a becoming black dress and hat to match trimmed with pale pink velvet ribbon. Mme. Peter, wife of the Swiss Minister, was in powder blue wool, with a clip of brilliants at the neck, and a small black tricorne. Mme. Rapamaitri, wife of the Siamese Minister, and one of the prettiest and best turned out women in Washington, wore a smart black redingote frock with a flared skirt and a smart peaked straw hat. Also in black was Mme. Lombard, wife of the Military Attache of the French Embassy, and incidentally one of the best informed women on European affairs. And no wonder, when one considers that she reads every day three American newspapers, two French, and two English.

THE only wimple we have ever liked decorated the hat worn by Mrs. Theodore Achilles. It was sapphire blue, and matched her dress. Others present were Mrs. James M. Helm, Mrs. Gilbert Hitchcock, Mrs. Nathan Wyeth, in a smart black dress and tiny hat trimmed with pastel-colored ostrich tips; Mrs. Edwin Watson, wife of the President's new secretary and former military aide, Col. Watson, and Miss Mary Marshall.

WHEN Mrs. Walter Dillingham and her debutante daughter, Betty Lou, arrive about the first of the month, their address will be 1801 F street. They will stop with Mrs. Robert Low Bacon and her daughters, Martha and Virginia. Mrs. Dillingham is in Florida at present, and the debutante is visiting in New York.

DINING the other evening at a legation which is observing official mourning, we learned for the first time how much red tape and protocol, to say nothing of expense, is involved when the members of the diplomatic corps have to observe it, as so many have this winter. First, there is the canceling of all formal social engagements, with the exception of parties at the White House, which are never declined. The diplomat's wife has to order black bordered stationery and calling cards and of course, black clothes, even down to stockings of this somber shade. For semi-mourning she has to stock up with whites, lavenders, etc. Dinners she and her husband give must be limited (in this particular legation) to 12 guests, and black tie is stipulated. And all because of the death of someone whom, probably, neither have ever even seen.

OF INTEREST to the many friends here of Mrs. Huston Rawls, of Far Hills, N. J., will be the news that her son, John W. Pitney, has just been awarded the M. Taylor Pyne honor prize at Princeton. This is given annually to the senior who, in the opinion of the president, dean, and college secretary, has maintained the best scholareship and has the qualities best fitted to represent Princeton. Mr. Pitney's talents are not limited to scholarship, as he is also captain of the varsity crew.

His young half-brother, 4-year-old Bill Rawls, is visiting his grandmother, Mrs. John R. Williams, for a few weeks. He can hardly wait for Mrs. Williams' "bundle tea" at the Thrift Shop this afternoon, as he has gathered together all the presents he got last Christmas and is going to take them down in person.

Mrs. Drum Is Honor Guest

Mrs. Hugh A. Drum, wife of Maj. Gen. Drum, who was recently placed in command of the Second Corps area, with headquarters at Governor's Island, was guest of honor at a luncheon given yesterday at the Ambassador Hotel in New York by Mrs. Nevil Monroe Hopkins of that city.

Among the other guests were Mrs. Reginald Rowan Belknap, wife of Rear Admiral Belnap, U. S. N., retired; Mrs. Walter Damrosch, Mrs. William Seaman Bainbridge, Lady Suzanne Wilkins, Mrs. Vernon Ashley Sparks, Mrs. Robert Morris Phillips, Mrs. William Barton Chapin, Mrs. George Julian Zolnay, and Mrs. Charles A. W. Brocklebank, wife of the newly appointed rector of St. Mark's Church in New York.

Mrs. Allen Ellender Ranking Guest for Fashion Luncheon

Mrs. Allen J. Ellender, wife of Senator Ellender, will be the ranking guest in Mrs. A. Martin Logan's party at the fashion luncheon at the Shoreham tomorrow.

In another group of Congressional wives who will attend the fashion luncheon will be Mrs. D. Worth Clark, wife of Senator Clark, and Mrs. Scott W. Lucas, wife of Senator Lucas. In this luncheon party, the officers of the Seventy-fourth Congressional Club for 1938 will entertain for the officers of the club for 1937 and the officers for 1939.

The group will include Mrs. Hugh Peterson, Mrs. Emmet O'Neal, Mrs. Aaron Lane Ford, Mrs. Harry B. Coffee, Mrs. Phil Ferguson, Mrs. John Houston Tolan, Mrs. Orville Zimmerman, Mrs. William W. Blackney, Mrs. Jack Nichols and Mrs. John M. Houston.

Mrs. Drury to Give Holiday Luncheon

Mrs. Peter A. Drury will entertain at a large St. Patrick's Day luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel. Among the guests will be Mrs. Robert Brennan, wife of the Minister of Eire.

The Minister left yesterday for Chicago where he will be guest of honor at a St. Patrick's dinner given by the Irish Fellowship Society this evening. Mr. Brennan will return to Washington either Sunday afternoon or Monday morning.

On Tuesday, he will be guest of honor at a luncheon given by the Women's National Press Club. The club luncheon at which he was to be feted last Tuesday was postponed.

Daughter Is Born To C. A. Macatees. 3d

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Macatee, 3d, are receiving congratulation on the birth of a daughter, Marianee Cambron Macatee, at St. Luke's Hospital in Chicago on March 13. Mr. Macatee is the son of Mrs. M. C. Macatee, of Chevy Chase, Md.

Betrothal Announced

Countess Raoul d'Adhemar announces the engagement of her daughter, Betty Barnhill, to Chauncy Robert Clark, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Chauncy R. Clark, of Miami Beach, Fla. The wedding will take place in the spring.

The Pastorizas Give Sendoff For Mission to Their Country

U. S. Group Leaves for Dominican Republic to Inspect Site for Memorial to Christopher Columbus

By Elizabeth Henney.

There was a clip-clip of high heels across marble halls of the Dominican Legation yesterday from late afternoon until far into the evening, a tinkle of glasses in the reception rooms upstairs, and deep appreciation of the well-filled banquet board in the dining room. For the Dominican Minister and Senora Pastoriza were giving a farewell party.

It was a sendoff for the Goodwill Mission, headed by Senator Theodore F. Green, member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and Representative Hamilton Fish, of the House Foreign Relations Committee, who left this morning at 3:05 a. m. for the Dominican Republic. On a chartered car, they are speeding toward Miami, where they will arrive tomorrow and board a chartered clipper for Ciudad Trujillo.

The purpose of the mission is to inspect the site granted by the Dominican Republic for the proposed memorial to Christopher Columbus, which will symbolize peace and unity among the 21 Pan American nations.

The mission will attend special ceremonies in the Cathedral of Santo Domingo Sunday morning, where the casket containing the remains of Christopher Columbus will be opened. Official photographs will be made for the first time, and the event will be broadcast over an international hookup at 11:30.

The Minister and Senora de Pastoriza received the guests in the large flower banked drawing room of the legation. Senora de Pastoriza was wearing a dinner gown of black embroidered in a design of white, with touches of green at the neckline. Her only ornament was a diamond pin.

Senator Green was unable to attend, having already left for Miami, where he will join the party tomorrow. Representative and Mrs. Hamilton Fish arrived late in the evening, accompanied by Richard Chatfield Taylor, son of the former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, Wayne Chatfield Taylor.

Noted among the guests were the Ecuadorean Ambassador, Capitan Colon Eloy Alfaro; James Lenox Banks, jr., George Djamgaroff, Daniel Del Solar, James Austin, Robert Dixon, John Herrmann, Dan Russell, Thomas McAvoy, Eleanor Early, Prince Kyul Shercatoff, Dr. Lee S. Rowe, director general of the Pan American Union, and Mr. and Mrs. Willard F. Barber, division of the American republics, Department of State.

Also, Mr. and Mrs. Brian Bell, Mr. and Mrs. Andrus Berding, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bomar, Mr. and Mrs. David Fernsler, Mr. and Mrs. William Manger, of the Pan American Union; Mr. and Mrs. John C. O'Donnell, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lepidus, Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Wilson and many others.

Prince Colonna Arrives in U. S.

The Counselor of the Italian Embassy, Guiseppe Cosmelli, and Count Leone Fumasoni-Biondi, Italian press representative here, met the new Italian Ambassador, Prince Colonna, when the liner Conte de Savoia arrived in New yesterday. The boat was delayed by storms.

The Ambassador is expected to come to Washington shortly. He was originally scheduled to arrive last January, but was delayed by illness of Princess Colonna, who did not accompany him.

Martha Powell, Mr. Brasch Wed

With Bishop Edwin H. Hughes of the Methodist Church assisting, and their own parish pastor officiating, Miss Martha Powell, daughter of Mrs. Milton Pinkney Powell and the late Mr. Powell, and Maxwell Frederick Brasch, jr., were married yesterday morning. The ceremony took place at the chapel of the Methodist Building, at 11 a. m. and the Rev. Orris G. Robinson of Calvary Methodist Church, officiated.

The bride wore a tailored suit of aquamarine wool, with a small flowered, veil hat, and new earth accessories. Her corsage was of orchids. She was unattended and there was no best man.

Following the ceremony, the couple left by motor for a honeymoon in the South. They will live in Washington.

The bride is a graduate of Martin College, Pulaski, Tenn., and Mr. Brasch attended George Washington University.

Mrs. Sheppard Returning Here

Mrs. Morris Sheppard is expected to return tomorrow after being away from Washington for two weeks. She accompanied Senator Sheppard to Florida, where they spent a brief time in Miami, Fla., before he came back to Washington.

From Florida, Mrs. Sheppard went on to New Orleans, where she christened a ship early this week. She has been visiting friends and relatives in the South since then.

Richard Hawkinses To Leave Soon For Vancouver

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hawkins will leave soon for Vancouver, where the former has been assigned as vice consul. Mrs. Hawkins is the former Miss Christine Ekengren, whose late father was Minister of Sweden.

Another leaving soon for a foreign post is Ogden Hammond, jr., who will serve as vice consul at Vienna. Mr. Hammond, who attended foreign service school here, is the brother of Countess Roberti of the Italian Embassy.

Tom Wailes, who has been serving as second secretary at the United States Embassy in Brussels, is to be assigned to duty in the State Department and is expected to arrive early next month.

Daughter Visiting Carlton Holdreges

Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Holdrege have as their guest for several weeks their daughter, Mrs. A. R. Lawton 3d, of Savannah, Ga., and her 4-months-old son, Alexander Lawton, IV. Mrs. Lawton has many friends here, where she formerly resided, and is being widely feted.

Mrs. Holdrege started off the festivities with a tea for her daughter on Wednesday afternoon. Among those who called to pay their respects were Mrs. Robert Chambers, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Chambers, Jr., Rear Admiral and Mrs. Mark Bristol, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Prentiss Coonley, Mrs. William S. Culbertson, Mrs. Gilbert Hitchcock, Mrs. McCeney Werlich, Mrs. John Dwight, Mrs. Demarest Lloyd, and Mrs. Thomas Cowell.

Dancing Club To Be Feted

Mrs. Parker West has issued invitations to a luncheon on Tuesday, April 11, in honor of Mrs. William Bankhead, wife of the Speaker of the House. The party will be held in her apartment at 2101 Connecticut avenue.

Tonight Mrs. West will entertain at a dinner in honor of the ladies of the committee for the Friday Evening Dancing Club, of which she has been secretary and treasurer for 15 years. Later the guests will go to the dance, which is to be held at the Willard.

Ladies on the committee are Senora de Pastoriza, wife of the Dominican Minister; Senora de Recinos, wife of the Guatemalan envoy; Mrs. William King, Mrs. Ralph Brewster, Mrs. Ralph Church, Mrs. Charles Riggs and Mrs. William S. Culbertson.

Mrs. Newell Ellison and Mrs. Dale Drain will also give dinners before the dance tonight. The next meeting of the club will be held April 14, and the final one is scheduled for May 5.

Mrs. David Shanks Gives Luncheon at Army-Navy Club

Mrs. David C. Shanks, wife of Maj. Gen. Shanks, entertained yesterday at luncheon at the Army-Navy Club in Washington.

Chamberlin, Miss Annie Ward, Mrs. Robert Walsh, jr., Mrs. Paul Body, Mrs. William Taylor Clark, Mrs. Robert Walsh, sr., Mrs. Edwin T. Brookmiller, Mrs. William E. Malloy, Mrs. Robert Kelton and Mrs. E. Winter.

Mrs. Walter F. George Entertains At Luncheon for Mrs. Brock

Climaxing the round of parties recently centering around Mrs. William E. Brock, wife of the former Senator from Tennessee, Mrs. Walter F. George yesterday entertained at a large luncheon for her at the Mayflower Hotel.

Mrs. John Nance Garner, Mrs. William B. Bankhead and Mrs. Hugo Black were in the company of 69, seated at tables for eight. Favors, handmade by the hostess, were attractive little jardinieries, filled with candy and sprouting miniature blossoms.

Luncheon partners found each other by matching numbers of candy pieces in their favors; and progressing from one table to another was negotiated by means of matching parts of printed cards bearing such familiar sayings as "All's well that ends well" and "Journeys end in lovers meetings."

After the second course, guests found partners for dessert and coffee by searching out those who had either the question or answer part of a conundrum. Centerpieces of spring flowers decorated the tables.

Among those present, in addition to the ones already mentioned, were a number of hostesses from the Senate set, including Mrs. Alben W. Barkley, Mrs. Pat Harrison, Mrs. Ellison D. Smith, Mrs. Josiah W. Bailey, Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis, Mrs. Warren Austin, Mrs. Bennet C. Clark, Mrs. Guy M. Gillette, Mrs. John Bankhead, Mrs. Sherman Minton, Mrs. Alva Adams, Mrs. John H. Overton, Mrs. Frederick Van Nuys, Mrs. James H. Hughes, Mrs. Edward Burke, Mrs. D. Worth Clark, Mrs. Lister Hill and Mrs. Allen J. Ellender.

Representatives' wives there were Mrs. Schuyler Otis Bland, Mrs. Fritz Lanham, Mrs. W. Ben Gibbs, Mrs. Malcom C. Tarver, Mrs. Eugene Cox, Mrs. Hugh Peterson, Mrs. Frank W. Boykin, Mrs. Thomas F. Ford.

Still others there included Mrs. Wilton J. Lambert, who entertained at a small, informal dinner for Mrs. Brock last evening; Mrs. Jack Hayes, Mrs. O. Max Gardner, Mrs. Daniel C. Roper and Mrs. Ernest Daniels.

Mrs. Hugo Black will give a luncheon today in compliment to Mrs. Brock, who is the house guest of Mrs. George.

2 Authors Guests of Pen Women

Ethel Hueston
Mrs. J. A. Mendelson
Address Book
Review Luncheon

By Jessie Ash Arndt.
The Post Club Editor.

Politics in America and Americans learning the Chinese language in China were the subjects of the books discussed yesterday by their authors at the monthly book review luncheon of the D. C. branch of the National League of American Pen Women. Mrs. Randolph Blinn, who is known to her readers as Ethel Hueston, and Mrs. J. A. Mendelson, lately of Tientsin, China, were the guest authors. The luncheon was at the league's studio in the Grafton Hotel.

Mrs. Mendelson made only a short talk, devoting it entirely to her usual textbook, recently published in China, "An Improved Method of Learning Chinese." Mrs. Mendelson, who with her husband came to Washington to reside only a short time ago after 10 years, residence in the Orient, told the Pen Women her book grew out of her own experience in learning the language. She had determined when she first went to the Far East that she would learn to speak Chinese, she said. With the best teacher she could secure and dilligent study it was two years before she could speak fluently.

The difficulty, she said, lies in the fact that one word may have half a dozen meanings and these are indicated by the inflection of the voice. Her mastery of the language resulted in her making many friendships with the Chinese people which would not otherwise have been possible. Keenly aware of the obstacles which she had been oblibed to overcome in her study and the advantages of knowing the language, she wrote the textbook to make it easier for other English-speaking people to follow in her footsteps.

Political Campaign Basis of Book

Mrs. Blinn reviewed briefly her twenty-seventh novel, "The Honorable Uncle Lancy," for which motion picture rights have already been sold.

It is a departure from anything she has ever written, she told her audience, and followed last summer's political campaign from the beginning to election night. The book was inspired by the remarks of a Senator's wife, she said, who gave her the idea that women are much more obvious in their politics than men.

In order to gather authentic material on campaign procedure, she followed those in nearby Maryland and Virginia closely all summer. One of the phrases in her book, she said, was borrowed from Mrs. Millard E. Tydings, wife of Senator Tydings. Practically every reporter who interviewed Mrs. Tydings asked the question, "Are your interested in politics?" and was given the same answer: "Oh, no, one politician in the family is enough."

Spring Setting For Luncheon

Spring hats, spring flowers and sunshine pouring in the long south windows of the Pen Women's studio combined in a bright setting for the luncheon. It was served from two buffet tables where green predominated in the color scheme. Chairs were arranged in informal groups for members and their guests and the program followed the luncheon.

Mrs. Theodore Tiller, chairman of the book review luncheons and founder of them some years ago, presided and introduced the speakers. Her sister, Mrs. Philip Clancy, a member of the New York branch of the league, was in charge of hospitality. Mrs. Inez Sheldon Tyler, president of the District branch; Mrs. Tomas Cajigas, national chairman of hospitality, and Mrs. Nell V. Smith, president of the Professional Writers Club, were among those who attended.

Women's City Club Stages Bridge Party

Miss Huff to Lecture

The local chapters of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority will sponsor Miss Lyda Huff, international field executive, who will present movies of Hawaii and will speak on "Life and Customs in Hawaii" at the Claridge Hotel, 820 Connecticut avenue northwest, Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. She is to discuss her trip to Honolulu with the Pan-Pacific Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi as well as her stay on the islands. During her trip, she installed the Hawaii Alpha Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi.

Madame Chairman

By Suzanne

MRS. WILLIS J. NOLAN, an active member of the art section of the Woman's Club of Chevy Chase, and Mrs. Nolan, have as their guest at their home in Somerset, Md., her sister, Miss Zirka Mala, who arrived 10 days ago from Prague to make her home in this country. Miss Mala speaks English fluently and is a writer, having not only written children's stories and articles for magazines in her country, but also translated several books from English into the Czech language.

She is a musician as well, playing both the violin and piano.

Miss Mala left Prague just three weeks ago, stopping in England for a short visit before sailing for this country. She had no comment to make on developments since she left her homeland, except to express concern for the relatives and friends who are still there.

Mr. and Mrs. Nolan have issued cards to a tea at which they will entertain in honor of Miss Mala Sunday afternoon from 3 to 6.

DR. CHARLES EDWARD RUSSELL was speaker yesterday morning at the March meeting of the Women's Guild of Sibley Memorial Hospital, discussing what is being done for the Jews in Palestine. Mrs. S. A. Moores, president of the guild, presided. The program also included devotionals led by the Rev. Samuel E. Rose, of McKndree Methodist Church and songs by his daughter, Miss Winifred Rose, accompanied by her mother.

Hostesses from McKendree Church were: Mrs. George Simon, Mrs. Arthur Cecil, Mrs. Edna Koontz, Mrs. Mary Brandt, Mrs. Elizabeth Neuroh, Mrs. Rose, Mrs. Fred Koleman, Mrs. Eula Bryan, Mrs. Soper, Mrs. May Green, Mrs. Edith Green, Mrs. Charles Sutton.

MRS. ROBERT L. HORNER and Mrs. J. E. Saugstad have been added to the membership of the board of governors of Opportunity House, the president, Arthur Clarendon Smith, has announced.

MRS. LUCRETIA DEL VALLE GRADY, Democratic national committeewoman from California, will speak Wednesday at a luncheon meeting of the Seventy-Fourth Club at the Kennedy-Warren, at 12:30. Dressed in a costume which belonged to her great grandmother, she will tell of old Spanish California, talking on the subject, "It's an Old Spanish Custom."

A business meeting at 11:30 will precede the luncheon. Mrs. Phil Ferguson, president of the club, will preside.

Mrs. Murdoch To Give Address

Mrs. John R. Murdock, wife of Representative Murdock of Arizona, will address the education luncheon of Beta Chapter of Phi Delta Gamma, fraternity for graduate women students, at its luncheon tomorrow at 1:15, in the Parrot Tea Room, Twentieth and R streets northwest.

Formerly a teacher at Phoenix College, Mrs. Murdock is well-informed in education, and is working on her doctor's degree at George Washington University in addition to her duties as secretary of the Congressional Women's Club and Washington correspondent of the Phoenix Republican.

Dr. Esther C. Brunauer, associate in international education of the A. A. U. W., a member of Gamma Chapter, will be the other guest speaker.

In recognition of their work in education of a broad civic nature, the following members of Phi Delta Gamma will be guests of honor, also: Miss Elizabeth Haney of Alpha Chapter, general secretary of the Y. W. C. A.; Miss Marjorie Webster of Alpha, president of the Women's City Club and the Webster School; and Miss Elsie E. Green of Beta Chapter, vice president of the Washington branch of the A. A. U. W. in charge of its education program.

Anniversary Dinner Is Held By Girl Scouts

Exhibits of Work By Local Troops Are Seen at Y. W. C. A.

More than 150 Girl Scout leaders, council and committee members attended the dinner held last night at the Y. W. C. A., celebrating the twenty-seventh anniversary of the national organization. Exhibits of work by the local scouts under the revised program which has been followed this year, transformed Barker Hall of the "Y. W." into an appropriate Girl Scout setting.

Miss Dorothy Davidson, executive director of the District of Columbia Girl Scouts, presided, and Mrs. William Floyd Crosby, the commissioner, brought birthday wishes.

Mrs. Maury Middleton, chairman of the program committee, told of the progress made during the year in carrying out the revised Girl Scout program. The ten fields it covers are out-of-doors, home making, health and safety, nature, arts and crafts, music and dancing, dramatics and literature, which is the new division; sports and games, international friendship, and community relations.

The program as now set up includes additional activities within certain fields and allows the girls more selection in working for their badges, Mrs. Middleton pointed out.

Among the many exhibits were nature notebooks with leaf prints and a group of costume designs done by girls of troops in District 4 of which Mrs. J. R. Dethrage is president of the leaders' association.

The birthday cake, a huge artificial one on which 27 candles burned, was the centerpiece for the head table and had been made by the leaders of District 2, headed by Mrs. LeRoy Barton. Other leaders' association presidents who were present and brought greetings, included Mrs. Hazel Walker, Mrs. L. H. Warren and Miss Minnie Mahler.

Another feature of the program was a demonstration of English country dancing by a group of the leaders, under the direction of Miss Helen Seth-Smith, a former member of the British Girl Guides.

Huguenot Society Meets Tomorrow

The Huguenot Society of Washington will hold its final social meeting of the season tomorrow night at the Arts Club on Eye street, when the members will enjoy "A Tour Through Washington Cathedral." The talk illustrated with slides of some of the newest features of the great edifice, will be given by Mrs. Catherine B. Strong, one of the Cathedral Aides.

The members of the society are especially interested in this topic as it is planned to place a memorial tablet to the great Huguenot leader, Admiral Gaspard de Coligny, in the Cathedral in April, when the local organization will be host to a meeting of the Federation of Huguenot Societies in America, April 14 and 15.

There will be a business session at the Mayflower Hotel on Saturday morning, April 15, followed by a luncheon and program. Mrs. Frank B. Steele, is president of the local society and in charge of the arrangements. Lawrence Leonard is president general.

Winner Announced In Essay Contest

Miss Josephine Walsh, grand regent of Court District of Columbia, Catholic Daughters of America, has announced Miss Marjorie Beauchamp, of 2919 North Capitol street, a Junior Catholic Daughter and a student of Immaculate Conception Academy, winner in the essay contest sponsored by the national office of the organization. The essay was entitled "Aims and Purposes of the Catholic Daughters of America as applied to Catholic Action."

Miss Beauchamp as the local winner, receives the award of Court District of Columbia, of one week's visit in the summer to the Little Flower camp in the Pocono mountains, Pennsylvania. Her essay will also, be entered in the national contest.

BILL WERBER IS SOLD TO CINCINNATI

Four Games Tonight in Post Cage Tourney

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Orlando, Fla., March 16.—Just when your correspondent was wearying of the same faces in the Washington training camp—and vice versa, no doubt—and wondering where his next column was coming from, who should drop out of the clouds but V. Gomez.

POVICH

But let us set you straight lest you get the idea that Senor Gomez is the latest scouting triumph of Joe Cambria who, in behalf of the Nats, has been denuding the Spanish-speaking countries of everything under 40 years of age that ever threw a baseball. This Gomez is sometimes known as Lefty, better known as El Goofy and better known as Mr. June O'Dea.

He was holding down the sidewalk in front of the Nats' hotel with the not-to-be-despised help of Rene Monteagudo and Big Joe Krakauskas, when your correspondent happened on the little company. It was enough to send a startling thought rattling through what we are pleased to call our mind. Had Clarke Griffith swung a trade, else what was Gomez doing in these parts, so far off his beat.

Suppressing a temptation to greet Gomez with the old stand-by to the effect that we were glad to see him with the Nats and knew that he'd like to work for Bucky Harris, we said simply, "hello, Lefty," and "whaddayaknow?" He had indeed dropped from the clouds. Came in on a night flight from the Yankees' camp at St. Pete to make connections on a thorough plane for New York, where Miss O'Dea, his wife, was in a lying-in hospital.

Lefty Was Expected in Cuba

That's what he said as he playfully ruffled the curly and brilliant black locks of little Monteagudo and poked the Cuban in his protruding tummy. "You're a disgrace to us left-handers, Shorty," he was saying. "We're supposed to be tall and skinny and a little nuts. You look like a successful businessman with that paunch on you."

"Never mind," said Monte, "some people fat, some people skinny. Why yo no come to Cuba last winter? Everybody look for you. Everybody think you come to Cuba right away."

"Cuba; what'n'll do I want to go to Cuba for? That's the jumping off place. Who was looking for me, anyway?"

"In Cuba everybody look for you lass winter," said Monteagudo. "Newspapers say you come to Cuba because your father die in Havana. Jose Gomez big man in Cuba."

"Ho, ho, that's it," exclaimed Gomez. "I was wondering what it was all about down there. I'm pitching the second game of the World Series at Chicago when I get a wire telling me my father is dead in Cuba and offering me condolences."

"Jose Gomez not your father?" asked Monteagudo incredulously.

"Naw, I never heard of that gink. Don't know where that story started. But it sure got around. I knew my father pretty well. He died four years ago. How you doing with your pitching, Monte?"

The little Cuban shrugged his shoulders. "Sometimes gude, sometimes no gude. Curve ball hokay, fast ball no gude. Throw fast ball to Jeemy Foxx lass year, poof! home run, jeeze."

"Don't worry about that, Monte," laughed Lefty. "I throw Jeemy Foxx fast ball last year, too, and—poof! home run. It was a pip. Landed in the third deck of the lef-field bleachers in Yankee Stadium and those seats up there are 60 feet high. Against the wind, too."

Ten Million Pesos

Said Monteagudo: "Jeeze." And then he looked at Gomez again with incredulity written all over his features. "Jose Gomez who die in Havana not your father; no, you say?"

"Naw, never heard of him 'till I got that telegram telling me he died. When you go back to Cuba straighten that out for me. I had a very good father. Who was this Jose Gomez, anyway?"

"Jose Gomez, o-o-o-oh, big man in Cuba. Rich man. When he die he have 10,000,000 pesos. You know what Jeemy Foxx say to me when he heet home run? He stop at second base and he say, 'how you like that, Shorty?'"

"Never mind about Jimmy Foxx," said Gomez. "Tell me some more about this Jose Gomez, who died in Cuba. He left 10,000,000 pesos, no kidding?"

"Sure, 10,000,000 pesos. Big man in Cuba. Papers say you coming to Cuba for your father's funeral. You no come, everybody cannot understand. Now I understand. I listen on radio when you beat Cubs in World Series. I say Gomez, he mucho grando peetcher."

"Never mind about the Cubs and the World Series. What I want to know is more about this Jose Gomez who died in Cuba, and left all that dough," said Lefty. "I'm not so sure he was a total stranger. You never can tell."

On the Line

With Considine

New York, March 16.—Unless a couple of the dumb, but willing, stooges are collared and told just what a serious thing they are doing, the next "Black Sox" scandal will erupt in college basketball.

By and large, of course, the game is as honest as Abraham Lincoln and a majority of the country's players would slug any gambler who tried to buy them out. But by the same token, so was (and is) baseball—yet a handful of squealing gamblers and a few weak-willed or chronically crooked players gave the sport a coating of mud that 20 years have failed to erase completely.

CONSIDINE

Broadway gamblers of the cheap blue-shirt set, who change their names more often than their collars, are making no effort to conceal the fact that they made a lot of money this past season, betting that this or that team would win by a certain number of points. Most of the gambling on college court games is based on points, rather than the outcome of the game. Odds are never 6-to-5, or any other familiar coupling of numbers, separated by the word "to." Instead they run like 3-6, or 4-9, which means that the gambler and his sucker have agreed that one team must win by three points and the other by at least six. Or four and nine, if that is the bet.

Looked Upon as Clean Swindle

The gamblers look upon this as a clean swindle, in keeping with the amateur spirit of the college court game. They point out that they never ask their friends on the contaminated team actually to throw a game—as the betting ring persuaded the 1919 White Sox to chuck games to the Reds. All they want is an assurance that the game will be won by a certain definite number of points. The action is swift and the competition often hotter than it probably has a right to be. And the suckers, often students with more loyalty than perspicacity, are neatly shorn.

College basketball has become much more of a gambling game than Dr. Naismith and the schools intended it to become. Particularly is this true in New York, though of course it isn't confined to this location. However, we have developed a certain breed of small-time slick-haired gambler here who is cruelly hurting the game. His office is a bit of curbstone in front of a Broadway fruit-juice spigot. He has found a parasitical living off the hide of a good clean game, and he is so pleased over having degraded a small portion of it that he is bragging about his conquest—apparently not knowing that every time he opens his yap he, and his player-friends, come a little closer to being pitched out of bounds by wave of public indignation.

Baseball's Gain Is Politics' Loss

Walter Johnson's return to baseball, by way of the radio, puts at least a temporary end to a promising political career. The Republicans elected him a Maryland State commissioner last November. Columbia Broadcasting System bought him up to broadcast the games of the Washington Senators because of the great gap left down there when Arch McDonald, the best in the business, was signed to drawl the doings of the Yanks and Giants.

McDonald's $7,800 per annum is $300 more than Joe DiMaggio earns. But then Arch won't cut in the melon slicing after the Yanks win their fourth straight pennant.

Also affected by the general shuffling of sports broadcasters, over the assignment of baseball radio broadcasts, is Bill McCormick, the former Washington Post boxing editor who has been ably publicizing the work of the American Wildlife Institute. McCormick is in line for an important sports post with National Broadcasting Co.

Another Million Poured Into Sailing Game

Harold Stirling Vanderbilt, the Tom Yawkey of sailing, will kiss a million bucks goodbye some time soon when he launches his new medium-sized racing yacht—Vim. When she touches water it will mean, beyond a shadow of doubt, that his fabulous gold and white Ranger is forever through and that until it is incurably swaybacked it will rest in the graveyard of America's Cup defenders at Bristol, R. I. Ranger, equipped with her rayon sails, on of which was the biggest in the entire history of sailing, represented an investment of $1,000,000.

The New York Yacht Club estimated not long ago that it would cost $50,000 to condition her for a summer of sailing. She was officially used for only four days, in August of 1937, when she beat T. O. M. Sopwith's Endeavour II in what probably will be the last defense of the America's Cup for many, many years.

Vanderbilt and Sopwith are the only two men in the world with enough interest in sailing to revive the America's Cup competition. And now each has built a smaller craft and turned his back on those fabled class 's—whose dizzy depreciation is unprecedented in the realm of sports finance.

New Mexico Five Unable To Appear

Aggies Held Over in New York for Second Game; Will Perform Here Next Week

(Schedule on Page 26.)

Washington basketball fans will have to wait until next week to watch the crack New Mexico Aggies who gave the Long Island University five the fight of its life in Madison Square Garden last Wednesday night. Due to the great showing of the Cowboy tossers, who tied the score 15 times on what is considered America's greatest court combination, the Aggies have been held over for an exhibition on Monday night in the Garden. Hence, they will be unable to meet the United Typewriter-Dapper Dans at Eastern High gym tonight.

Instead, the District A. A. U. championship tournament will be resumed with a four-game program which will mark appearances of both the Dapper Dans and the Delaware and Hudson, two of Washington's outstanding basketball groups. The Dapper Dans, led by Jack Butterworth, Bill Noonan and Ollie Tipton, will play a second-round game against the York Haberdashers.

Real Action Looms

The Yorks will be in a battling mood, too. They didn't like the idea of New Mexico Aggies stepping into the picture to play the Dapper Dans and they promise the tournament favorites some real action. In fact, the Yorks are in position to scrap Dapper Dan as an opponent for the Cowboys. If the Yorks should down their better known rivals, the A. A. U. basketball committee will have to look around for another club to send against the Aggies.

Delaware and Hudson, fresh from its triumph over FBI which gave it the Heurich Amateur League championship, hopes to advance another notch in the District titular race by downing the Merrick Boys Club five. Merrick drew a bye in the first round and has known for some time that D. and H. would be its foe. The coach and players have been scouting the Heurich champions and may have a surprise up their sleeves tonight.

Two Fast Games

Two fast 135-pound games are on the card. The show opens with the Merrick and Alexandria Boys Clubs clashing. At 8 p. m. the Southeast and Northeast Boys Club are due to battle. This will be the first tournament appearance for each of these teams.

Getting back to the New Mexico Aggies, the players average well over 6 feet in height and play a quick-breaking game. New York accounts of their battle with Long

Little Hoyas Enter League Competition

Georgetown Prep Golf Team Passes Up D. C. Links Schedule

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

Georgetown Preparatory School, birthplace of scholastic golf in this section and the stamping ground of many District and Eastern state linksmen who have gained national reknown, will end golf relations with high and prep schools in this area in an attractive schedule to be released next week.

Frank Emmet, general manager of the Wisconsin avenue school and the sponsor of virtually all scholastic golf activity here over a period of years, announced yesterday that the school will play in a league patterned after the Eastern Intercollegiate League, in competition with private schools in virtually every state north of Washington.

The sporty nine-hole course, made a real test of golf last year with added distance, hazards and other improvements, will be open to matches between teams in the Metropolitan Scholastic Golf League but the Little Hoyas will not schedule a single school closer than Woodberry Forest in the '39 schedule.

Emmet's team will play in a section of the league with Hill School of Pottstown, Pa., and two New Jersey institutions, Lawrenceville and Peddie. Four other schools, Hotchkiss and Choate of Connecticut, Groton of Massachusetts and Exeter, New Hampshire, will play in the other half, with the winners meeting for the title.

Other schools, not in conference competition, scheduled by the Preps ters include Shadyside Academy, Pittsburgh, St. Christophers of Richmond, St. James, Hagerstown, Loyola of New York and Woodberry Forest. The locals will also play in the Eastern championships June 26-28 in Grenwich, Conn.

It will be easily the most difficult schoolboy schedule ever attempted by local golfers, but headed by Jack Brayer, Auburn, N. Y. junior star, the Georgetown boys will be ready. Bill Dougherty, Houston, Texas, Ernest Sullivan, Philadelphia and Bob Higgins, Duluth, probably will compose the other members of the first four.

Bishop McDonnell, New York City, and two local boys, Paul Stewart and Jack Powell, of Columbia Country Club, will battle for the remaining team berths. It will be the first team in the school's history without an accent on the local players.

Rev. Robert P. Arthur, headmaster at Georgetown Prep, has placed an accent on athletic competition with out-of-town schools, and thus the Little Hoyas withdraw from the local school golf picture, that would probably be a disorganized one if it had not been for the efforts of Emmet along with Maury Nee, Billy Dettweiler, Frank Allan, and many others of the Prep School.

Emmet will assist with the local golf league, in co-operation with Birch Bayh. However the Georgetown Prep School Invitation Tournament will be abandoned.

Mack Peddles Star Holdout For $25,000

Transaction Involves Only Cash; Weber to Replace Lew Riggs On the 'Hot Corner'

By the Associated Press.

Tampa, Fla., March 16.—Bill Werber, holdout star third sacker of the Philadelphia Athletics, became the property of the Cincinnati Reds today at a reported price of $25,000.

The 30-year-old veteran, whose fleetness of foot has made him one of the leading base pilferers in the business, will take over the "hot corner" held since 1935 by the veteran but weaker-hitting Lew Riggs.

The deal, involving only cash, was taken as indication that Manager Bill McKechnie, who last year piloted the Reds from a cellar position to fourth place, has bigger things in mind for this season.

Werber's acquisition, club sources indicated, probably will mean the return of Lonnie Frey to his regular job at second base with Eddie Joost, an up-and-coming rookie, held in reserve. Billy Myers and Nolen Richardson probably will divide the shortstop trick.

Werber broke in with the New York Yankees in 1930, after periods with Toledo, Newark and Buffalo. He batted .258 in 111 games with the Yankees and Boston Red Sox in 1933. In 1934 and 1935 he hit .321 and .255, and in 1936 went to the Athletics in a deal involving Pinky Higgins.

In 123 games in 1937, he hit .292 and stole 35 bases and in 134 games last year batted .259 and stole 19.

Werber Satisfied With Sale to Reds

Wiley Bill Werber, third sacker holdout of the Philadelphia Athletics, convinced the Cincinnati Reds last night of his value and finally agreed to report for training with the Reds on Saturday.

"I got what I wanted. Everything is satisfactorily arranged," he said an hour after announcing his sale to the Reds for a reported $25,000 was off.

It took a lot of long distance telephoning and arguing before the salary offered agreed with what the polished, former Georgetown law student thought he was worth.

Connie Mack, maestro of the A's, telephoned several times from Lake Charles, La. Bill McKechnie, manager of the Reds called from Tampa, adding his arguments to that of Warren Giles, general manager.

'Red' Rolfe Signs For Reported $15,500

Sebring, Fla., March 16 (AP).—President Ed Barrow of the New York Yankees announced tonight that Robert (Red) Rolfe, the Yanks' third baseman and last holdout, had signed his contract.

Rolfe's salary was reported to be $15,500. He had been asking $17,000 because of his excellent play and .311 batting average last season. Barrow previously had offered $15,000, a raise of $1,500.

Armstrong Easily Defends 2 Titles

St. Louis, March 16 (AP).—Dynamite Henry Armstrong, his lightweight and welterweight crowns at stake, kept both and his reputation intact by blasting Brooklyn Lew Feldman in 2 minutes and 12 seconds of the first round of their title fight here tonight.

Everett Rightmire, young Sioux City, Iowa, featherweight, pounded out a clean-cut decision over Leo Rodak of Chicago in a preliminary. The fight was billed as an exhibition, although Rodak is recognized as world featherweight champion by the National Boxing Association. Rightmire weighed 127¾, Rodak 128¾.

Best Ball Play Sees Big Guns Bow in Defeat

By the Associated Press.

St. Augustine, Fla., March 16.—The first round casualty list contained a generous quota of big golfing names today as 32 teams fought a battle of birdies in the National Amateur-Professional best ball match play tournament.

Among the victims were the 1938 winners, Frank Moore, of Mamaronick, N. Y., and Bobby Dunkelberger, of High Point, N. C., who were ousted despite a gallant rally.

The medalist team—Marvin Stahl, of Lansing, Mich., and Chick Harbert, of Battle Creek, Mich.—prevailed on the nineteenth hole after Moore and Dunkelberger fired three straight birdies to square the match on the eighteenth.

The most blistering pace of the day was set by Henry Picard, of Hershey, Pa., and Frank Ford, of Charleston, S. C.—Only former winners to survive—when they scored an 11-under-par 61 to polish off Paul Bell, of Torrington, Conn., and Mel Alexander, of New York.

After whipping their opponents, 6 and 5, Picard and Ford finished out the round to hang up an official best ball course record.

Fresh from their victory in the international four-ball matches at Miami last week, Ralph Guldahl, of Madison, N. J., and Sammy Snead, of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., fared well today.

Guldahl teamed with Morton Bright, of Daytona Beach, Fla., to trim Vic Ghezzi and C. Dunphy, of Deal, N. J., 3 and 2. Snead and Al Dollins, of Covington, Va., whipped Jack Toomer, of Reidsville, N. C., and John Fletcher, of Jacksonville, 4 and 3.

Second round opponents for Snead and Dollins will be Jack Grout, of Hershey, Pa., and Maynard Ramsey, of Tampa, Fla., who were victorious today over Johnny Farrell, of Springfield, N. J., and Frank Allan, of East Pittston, Pa., 2 and 1.

Guldahl and Bright will encounter Lawson Little of San Francisco and Dick Chapman, of Greenwich, Conn. The latter team won, 2 and 1, over Clyde Usina, jr., of West Palm Beach and Walter Burkemo, of Crosse Pointe, Mich. It was the first defeat suffered this season by Burkemo, sensation of the south Florida winter amateur tournaments.

Stevens Gets Golf Post in Richmond, Ind.

Washington Pro to Will Leave Soon to Take Up New Duties

Claggett Stevens, former assistant professional at Capital and Congressional Clubs here and pro at Ponta Verda, Fla., completed arrangements yesterday with the Elks Club in Richmond, Ind., as head mentor with a satisfactory salary and complete shop concessions.

Stevens, who worked for Sandy Armour at Congressional before Roland MacKenzie took the post, was recommended by the Armour brothers, Sandy and Tommy. After a trip to Richmond to talk the matter over with club officials, Stevens was notified yesterday that he had been accepted.

He will leave within the next two weeks to be on the job April 1, with his contract expiring October 31. The Elks Club is a nine-hole course, one of the three in town, but is the closest to the heart of the city and has a full membership.

Claggett left Ponta Vedra last spring when the Congressional and Kenwood jobs were open here, and he was prominently mentioned for each. In fact, when Wiffy Cox and George Diffenbaugh were named to their respective posts, the committees made it known that Stevens was next on the list in the eyes of the executive committees.

Stevens, who lives in Rockville, Md., with his mother and brother Eddie, assistant to Al Treder at Manor, first worked for Tony Sylvester at Capital, then Bannockburn. He left to work under Sandy Armour at Congressional and stayed when MacKenzie replaced Armour. MacKenzie sent him to Ponta Verda in the summer and he alternated with the Congressional pro between the Florida post and here, and finally was named head pro at Ponta Vedra.

Always considered one of the most promising younger pros in this sector, Stevens has spent a good many winter hours on the practice tee and should make quite a name in the Mid-Western P. G. A. area.

Battle of Rookies Will Feature Nats' Exhibition Opener

By a Staff Correspondent.

Orlando, Fla., March 16.—Two much-publicized rookie pitchers, one widely exploited, the other lately heralded, will come together here Saturday when Fred Hutchinson pitches for Detroit against Washington's Roberto Ortiz. It will be Hutchinson's first start against a big league team. It will be Ortiz's first start with any kind of organized baseball club.

Hutchinson, a 25-game winner with Seattle in the Pacific Coast League last season, is considered the outstanding rookie prospect in the majors.

McCoy Kayoed By Zaharias In Mat Feature

Bibber McCoy made the mistake of throwing Babe Zaharias and counting 12 while the referee was out of the ring in the mat feature last night at Turner's Arena, and when the referee climbed back, Zaharias rose and landed a right to the jaw for the decision.

The crowd cheered McCoy for the apparent victory, but it was unofficial without the ref's count, and several seconds later Zaharias rose and made it official this time with a punch that left McCoy down for more than the needed three count. They carried the battle to the dressing room, with no harm done.

Dr. John (Dropkick) Murphy threw Gene Bowman in 22 minutes with a dropkick, while Jack Hader used only 9½ minutes in pinning Carl Ridinski with a crotch hold.

The Irishmen celebrated St. Patrick's eve. Red Ryan winning over Al Spangler in 17½ minutes with a kangaroo kick, and Paddy Mack tossing Wild Man Vim in 18 minutes with a crotch hold and body press.

Jack Hader and Red Ryan mixed it in entering and leaving the ring for their respective bouts, with the result that they will probably be matched next week. Over 1,400 fans witnessed the bouts.

A. A. U. Swim Championships Here Tonight

Jordan, Freestyle Star Among Champs At Shoreham Event

The usual stellar field of District swimmers will be on hand for the D. C. A. A. U. swimming championships, starting tonight and ending tomorrow in the Shoreham Hotel Pool.

Defending champions, including Bob Jordan, holder of all freestyle records, will compete in virtually every event. Y. M. C. A. and Shoreham will probably settle their team rivalry in the relays with Ernie Boggs and Dick Baker leading in individual points.

Ann Aronson, Helen Mills and Dorothy Steinbraker will lead the Ambassador Hotel girl's team in an effort to end Shoreham's long reign on the women's team trophy.

Earle Weeks, president of the District A. A. U. will act as starter and Max Rote, Washington Boys Club, as referee.

The Brighter Side

By Damon Runyon

Such a burst of flag waving as is now taking place on stage and screen has not been seen in these United States since the brave days of 1917. It is getting so us cash customers of the cinematic and theatrical drammer may have to spend most of our time in the halls of entertainment standing up at attention.

RUNYON

Now this is all very well, but you cannot fool us cash customers. We know that as far as the stage and screen are concerned it is just a cycle of which they are taking advantage for profit, the same as the dime novel cycle which is running nose-and-nose with the flag waving cycle at the moment.

However, us cash customers have no quarrel with the flag wavers as long as they make their flag waving entertaining. We are perfectly willing to let the flag wavers collect their profit, if any, on their exertions if they give us something worth the price of admission. If they can stir our blood, or arouse our romantic interest, or teach us historical lessons, or make us laugh, the flag wavers have done their duty by us cash customers and we can ask no more of them.

The only thing is that some of us cash customers, born of American generations that have always taken love of the flag and death in defense thereof as a matter of course, become a trifle restless when the flag wavers take on an air of superiority in their flag waving and imply that they are

Miss Happy, Donna Lopez Beaten Out

Winner Pays $9.40 In Fourth; Fifth Race Called Off as Result of Scratches

By the Associated Press.

Tropical Park, Fla., March 16.—A featureless card composed of claiming races was offered here this afternoon, with scratches again much in evidence. The fifth event, originally the carded headliner, was called off because of withdrawals and another event substituted. The track had dried out pretty well under a morning sun, but threatening clouds appeared over the course by race time.

The fourth contest, a 5½-furlong test for 3-year-olds, provided the most exciting competion of the dull afternoon. Three horses reached the wire in a photo finish, with River Divide Farm's Travel Agent barely nosing out A. L. Aste's Miss Happy. Mrs. F. Rossiter's Donna Lopez missed the place by a head.

The winner, a $9.40-for-$2 shot, piloted by "Chuck" Charlton, made the excellent time of 1:06 4-5.

W. N. Adrains' Lee S., trained by Hirsch Jacobs and ridden by Jimmy Ashcroft, leading pilot here to date, burned up considerable money when he finished fifth in the field of six shifty platers. The gelding closed at 93 cents to $1. Of the $19,654 wagered in the straight pool, $8,985 went on Lee S. Another $7,466 was lost on him in the place and show pools.

The result was in doubt until the very last stride, and then the photo verdict had to be awaited. Travel Agent and Miss Happy raced head and head all the way, with the former holding a narrow advantage into the stretch. Miss Happy, in the softest footing along the inside, stuck her head in front after passing the sixteenth pole, but Travel Agent came again in the closing strides and got the nod right on the wire. Donna Lopez moved up on the outside in the stretch as if she were going to run over the leaders. She hung after driving alongside her rivals.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LITTLE MIKE, $3.50, $3.00, $2.70; CAPE RACE, $10.40, $8.40; BOERALICE, $10.80.

LITTLE MIKE, easily the best, assumed an easy lead, was rated in front until reaching the stretch turn, where he drew out to win with something to spare. CAPE RACE, a forward contender and saving much ground the entire trip, closed stoutly, but never threatened the leader. BOERALICE, always prominent, continued gamely in the final drive and outlasted FUMBLE. The latter cut the corner entering the stretch, but could not overhaul the leaders.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place driving. Went to post 2:32. Off 2:34. Winner, E. A. Bischoff's blk. g. (5), by Hildur—The Widow Cutting. Trained by G. Gould. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23, 0:46 4-5, 1:13 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BLACK ARROW, $24.60, $11.50, $7.20; PERFECT PEACE, $9.30, $6.60; DINNER JACKET, $7.50.

BLACK ARROW gained steadily on the inside rounding the turn and shook off PERFECT PEACE when straightened into the stretch to win under mild pressure. PERFECT PEACE, vigorously urged, displayed good speed and raced REAL PLAY into defeat, drew out on the stretch turn, but was not equal to the winner when challenged. DINNER JACKET also saved much ground rounding the turn and held on gamely when the final test came to hold LADFIELD safe. The latter, permitted to settle into his stride in the opening quarter mile, moved up fast when called upon, but was carried almost to the outside fence by CHANCER. The latter faltered through the stretch.

Daily Double, Little Mike and Black Arrow, Paid $74.10.

THIRD RACE—Four furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 3:02. Off 3:05. Winner, A. Patti's b. f. (2), by Witchmount—Pantaloons. Trained by W. R. Ballee. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23, 0:48 4-5.

MAJEAN	(Ensor)	110	7	12	12	12	12		84.10

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MOUNTALOON, $37.90, $13.00, $6.00; COLORED POST, $4.90, $4.10; GAUDY, $4.30.

MOUNTALOON began swiftly, drew out into a long lead rounding the turn and was in hand the remainder of the trip, winning as his rider pleased. COLORED POST, always in closest pursuit of the leader, maintained his position with determination and held third place safe. GAUDY cut to the inside approaching the quarter-mile pole, saved much ground thereafter and outlasted COURT O' MINT in the final drive. The latter was compelled to race wide. LITTLE BOLO broke forwardly and showed speed, but bore out on the stretch turn.

FOURTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $900; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:32. Off 3:35½. Winner, River Divide Farm's ch. c. (3), by General Lee—Day Court. Trained by R. T. Shepp. Value to winner, $650; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:22 4-5, 0:46 4-5, 1:06 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TRAVEL AGENT, $9.40, $5.20, $3.80; MISS HAPPY, $7.30, $4.20; DONNA LOPEZ, $4.00.

TRAVEL AGENT, away forwardly, assumed a short lead in the early running, responded courageously when the final issue came and outstayed his opponents. MISS HAPPY, a forward contender while racing on the inside the entire trip, assumed a slight lead on the stretch turn, but could not withstand the winner's bid. DONNA LOPEZ, well up from the start, came around the leaders through the stretch, gained steadily and would have won in a few more strides. CATECHISM broke slowly and closed some ground. LEE S. moved up fast between the leaders in the opening mile and then stopped to a walk after going half mile.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:02. Off 4:04½. Winner, Darby Dan Farm's ch. f. (4), by Thundering—Fair Rosamond. Trained by H. Long. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:47, 1:13 1-5.

PEDANT	(Snider)	102½	6	×10	12	12	12	12	12	51.10

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FAIR, $5.60, $3.60, $2.90; MOSS GAL, $4.40, $3.80; WORTHING, $5.40.

FAIR, quickest to begin, raced HAPPY HOST into defeat in the early running, came wide into the stretch, but then bore over on MOSS GAL through the stretch, held her in tight quarters and just lasted. A claim of foul was lodged, but was disallowed. MOSS GAL went forwardly on the inside from the start, saved much ground entering the stretch and moved up strong, but was unable to obtain clear passage, but for which she may have won. WORTHING, well up on the outside all the way, finished with a belated rush through the stretch. LOVERNA, away slowly, closed a big gap.

SIXTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $900; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won cleverly; place driving. Went to post 4:32. Off 4:38. Winner, Snow White Stable's b. f. (3), by Burgoo King—Belittin. Trained by J. G. Wagnon. Value to winner, $650; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 0:22 3-5, 0:46, 1:06 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MODEST QUEEN, $6.00, $3.60, $3.30; FAST WORK, $22.00, $9.30; ROYAL TASTE, $3.80.

MODEST QUEEN, going in closest pursuit of the leader in the early running, came to the inside entering the stretch, moved up with determination under pressure and drew out in the final sixteenth to win. FAST WORK, slow to get going, improved his position on the outside in the last three furlongs and wore ROYAL TASTE down in the last few strides. ROYAL TASTE set a swift pace from the start, opened up a long lead, bore out slightly on the stretch turn and then faltered in the final drive. GENERAL HOWES, well up early, was carried out by ROYAL TASTE on the stretch turn and weakened.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 5:04. Off 5:05. Winner, I. Bieber's b. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PANORAMA, $4.20, $3.10, $2.80; GURKHA, $5.30, $4.20; BEAVER COUNTY, $3.90.

PANORAMA, going in close pursuit of the leader on the inside under steadying restraint, was taken to the outside leaving the backstretch, took command at her leisure and won with speed in reserve. GURKHA, hustled to the front, set a fast early pace, but was no match for the winner in the final quarter mile. BEAVER COUNTY, under extreme pressure, gradually improved his position and finished stoutly. JACK FLY came again through the stretch and wore OZARK down. The latter, well ridden, had no excuses.

EIGHTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place driving. Went to post 5:34. Off 5:35. Winner, Nat D. Levy's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BILLY'S FOLLY, $3.30, $2.90, $2.50; LOVICK, $6.70, $4.70; RITZ BROTHERS, $3.60.

BILLY'S FOLLY held her opposition safe for speed and, steadied in front until midway around the lower turn, drew out into a commanding lead when called upon, but was kept under pressure to the end. LOVICK, a trailer to the last quarter mile, gained fast on the outside the remainder of the journey and wore RITZ BROTHERS down in the final stride. RITZ BROTHERS, under strong pressure all the way, slipped through along the inner rail in the last furlong to outlast MAEBEAU. The latter bore out on the turn and faltered in the stretch.

Tropical Park, March 16.

Dear Al:

The favorite horse selector of two Post printers is Ellsworth Vines, the pro tennis champion. When Vines played Perry in Washington some months ago, these printer-tennis enthusiasts sat in the front row near the net. They began kidding Vines. One of the printers had completed the building of a court in his backyard. When Vines was close enough to hear, one fellow said to the other, "I bet I could beat him on my court." Vines turned around, scowled and remarked, "I'll take you both on at once, anytime, anywhere." A moment later, Perry cut a short toward Vines. The ball hit the top of the net, dribbled along and finally dropped on Vines' side. The pro star looked around at the printers and said, "Fancy that." The next day the Printers saw the horse Fancy That, in the entries, played him and collected $18.20 for the usual deuce. Some of the winnings went for Vines model rackets. The former Vines hecklers are now Vines rooters. I have been asked when racing began at Hialeah. The track first opened in 1925 but was closed down and reopened in 1929. It has been running since that year. The first winner at Hialeah was a horse named Braedelbane. Ivan Parks, now a successful trainer, was the jockey. In 1925, the Hialeah meeting opened with a $1,500 inaugural. At the 1929 meeting, the race was worth $5,000. There are approximately 14,000 horses ready to run during this year. No wonder a guy has a hard time picking winners. Oh, where is my wandering Mike tonight? BILL.

First race—Amercup seems well placed in this sprint for maiden 3-year-olds Gets in light and Charlton will do the booting. Saxonby turned in a nice second in that recent outing and will be close in this field. Cambreeze is likely to care for the others.

Second race—Another group of maidens makes up this event and I believe Nanahcub will be the graduate. This one has been knocking at the door and Peters will be ready to guide him home. Cream Cheese gets into action with a feather assignment and is dangerous. Veneer should be in the thick of contention.

Third race—Milk was a bang-up second in that recent effort and should improve enough to get home in this field. The weight and the route seem right. Muggins and Empty Bottle seem capable of holding the others safe.

Fourth race—Ghost Train may be the right one here. Has good races and fast trials to recommend him. Black River, despite top weight, looms as one to beat. Notice Me awoke last out and missed. Could take it all on a best effort.

Fifth race—Knight Gallant, with Meade up, should go well in this company. I'm going to string along with the combination. Co-Sport, a recent winner, is fit and ready. No Sir should make a money appearance.

Sixth race—Lady Hav, another who was second recently, gets a light package of 103 pounds and will do a lot of running. Looks like the spot. Dianapat and Stepacola to fill out the money circle.

Seventh race—Inactive has been performing consistently and has all the earmarks of a winner for Meade. What a Pal is not too highly placed and may be prominent. Rebel Yell can better that last.

Eighth race—Prince Dean, Chancing and Mine Boy is the way I prefer them in the day's finale. Ashcroft will pilot the top one and I expect no mistakes.

Best bet—Lady Hav.

Bucky Harris Pins Mound Hopes on Krakauskas and Chase

2 Southpaws Are Groomed For Opener

Nats' Pilot Plans to Give Them His Entire Time in Getting Pair Ready for Season

By Shirley Povich.
A Staff Correspondent.

Orlando, Fla., March 16.—Stanley Raymond Harris indicated today that he is wrapping the hopes of his 1939 Washington ball club squarely around the generous pitching physiques of his southpaw entry, Joe Krakauskas and Ken Chase.

Seemingly a bit distrustful of the promise of his brigade of raw rookie pitchers, the Nats' manager at the conclusion of this afternoon's workout talked chiefly of Krakauskas and Chase.

"They are the two fellows who will take us into the first division if we do break in," said Harris, "and from now on my big idea is to have them ready for the opening of the season. If Krakky and Chase fail us, I can't see anything but the second division.

Figures They Are Due

"But this ought to be their year. They ought to take us a long way. Both of those fellows should be winning pitchers, if they can find the groove. What they need most is work, and I'm going to give it to 'em, even if a lot of other pitchers on the club miss out on their turns. As long as I'm hitching my hopes to Krakauskas and Chase, I'm going to give them every chance."

The Nats' manager has not exactly given up on his rookies. Joe Haynes and Alex Alexandra and Arnold Anderson have displayed enough talents to warrant a serious trial. And he will know much more about young Roberto Ortiz after Saturday when the big Cuban faces the Detroit Tigers at Tinker Field in his unveiling. But Chase and Krakauskas are his pet hopes, and rightfully.

"They've been around long enough now to start showing me something," added Harris. "I know they can pitch whenever they have their control. That's what I'm working on. For two years now, Krakauskas has been the best pitcher in the league at the end of the season. In September he looks as if he belongs. He can get his fast ball over the plate and he's a winning pitcher when he does that. In fact, he's a great pitcher.

Has Control

"His early start down here should help him. He doesn't look anything like the wild man he was last spring when he walked 13 men at Daytona Beach in five innings. He has more poise and confidence and with plenty of work he should be ready.

"Chase is in the same category. His only drawback has been his wildness. Like Krakauskas he's going to get plenty of work, and, to me it appears that he is already pitching with more confidence. If those two fellows aren't deluding me, we'll have at least two swell pitchers to throw at the clubs we meet when the season opens."

Notes of Nats—Roberto Ortiz is being prepped for his debut against the Tigers on Saturday with three full days of rest . . . while the Nats' regulars are meeting the Tigers in a return game at nearby Lakeland on Sunday, the Nats' rookies will play Joe Engel's Chattanooga club at Sanford, 20 miles away . . . Nick Altrock will manage the rookies and Harris has assigned him three veteran pitchers, Dutch Leonard, Monte Weaver and Jimmy DeShong . . . In denying reports of a DeShong-Lawson trade with the Tigers, Clark Griffith says: "I haven't talked to the Detroit Club since December, when Owner Walter Briggs asked me to lunch and then asked me what I would take for Cecil Travis. I told him he didn't have anybody on his club except Greenberg and Gehringer that would cause me to part with Travis." . . . Satisfied with the infield and their catching, any trades the Nats may make before the season opens will be designed to bolster their outfield and their pitching . . . Ten pounds heavier than he was last year, Jimmy DeShong may have recovered the fast ball that stamped him the Nats' best pitcher in 1936.

Mrs. Lefty Gomez Is Recovering

New York, March 16 (AP).—Vernon (Lefty) Gomez, the pitcher, arrived at Polyclinic Hospital today after a plane trip from the New York Yankee training camp at St. Petersburg, Fla., to find his wife recovering from ill health of six weeks' duration.

Hospital authorities said Mrs. Gomez, the former June O'Dea, actress, does not expect a child, as was reported last night.

The pitcher who was reconciled with his wife last spring after an estrangement, took a room at the hospital to be near her. Doctors reported her condition "satisfactory."

Two Brewers Rank High in Pro Scoring

Mickey Schonfeld, midget Heurich guard, gained a fourth ranking among the scorers with 254 points in 29 games for an average of 8.76 points per contest while Capt. Arthur Zahn, clever forward, was sixth among the scorers with 230 points in 29 games, an average of 7.93.

Atchison-Keller Wins First Play-Off Game

Atchison-Keller Plumbers took the first game of a best two out of three for the Southeast Community Center Basketball League championship defeating the Commissioners, 55 to 41 in a fast, hard fought, free scoring contest last night at Hine Junior High. Wilson Earman, of the Plumbers was high point man, scoring 18 points, with Cecil Earman and Melvin Martin close seconds with 11 and 10 points. Zanelotti starred for the Commissioners.

Chief Guyon Has Record Turnout of 130 Would-Be Ball Players at Eastern

Down in Front

With Richards Vidmer

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 16.—The boys from Buffalo were sitting on a bench and that, of course, wasn't at all surprising; they'll probably spend most of the summer sitting on a bench, for the boys from Buffalo are Buddy Rosar, who led the International League in hitting last season, and Joe Gallagher, who was third in the American Association in the same science. They are destined to spend the coming campaign sitting on the Yankees' bench in the stadium.

VIDMER

But they weren't practicing as they lounged at ease in front of the Suwanee Hotel after the day's work was over. Idly they watched the parade go by and spoke of the old days, which seemed a little incongruous in view of the fact that the parade was composed principally of the aged and infirm while Buddy and Joe are mere lads of 23 and 24.

But by "the old days" they meant six or seven years ago, when they were youngsters playing on sand lot teams around Buffalo. They were teammates then, briefly. Joe played on one American Legion Post team and Buddy on another. But in the Nation-wide tournament, Buddy's team was beaten in an early contest and eliminated. So Buddy went over and joined Joe's team. He played shortstop and Joe played third base, until they reached the national championships. Then Buddy was declared ineligible. They discovered he had played with another team.

They talked about these things, and perhaps somewhere in the backs of their heads they found it strange that they should be teammates again after going their separate ways, yet winding up together with the Yankees, Buddy, who used to be a shortstop, now a catcher; Joe, who used to be a thirdbaseman, now an outfielder.

Born to Baseball

Buddy Rosar always had the urge to be a ballplayer—a major league ballplayer if possible, but anyway a professional. His father was dead and he lived with his uncles, and all his uncles were ballplayers. A couple of them had played in the old Federal League, the others had made the minors, and Buddy followed in their footsteps by instinct.

As soon as he finished high school he reported to Binghamton and broke in by hitting a home run as a pinch-hitter. From that moment on he has been moving steadily toward a regular position with the Yankees. This is his sixth year in organized baseball, yet he is only 23 years old.

Joe Gallagher took a different road to the major leagues, yet he landed there at the same time as his young team-mate of what they called "the old days." Joe didn't have any special ambition to be a professional ballplayer then.

"I wanted to be a lawyer," he recalled, then added quickly, "I still want to be a lawyer. Even if I had to build my own courthouse, I'd like to get up and just talk."

Yanks Hold Reds to One Hit; Pitcher Ferrell's Homer Wins

By the Associated Press.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 16.—Heading hopefully up the comeback trail, Wes Ferrell pitched three innings of runless baseball today and hit a home run which gave the New York Yankees a 1-to-0 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

A sharp single by Tony Bongy off Ferrell in the fourth was the only hit the Reds got all afternoon and just two other Cincinnati players reached first.

Monte Pearson started on the mound for the world champions and pitched to exactly three batters each inning for his three frames. Ferrell faced only ten would-be hitters during his duty tour and Rookie Atley Donald finished up at the same pace.

Baering Down

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer.

The Democrats are also in the field for an executive who can carry an armful of skyrockets through a forest fire without adding to the general illumination.

Eastern Meets Petersburg in Duke Tourney

Title Round of Invitation Play Scheduled Saturday

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Durham, N. C., March 16.—Eastern High School, Washington Metropolitan champions and second seeded team, meets Petersburg, Virginia State runner-up, in the third game of the first annual Duke-Durham Invitation tournament starting tomorrow at 8:30 a. m.

Durham High, undefeated for two years and twice winner of the South Atlantic Championship, plays at 9:45 against Charleston, S. C., High, while Mossville and Greenville play in the opening contest. The morning rounds will be concluded with Macon and Charlotte playing at 12:15.

The four winning teams will play at night in the semifinals, with the title round scheduled for 8:15 p. m. Saturday.

The Durham-Charleston game is the feature attraction of the first round, the latter having a record of 17 wins in 20 starts. Greenville and Mossville present an undefeated team in the former while the latter, Mississippi State champions have won 38 and lost two, heaviest schedule of the lot.

Eastern and Macon reign as favorites, and if both win, will meet in the semifinals.

Harvey Empire Champ

London, March 16 (U.P.).—Len Harvey, London veteran, recaptured the British Empire heavyweight championship tonight by scoring a technical knockout in the thirteenth round over Larry Gains, 36-year-old Canadian Negro.

Helen Dettweiler Loses Golf Lead at Aiken

Washington Girl Falters, Takes an 85

Kathryn Hemphill Takes Lead; Other District Golfers Experience Trouble

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Aiken, S. C., March 16.—Helen Dettweiler and her two links compatriots from the Washington area lost ground today as the third Aiken Women's Golf Tournament prepared for the final 18 holes tomorrow.

Miss Dettweiler, leader at the end of the first 18 holes yesterday saw her game all but collapse in the second round and skied to an 85, while relinquishing the leadership to Kathryn Hemphill of Columbia, S. C. Miss Dettweiler's 156 total for the 36 holes dropped her into fourth position.

Mrs. Betty P. Meckley of Silver Spring, Md., and Mrs. Myron Davy of Washington, also experienced second round trouble but nothing like the ill luck which befell the blonde Miss Dettweiler. Mrs. Meckley's second round 79 was a duplicate of her opening card and gave her a 158 total while holding down fifth place. Mrs. Davy faltered on the outgoing nine today, using up 45 strokes where she had needed only 38 the day before, and finished with a 27 and 82 to go along with her 78 of Wednesday for a 36 hole total of 160, good enough to give her sixth place.

Department Store Bowling

Woodward & Lothrop, defending champions deadlocked the pennant chase with Kahn's in the Department Store Bowling League last night at Recreation Alleys when the Woodward boys whitewashed Garfinckels. Billy Kingsolver with 351 led the winning charge.

Kann's rollers led by Irwin Simon's 387, Henry Miller's 364 and Bob Sproul's 363 took a 2-1 decision from the Credit Bureau.

In other matches Hecht Co. whitewashed Raleigh Haberdasher, while Guy-Curran grabbed 2 from Jelleffs.

Hahn Shoes paced by Wes Chaney's 359 and Amos Cockrell's 356 took the odd skirmish from Lansburgh's.

War Department Bowling

Charlie Franklin and "Shag" Rawlings shared the War Department League honors at Arcadia, with a 143 game nd 368 set. Estimates game of 575 and Hydrogrphics set of 1,666 also counted high totals.

Agriculture Girls Win Community Center Title and Post Cup

Upper—Mrs. Giles, of the Community Center Department, presents The Washington Post Trophy to the Agriculture Girls Team, winner of the Community Center Department Championship, at Macfarland Junior High School. The score was 19-4 for the Government League champions over the Civic League titleholders. Lower—An Aggie goal fails as a member of the Typos blocks the shot

Agriculture Girls Defeat Typos, 19-4, for Post Cup

Agriculture's sextet won the Community Center Department girl's championship over United Typewriter representatives last night in Macfarland gym by the surprisingly decisive margin of 19 to 4.

The Aggies, undefeated in Government League competition, were figured no more than an even choice with the Civic League titleholders, but after the first half was fairly close, 8-2, Joe Bertolini's charges ran away with the verdict, limiting their opponents to two field goals by Misses Reid and Gray.

Misses O'Neil and Halex led the winners' attack with 7 and 6 points while District girls tennis champ, Willie O'Steen, was next with four points.

Mrs. Giles, supervisor of the Community Center Girls' League, presented The Washington Post trophy to the winning team. Marge Quilter is assistant director of the league.

Government League Title Is in Balance

Anybody can win the U. S. Government League title at Bolling Field gym tonight as the final three games are played. Bolling Field, the leader, is playing F. B. I. in the final match at 9:20 and can cinch the title with a victory.

Marine Barracks, G. A. O. and Army Medical are tied for second and either can win if Bolling loses. The Marines meet Agriculture in the first game and Medical fights with G. A. O. in the other game. A three-way tie is possible.

Sacred Heart Wins

animated by motives beyond the box office. If that is true, what us cash customers would like to know is, why do they not let us in free of charge?

We must say we rather like the flag waving era. We are one cash customer who always gets a big diff out of martial music and marching men. A lump comes up in our throat when we see a movie of our big battle wagons under way with the old Stars and Stripes fluttering in the breeze. We are a set-up for patriotic eloquence. In short, we are exactly the type of cash customer on which the flag wavers can always figure a return on their investment.

It seems to us, however, that some members of the younger generation are not as responsive to flag waving as we are. We have in mind one of rather close kin to us. We were with him one evening in a theater where the flag waving was particularly energetic and while he was dutiful enough in attention, we did not notice that flushed cheek and that tearful orb that we feel should always attend an occasion of patriotic fervor.

"What's the matter with you?" we demanded impatiently. "Where's your patriotic spirit? Don't you know you ought to show more excitement over that talk about defending our rights and our liberties and keeping this a free Nation? Suppose this country were threatened with invasion tomorrow, where would you be?"

"Why," he replied, in obvious surprise, "I'd be in the army, wouldn't I? Where else could I be? You know," he added, "they would draft fellows like me."

"Yes," we said, "but wouldn't you feel a burning impulse to rush to the defense of your country's flag, anyway?"

"Why, I suppose I would," he said, wonderingly. "Wouldn't everybody?"

Historical Entertainment

We said yes, of course, because we did not want to disillusionize him at his age. We fear he will find out when the time comes that while the burning impulse aforesaid is pretty general, it is not always unanimous in these United States. Still, under that selective draft business, impulses will no longer figure as much in the size of our armies as prior to the big war.

Some of the best movie entertainment us cash customers have been getting lately is in the historical shorts. They represent a quiet, genteel form of flag waving because usually they stick fairly close to the historical facts, and they are well presented and well acted. We know of no better method of presenting history to the young cash customers.

A good historical short is a great thing for the older cash customers, too. It is calculated to relieve the calamities of a dull feature picture, as for instance the opus that does our friend Bob Hope dirt, or the one that has Miss Joan Crawford in support of a bunch of ice skaters.

It is a curious thing about Miss Joan Crawford, long one of our cinematic favorites, that she can surround herself with the feeblest stories of any person on the screen not excepting Bill Fields. We do not know whose fault that is. Sometimes we suspect Miss Crawford herself. It surely could not be her writers because no Hollywood writer could purposely be as feeble as Miss Crawford's stories.

She is a good actress, but unless she does something a little more mature and of greater human characterization and interest than her last pictures we are going to have to give up on her. We mean as a cash customer, of course. We dismiss Bob Hope's last one as a minor tragedy.

Dodgers Planning To Swap Lavagetto For Gutteridge

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 16 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers are contemplating exchanging Third Baseman Harry Lavagetto for Third Baseman Don Gutteridge, of the St. Louis Cardinals, a reliable source indicated here tonight.

Long conferences between Dodger Manager Leo Durocher, former Card, and Vice President Branch Rickey of the Cardinals, with Coaches Billy Killefer and Charley Dressen, lent credence to the report.

Which club originated the deal was not learned, although indications were that the Dodgers cooked it up. No cash was involved.

Hagen to Captain Ryder Golf Team

Sarasota, Fla., March 16 (U.P.).—Walter Hagen will be captain of the 1939 United States Ryder Cup team, George R. Jacobus, Professional Golfers Association president, announced today.

Hagen was captain in 1927, 1929, 1931 and 1933.

"He is not only the ideal captain as demonstrated by past performances, but the logical representative of professional golf in the United States," Jacobus said.

Rhode Island Reds Trail Lucky Strike in Tourney

The first prominent out-of-town team to roll here in the National Duckpin Bowling Congress, the Rhode Island Reds, of Apponaug, R. I., finished with a disappointing total of 1,721 last night at Lucky Strike Alleys. The host alley's entry in the District League, Lucky Strike, rolled 1,776 and the highest team total in the tourney thus far, but one that will probably be far down the list by April 1.

Tony Carpenter of the red-clad visitors had consolation in a powerful 176 game but other than that the next best effort was a 136 by L. Rounds. Carpenter had a 393 set, a good start in the all-events, while N. Paye had 351, L. Rounds 354, E. Gardner 327 and B. Bisson 296.

Karl Gochenmour paced the Lucky Strike team with consecutive games of 109-142-131 for a 382 set, also a help in the all-events. Nick Rinaldi had 353, John Chaney 352, Al Wright 350 and C. Appler 339.

Best game of the night was a 665 by the locals, while the Reds posted a 637 aided by Carpenter's 176.

D. C. Government League

E. Steele, of the Sewer Department team turned in high individual game of 153 at the Brookland alleys while W. Xanten, of City Refuse, was high set scorer with 377. Sewer recorded high team game of 561 and City Refuse was tops for team set with 1,626.

National Capital

Dome Oil bowlers set a new season's team record of 1,867 in the National Capital League at Lucky Strike, and tied Daily News high game of 639. Percy Patrick's 395 set figured in the record and three-game win over Tribby's. Wallace Bunch led Red Circle to a 2-1 triumph over Wayne Oil with a 150 game while John Chaney's 145-402 was prominent in Daily News whitekash of Jalepes.

Ladies Procurement

Bernadine Fogel and Helen Wilson tied for high game of 111 in the Ladies Procurement League at Lucky Strike, while Helen Suess had top set of 320. Empires topped the teams with 513 and 1,476 in winning three from Larks.

American Legion

Tom Courtney's 139-352 featured Nash sweeping a set from National Cathedral in the American Legion at Lucky Strike.

Inter-Sorority

Emily McWilliams counted individual game and set honors for the night in the Inter-Sorority League at Petworth, with a 130 game and 346 set. Chi Sigma retained it's lead by winning the odd game from Beta Gamma Phi.

Connecticut Ave. Ladies

Violet Zirkle and the Orioles team shared top scores of the night in the Connecticut Avenue Ladies League, the former with 130-320 and Orioles with 481-1,312.

Insurance

Mr. Sugar toppled the pins for a 150 game in the Insurance League at the Ice Palace, but S. White tied his set of 370. Aetna had team highs of 589 and 1,690.

G. A. O.

W. Martin's 159 was chalked up as a season's mark in the G. A. O. League, A and B division, at Lucky Strike. J. W. Miller had a 416 set while Revenue No. 1 had 584 for game and 1,651 set.

Silver Spring Ladies

Charlotte Suess had a 323 set as Bergman's won three from Hendrick's in the Silver Spring Ladies League. Victoria Laundry won the odd one over Edmunds, with Jessie Sautrey's 324 high, and RC Cola tripped Silver Spring Motor Sales in the odd one, with Catherine Lewis' 329 best. Southern Oxygen topped Monument Eelectric 2 to 1 and Alma Schulte led Shepherd Park Restaurant over Coffman Real Estate, with 293.

Federal Ladies

Irene Scott's 132-357 topped the Federal League women at Arcadia, and game and set totals of 575 and 1,607 by the Marines led the teams.

Island reveal that they had the Gotham team bewildered by getting down the floor so fast. To quote one observer "The Aggies frequently had four men under the basket without a Long Island man around during the first 10 minutes." In fact the Aggies ran up a 20-10 lead. They were beaten because they lacked the reserves of Long Island and were not accustomed to the well-heated garden court.

Coach Jerry Hines assured The Post, over the phone last night, that he would be ready to send his club against Dapper Dan on either next Wednesday or next Thursday night.

Another of those marathon programs is listed for the tournament on Saturday afternoon and night. As was the case last week, eight games will be played during the afternoon with the lighter-weight clubs holding the stage. The night show involves a natural in the clash of the Jewish Community Center and Y. M. C. A. Reds. The J. C. C. five defeated the Y. M. C. A. Blues last week in a game in which the boys forgot for a few fleeting seconds that they were on a basketball court.

The "Y" Reds exhibited rare form in gaining a one-point victory over the Trans-Lux Hour Glass team in an upset last Wednesday night. They will be ready for all the J. C. C. guns including the sensational Sid Karp, who scored 27 points against the other "Y" club.

Rifle Matches Wanted

The Bureau of Engraving Girls' Rifle Club is looking for opponents for Saturday afternoons at the N. R. A. range, North Capitol and G streets. Managers are asked to call Veronica Somers, DE. 1661-R. In a match yesterday Team Two defeated Team One, 1,194 to 1,179.

Banks Ready To Supply Loan Funds

However, Borrower Must Show Ability To Make Repayment

By Thomas M. Cahill.

A movement for sound loans has been inaugurated by the District of Columbia Bankers Association through the medium of a co-operative advertising campaign to inform the public that ample funds are available for substantial business purposes. One of the advertisements reads: "Good loans are among the best assets a bank can have. No matter what your credit needs may be, you will find your local banks ready to meet them."

It is explained that applications for loans must come from responsible individuals and that the money must be used in sound business undertakings. While banks are anxious to increase their loans as much as possible, officials must be reasonably certain that borrowers are in a position to make return payments as they fall due.

A similar campaign was conducted by members of the local bankers' association recently in connection with loans for housing repairs and modernization and this effort was very successful. President Hilleary G. Hoskinson, of the association, and other executives of that group express hope that this plan will be helpful to both banking institutions and borrowers.

The association's advertising committee arranging the informative campaign is composed of the following: Willard G. Barker, Morris Plan Bank, chairman; Robert L. Flather, American Security & Trust Co., vice chairman; Eliot T. Thomson, Washington Loan & Trust Co.; George O. Vass, Riggs National Bank, and E. Percival Wilson, National Savings & Trust Co.

Stock Exchange Meeting

Members of Washington Stock Exchange entertained representatives of 16 other stock exchanges this week at the Shoreham Hotel, following adjournment of a two-day session of the latter convened in an endeavor to have the Securities Exchange Commission ease certain regulations considered retarding to trading volume on all exchanges, as well as curbing new issues to an extent.

The guest list included William McC. Martin, president of the New York Stock Exchange, and John Hancock, chairman of the exchange's committee on stock listing, who was also chairman of the meeting held in this city. Harold C. Patterson, Y. E. Booker and James M. Johnston represented Washington Stock Exchange at the sessions.

Recommendations prepared at the meeting were presented to the Securities Exchange Commission by W. G. Paul, of the Los Angeles exchange; William B. Long, president of the Boston Stock Exchange, and Robert H. Clubb, St. Louis exchange. Various suggestions called for changes in procedure and others for changes in the securities acts.

Simplification of reports, changes in prospectuses, registration statements, manipulation, information, proxy rules, private placement of securities, extension of credit to customers, shorter periods for registration statements to become effective, are some of the important topics considered in the recommendations. All are designed to broaden securities markets and trend of new capital.

Paul Hathaway Heads Appraisers

A local chapter of the Society of Resident Appraisers is assured by action of local real estate, building and loan and financial men at an organization meeting last night, held in the offices of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board with Paul Hathaway acting as chairman.

After an address by Frederick M. Babcock, deputy administrator, Federal Housing Administration, officers and directors were selected.

Balloting resulted in the election of Paul Hathaway, Home Owners Loan Corporation, as president, Wilfred H. Blanz, American Building Association, vice president, and Clarence E. Kefauver, secretary-treasurer. Robert E. Buckley, F.

Nat'l Cash Register Nets $1.47 a Share

New York, March 16 (AP).—National Cash Register Co. reported today consolidated net profit for 1938 of $2,392,340, equal to $1.47 a common share, compared with $3,920,667, or $2.40 a share in 1937.

American Air Lines, Inc.

American Air Lines, Inc., earned net profit of $213,262 or 73 cents a share during 1938, largest in its history, C. R. Smith, president, said today. In 1937 the company reported net loss of $93,628.

Safeway Stores Net Jumps

San Francisco, March 16 (AP).—Safeway Stores, Inc., today announced net profits for 1938 were more than a million dollars greater than 1937. The company's annual report showed a net profit of $4,206,781 or $4.02 a common share after preferred dividends, compared to $3,078,047, or $2.62 a share in 1937.

The City Ice & Fuel Co.

Cleveland, March 16 (AP).—The City Ice & Fuel Co.'s annual report showed today a 1938 net income for common stock, after allowances, of $1,528,358, compared with $3,301,635 in 1937.

Lendable Funds Advance for Week

The Federal Reserve Board said yesterday lendable excess reserves of banks increased for the fourth consecutive week to $3,440,000,000 in the week ended March 15. The total was $30,000,000 higher than the previous week and $270,000,000 larger than it was four weeks ago.

The rise last week, as in the preceding weeks, was due to purchases of gold and other expenditures by the Treasury. The board also reported that the 12 Federal Reserve banks last week sold $70,000,000 worth of Treasury bonds and bought an equal amount of Treasury notes.

Cotton Futures Dip 10 to 11 Points In Hedge Selling

New York, March 16 (AP).—Cotton contracts covering the old crop sloped off 10 to 11 points today, partly under hedge selling. Following an early dip, new-crop positions met better support and finished about unchanged.

A part of the selling of May and July was attributed to spot interests and was understood to represent straddle reversing with Liverpool. The chief support came from the trade on the decline.

Shifting from old to new crop contracts on the narrowing differences tended to emphasize the weakness of the former and steadiness of the latter. The distant months also had the advantage of buying on the part of co-operatives and spot firms.

Cottonseed Oil

Cottonseed oil futures swerved close to recent seasonal lows today before minor rallies left closing levels 3 to 5 points net down. Selling was influenced by declines in lard, cotton and grains. Sales totaled 99 lots: May, 6.91*; July, 7.04*; September, 7.15; October, 7.17. Crude oil was quoted nominally 5¾ cents in the Southeast and Valley and 5¾ cents in Texas.

Engineering Awards

New York, March 16 (AP).—Engineering construction awards in the last week totaled $46,449,000, an increase of 27 per cent over the previous week, Engineering News-Record reported today. Thus far in 1939, the awards have totaled $684,165,000 a figure 20 per cent above the $668,427,000 total in the same period of 1938.

Wheat Prices Decline With Heavy Selling

Approaches 6-Year Low; May Corn at 5-Year Bottom

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, March 16.—Increased selling in the Chicago grain pits today pushed the price of May corn down to 46¾, lowest in five years, while May wheat fell to 66¾, lowest since December and only about 4 cents above its six-year bottom quotation established last September. Although quotations on both grains were off a little more than a cent at one stage, there was enough buying just before the close to erase some of the day's losses.

Liquidation based on bearish factors affecting the leading grains uncovered stop loss selling as prices receded. Lower Liverpool prices reduced freight rates on Argentina grain shipments to Europe and favorable crop comments from the winter wheat belt were factors in the trade.

Wheat closed ½-⅞ lower than yesterday; May, 67@67⅛; July, 67¼@67¼. Corn was ½-⅞ off; May, 47@47⅛; July, 48¾@48¾. Oats ⅛-¼ lower. Rye 1¼-1½ down. Lard 10-15 lower.

Time Reports Drop In Business Index

New York, March 16 (AP).—Time magazine's index of business conditions fell from 95.1 to 93 last week, thus canceling all its gains since the lowest week of last October. A year ago the index was 88.3.

Major factor in last week's decline, the publication said, was a decrease in spending activity in financial and trade centers. Another, and probably temporary, factor was a heavy increase in security loans in connection with the Government's March financing. For the month of February the index figure averaged 95.2, compared with 99.4 for January and 88.9 for February, 1938.

Stock Prices Only Moderately Lower Coppers Rise With Utility Programs Czech Bonds Continue to Tumble

New York, March 16.—Stocks extended their losses of Wednesday in the early stages of today's market, but as offering thinned out prices showed inclination to recover. The close was a small fraction lower. Utilities, steady to firm, reflected favorable opinion on the group in consequence of a good assortment of new power financing proposals.

With London and Paris markets unsettled and nervous over Germany's new successes, pressure was communicated to the foreign exchanges and leading European rates, notably Swiss francs, declined, bonds moved in a narrow grove except for Czechs, the 8s of 1951 breaking a further 9¾ points and 8s of 1952 giving up 28 points, last prices in both cases representing about one-third of par. Wheat and corn prices were off about a cent a bushel. Old crop cotton diped 10 to 11 points, with new crop unchanged to 2 points down.

Business News Bright

Business news was comparatively cheerful. Bank clearings showed another large increase for the eleventh consecutive week against last year's figures. Freight loadings were up from the comparative 1938 week and preliminary reports from the automotive centers indicate some further advance in assembly schedules. Financial reports of the day, particularly those from the aviation industry, held some encouragement.

Coppers Lead Slow Recovery

Copper stocks were allied with utilities in leading the creeping recovery which succeeded the lower opening. Anaconda and some of the others in this division recording fractional gains. The rise in this quarter could be accounted for by relaxation of the pressure to which coppers have been subject ever since announcement of the Chilean metal export tax proposal. Export copper showed further signs of weakness, spot and futures declining on the second call in London, the foreign cartel selling only 795 tons all day and domestic sales continuing on the light side. Japan, however, is said to be contracting for fairly large amounts of copper and domestic sales should be stimulated by utility programs.

Steel Shares Dip

Steels, while active, were unable to make headway and losses in the group were, on the whole, larger than in other sections. Steel common, the day's leader, was down ⅜ and Bethlehem gave up ¼.

Building shares were inclined to work higher as engineering construction awards increased 16 per cent from the preceding week and 9 per cent from a year ago. Johns-Manville, prominent on the down side Wednesday, closed at 94, a point higher. American Telephone, which sold down to 161¼, lose to 164¼, its high and close, for a net gain of 1½.

Foreign Selling

Brokers continued to emphasize that, because of further complications in the European picture, domestic markets will have to rely on developments within the United States so far as a resumption of upside operations are concerned. Several commission houses say that quite a bit of the selling on Wednesday came from foreign sources.

In the meantime, financial and market commentators are placing greater emphasis on the need for constructive action by Congress, more particularly in the tax and economy matters. Definite moves, entirely divorced from political influences would, in these respects, heighten optimism and have an immediate and beneficial effect on trade.

Czech Issues Drop Sharply

Listed bonds displayed steadier tendencies today, with the exception of Czech government obligations, which continued to fall sharply. Both issues of Czech government 8 per cent bonds tumbled virtually to default levels, on losses of 9¾ and 28 points, respectively. The larger drop was due to the idleness of the 8s of 1952 during the preceding session. Prague 7½s were held at 48, unchanged, possibly because sinking fund purchases were in progress.

Trading Is Light

Little trading was done in any department of the market, for turnover was only $5,440,000. German government bonds improved fractionally, as the outlook economically is better for that country. Scandinavian issues drifted lower, on renewed apprehensions as to what part of the earth Chancellor Hitler next may want to make his own.

Hungarian and Rumanian bonds dropped, for obvious reasons, and even the British Empire issues were soft. Brazilians rallied slightly in the Latin-American group, while others remained dull.

Rails Generally Lower

Domestic carrier bonds of the speculative variety showed more small losses than gains, but the changes were not conclusive as to trends. Borderline rails were irregular, while default issues softened. Interborough bonds receded again in the local traction group, but B. M. T. 4½s were better. Communications issues dropped, as did most other special groups.

Treasuries Ease

Long term United States Treasury bonds finally developed a slightly easier tone, which was readily traceable to uncertainty regarding European events. Losses ranged only to 6-32 point. Guaranteed issues of the farm and home corporations were quiet and stable. Best grade utility, railroad and industrial bonds showed small fractional recessions.

Edison Co. Files $25,851,900 Issue Statement

By the Associated Press.

Commonwealth Edison Co., of Chicago, Ill., filed with the Securities Commission yesterday a registration statement covering the intended issuance and sale of $25,851,900 of 3½ per cent convertible debentures, due in 1958.

The statement also covered rights to subscribe for the debentures, and 1,034,076 shares of $25 par value stock to be reserved for conversion of the debentures.

The debentures are to be offered pro rata to stockholders of record March 24, 1939 at 100 per cent of their principal amount. Subscription rights evidenced by transferrable subscription warrants will expire April 28, 1939.

The registration statement said a group of underwriters, headed by Halsey Stuart & Co., Inc., of Chicago, would purchase all of the unsubscribed debentures up to $24,000,000.

Proceeds from the sale of the debentures, the statement asserted, will be applied to the redemption of all the mortgage bonds of Western United Co., a subsidiary.

Farm Workers, Domestics May Be Denied Security

Democrats on the House Ways and Means Committee in secret session last night tentatively agreed to reject proposals of the Social Security Board to include farm workers, domestics and employees of non-profit organizations under the social security program.

This move was made to clear the way for consideration of proposed business tax reforms, which, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau has indicated would be presented to Congress in the middle of April.

Approximately 3,000,000 farm workers, 2,200,000 domestics and 800,000 employes of religious, charitable and other non-profit organizations will not be included in the social security system under the decision.

Boston Wool Market

Boston, March 16 (AP).—(U. S. Dept. of Agr.).—Trading was very dull on the Boston wool market today. Buyers were showing very little interest. Prices were under pressure and occasional offerings were quoted lower in an effort to attract buyers. Good French combing lengths, fine territory wools in original bags were offered at around 68 cents scoured basis. The few bids received on these wools were around 60 to 62 cents and they were promptly refused. Combing bright fleece quarter-blood wools were offered at 29 to 31 cents in the grease, but buyers were showing no interest even at the low price of the range.

U. S. Retailers, Meeting Here, Thank Hopkins

Consideration Noted, Aid Pledged in Distribution Census

A resolution expressing appreciation to Secretary Hopkins and the Department of Commerce for consideration accorded to business in working out plans for the forthcoming census of distribution, and pledging co-operation in the formulation of the schedules, was adopted at the opening session yesterday of the Retailers National Council.

Roscoe R. Rau, of the National Retail Furniture Association, president of the council, presided at the meeting of the 11 national retail trade associations. Present were Rivers Peterson of the National Retail Hardware Association; Lee Langston and Herbert J. Rich, of the National Shoe Retailers Association; John M. Pohlhous, of the National Association of Retail Grocers; William Girdner, of the National Council of Shoe Retailers; Harold R. Young and Irving L. Fox, of the National Retail Dry Goods Association; Wilson Streeter and Charles R. Evans, of the American National Retail Jewelers Association; Rau and William J. Cheyney of the National Retail Furniture Association; John Logan, of the National Association of Food Chains; Gerald Grosner, of the National Association of Clothiers and Furniture, and O. M. Kile, of the Mail Order Association of America. Dr. David R. Craig, president of the American Retail Federation, attended.

U. S. Building 36.1% Above A Year Ago

Chicago, Ill., March 16.—During February a total of $194,640,000 was spent for building construction in the Nation. During the March-April two-month period $371,892,000 will be spent for building. These totals, as reported today in the magazine Building, cover actual expenditures for materials, labor and other cost elements.

The amounts spent during February for each of the main types of building construction are reported as follows: $92,806,000 for residential building; $72,061,000 for non-residential building, and $29,772,000 for alterations and repairs.

The total spent for building during February, $194,640,000, is reported as 1.8 per cent less than was spent in January, but 36.1 per cent greater than the amount spent in February last year.

Presented in the survey are two reports of especial interest to the building field. The first is a comprehensive report of the current low level of prices of asphalt roofing and shingles and gives in detail the manner in which a price war initiated by a comparatively new producer of asphalt roofing products caused a 29 per cent drop in dealer prices.

The second concerns the agitation over policies that are now forcing the architects of the Nation into two groups. One group is reported as making a determined stand to force the American Institute of Architects to back officially the selection of architects on Government work by competition; the other favors retention of present A. I. A. policies of leaving selection in the hands of Government bureaus.

Odd-Lot Sales Exceeds Buying

By the Associated Press.

Selling orders of small trades on the New York Stock Exchange exceeded buying orders in the week ended March 11.

The Securities Commission reported yesterday customers' odd-lot orders to sell totaled 32,310 involving 797,075 shares valued at $28,485,168. This compared with a total of 27,483 buying orders involving 758,656 shares valued at $28,860,410.

Foreign Markets

By the Associated Press.

London, March 16.—Prices were marked down sharply in the stock market today as the "city" continued sensitive to central European political gales. Liquidation was not aggressive—quotations were marked down largely as a precautionary measure—and signs of resistance developed near the finish. Industrials were broadly weak and kaffirs led the retreat among commodity issues. British funds recovered a little from extreme lows and transatlantics steadied near early lows.

Paris—Share prices in the bourse sagged today under comparatively light liquidation. The market made a modest comeback at the finish. Rentes dropped 1.75 to 2.55 francs and Bank of France lost 375 francs. Suez Canal closed 490 francs off.

Liverpool—Wheat futures closed ⅜ to ½ penny lower today under realizing sales. Buyers were cautious as they awaited final outcome of German absorption of Czechoslovakia. Cotton futures ended 5 to 10 points down under general liquidation and hedging.

Brokers' Loans Drop $43,000,000 in Week

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday that last week's loans to brokers and dealers on securities held by reporting member banks in New York City totaled $715,000,000. The week ended Wednesday and the total represented a decrease of $43,000,000 when compared with the previous week.

Loans for the corresponding week a year ago totaled $603,000,000.

Bituminous Production

The National Coal Association, from incomplete car loading reports from the railroads, estimates bituminous coal production in the United States for the week ended March 11 as approximately 7,950,000 net tons. The report of the National Bituminous Coal Commission shows production of 8,570,000 tons for the week ended February 25, and 8,442,000 for the week ended March 4, 1939.

Cotton Consumption

The Census Bureau reported yesterday that cotton consumed during February totaled 562,293 bales of lint and 66,809 of linters, compared with 591,991 of lint and 65,054 of linters during January this year, and 426,866 and 48,524 during February last year.

Sarah B. Dean, Widow of Admiral, Dies

Succumbs at 84 in Emergency Hospital; Active in Civic Groups

Mrs. Sarah B. Dean, widow of Rear Admiral Richard C. Dean, former medical director of the United States Navy, died yesterday in Emergency Hospital following a long illness. She was 84.

Mrs. Dean was born in Lafayette, Ind., and came here in the early 1900's. She was the daughter of Joseph J. and Sophia Upfold Bingham. Her grandfather, the Right Rev. George Unfold, was the first bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church of Indiana.

A graduate of the Boston Conservatory of Music, Mrs. Dean was contralto soloist in several Boston churches during her girlhood. She married Admiral Dean while he was head of the Naval Hospital at Chelsea, Mass., and they came here to live at 1736 I street northwest in a house built by Jefferson Davis before the Civil War.

Mrs. Dean was at one time president of the Washington Women's Club and the Gentlewomen's League. She was also active with the Girls' Friendly Society and numerous civic groups. When she died, Mrs. Dean was living at 1801 Sixteenth street northwest.

She is survived by two brothers, George Upfold Bingham, of South Bend, Ind., and Edmund H. Bingham, of Indianapolis.

Funeral services will be held from St. John's Episcopal Church with interment in Arlington National Cemetery where her husband is buried. Time of the funeral has not been set.

Funeral Services Tomorrow for Nellie Newman, 73

Funeral services for Miss Nellie Newman, 73, former resident of Washington who died Tuesday in Jacksonville Fla., will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at Gawler's funeral home, with burial in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Miss Newman's father, Eugene William Newman, was a former editorial writer for The Washington Post and was famous as a columnist under the pen name of Savoyard.

President to Talk At Shrine April 14

President Roosevelt, the White House announced yesterday, will deliver a brief address at Mount Vernon on April 14, commemorating the day George Washington was notified of his election as President. The address will be broadcast. Sources close to the White House indicated the President might comment on threats to the democratic ideal to which the first President gave frequent expression implicit in the march of dictators in Europe.

A FRIEND ASKED US
"Why Do People Borrow Money?"

Speaking generally, people borrow for human needs. But to be specific, loans are made to meet emergency situations . . . to cover an unexpected hospital bill . . . to pay doctors . . . to repair automobiles . . . to finance new purchases . . . to combine many small bills into one . . . to establish credit. And in every instance we do the best we can to help our friends over the rough spots of life.

We can help you

If you have a need for cash, a visit to any of our offices will help a great deal in solving your problem.

Contract Bridge

By Florence Osborn.

Excitement ran rife at Mrs. Walter Mayer's weekly duplicate game at Staten Island recently, when a regular member who had absented himself for six months came back to take top score on the final two melodramatic boards of the evening.

Rip Van Winkle

This is what P. J. S. says:

"The accompanying hands are particularly dramatic because I am a bridge exile, what with having, after very careful consideration I assure you, chosen matrimony over duplicate. At this particular game, my first in six months, I was delayed by pressure of work, and braged in at the end of the first round to find my partner, Pat O'Reagan, the real hero of the piece, very impatient.

"Toward the end of the game, the fates being kind, we were in second position. There were still two boards to play, and only exceptionally good breaks would put us in first place. This being the situation, we sat down to play the hand in today's box against a strong pair.

"1. Four diamonds—a brilliant slam invitation by Pat.

Today's Hand

Neither Side Vulnerable

NORTH DEALER

♠ A K Q 10 9 6
♡ K 10 9 3 2
◇ 7

♠ 3 ♡ J 8 ◇ J 10 9 8 5 2 ♣ 10 5 2	WEST EAST	♠ 8 7 5 2 ♡ Q 7 4 ◇ 6 4 3 ♣ A K 8 6
	SOUTH
	♠ J 4 ♡ A 6 5 ◇ A K Q ♣ Q J 9 4 3

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣	2 ◇
3 ♡	Pass	4 ◇	Pass
4 NT.	Pass	5 NT.	Pass
6 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: A ♣

"2. Four no trump—the 'blockhead' slam bid.

"3. Five no trump—the 'cumberson' response. You try to figure it out.

"4. Six spades—for heaven's sake, partner, please drop this bidding.

"5. Pass—Aside from Pat, 'passes' like this are made only in heaven.

Simple Squeeze for Six

"East false-carded on the opening lead, playing the club ace instead of the king and shifting to the diamond six. From this point three diamonds and six spades squeezed East in clubs and hearts, making him give up protection of one or the other—an elementary but very pretty squeeze for six spades. Declarer lost only the club ace.

"The result was a 'tied-for top,' and when we turned to the next board, No. 33, the opponents were pretty unhappy. Both sides were vulnerable and North was dealer:

♠ A 10 9 8 3 2
♡ A Q 10 9
◇ J 5

♠ J 6 5 ♡ 7 6 5 3 ◇ 9 7 4 2 ♣ 4 2	WEST EAST	♠ Q 4 ♡ 4 3 ◇ 10 6 3 ♣ A K 9 8 5 3
	SOUTH
	♠ K 7 ♡ K J 9 ◇ A K Q 8 ♣ Q J 10 7

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	2 ♣	Dbl.	2 ♡
Dbl.	Pass.	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: A ♠

"1. Two clubs—a bad bid, but a sacrifice might be possible.

2. Double—It scared East into an error.

One Trick to Declarer

"The play was simple. The ace of spades was opened. Pat took the second round with the king and cashed his three top diamonds. We then cross-ruffed seven tricks. Poor West got the last one."

The Federal Diary

By Scott Hart

Hundreds of Agriculture Department employes walk to work of mornings from the areas about Hains Point where they have parked their cars. Approaching the building, the perspiring hikers from the Point see the nice parking spaces the department makes available and wonder what process a guy has to go through to win a place in there.

They get no answer and begin talking of favoritism—and their tribulations in the ordeal of parking every morning make their indignation rise. They have begun writing letters to their organizations. They contend that the privilege of parking in the free spaces goes to the elect, or to the secretaries and stenographers of the elect.

They say there is no system about it; it doesn't seem to be governed by seniority or any particular rule. It seems a matter of knowing somebody or of knowing somebody who knows somebody and then getting the assignment of a space—this to be held onto with fang and claw and relinquished only over a dead body.

This much seems to be the case: until human nature and manipulations change, the boys with the big jobs will get the parking spaces. Otherwise, the department has tried to make assignments to employes who will need their cars in line of duty, such as running out to Greenbelt or on errands around town.

But that may be poor consolation to the employe hiking in from Hains Point; or to the employe who drove down at 7 a. m., thinking he'd find a space on the street and didn't because the custodial force—that gets to work earlier—was there first; or to the employe who has just laid down cash on the line to enter a public parking lot. One of them told this column yesterday that nothing ever will be done about it because the officials who are entrusted with the problem have spaces for their cars and knowing no personal necessity will not try to mother an invention.

THE N. F. F. E., with extension of the merit system as its 1939 goal, wants school children to compete in an essay on "The Merit System Versus the Spoils System." The contest is open to students of American history and civics in the third and fourth year of public high schools and to students in parallel classes in private and parochial schools. The judges will be Civil Service President Harry B. Mitchell; Senator W. J. Bulow, of South Dakota, chairman Senate Civil Service Committee, and Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, of Massachusetts, member House Civil Service Committee. First prize is $25; second is $15, with five prizes of $5 each. The essay length must be from 1,200 to 2,000 words; the closing date is midnight, May 1. For information on the cause of merit, this column recommends that the contestants interview Representative Robert Ramspeck, of Georgia. For information on the other side, Senator Kenneth McKellar, of Tennessee, is regarded as an authority.

NOTES: Seven governmental agencies reported increases of 1,000 or more in the last six months of 1938 Navy, War, Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works, WPA, Postoffice, TVA and Interior. In the Navy, War and Postoffice departments the increases were largely in the classified service . . . Four agencies reported decreases of 1,000 or more—Agriculture Department, HOLC, Social Security Board, and the Labor Department. Excepting the SSB, these decreases were mainly in the unclassified service . . . The Agriculture Department Orchestra and Symphonic Choir will present a program Monday and Wednesday, March 27 and 29, at 8:30 p. m. in the Agriculture auditorium. The featured soloist will be Anne O'Brien, of the AAA . . . Federal employes, State and locally, who in the past have not paid Federal income taxes, will not be asked to pay for 1938 and previous years. This announcement, from the Treasury, gives as the reason a pending bill in Congress that forgives prior years. The President suggested the bill . . . The Agriculture Local of the U. F. W. A. (C. I. O.) has adopted a resolution urging officers of the Congress of Industrial Organization "to extend every effort to establish unity between the C. I. O. and the A. F. of L.

Bob Burns Says—

How would you like to have a name like Horolampos Demetropolous? He's a West Point cadet, and his name's big enough to stop an army tank. It ain't much wonder that he petitioned the court up in Boston to have a couple inches cut off of it. Horolampos would like to be called Harry from now on. With his last name reduced down to De-Metropolis. Seems like he might have slashed it to Metro an' gone in pictures. How about it, Harry?

There's more folks namin' babies after movie stars these days, which is a terrible handicap to wish on the little tykes. I'm almost in favor of givin' babies numbers until they get old enough to pick their own names. I don't see how many of 'em could go further an' do worse. All the aunts an' uncles an' grandpas an' grandmas who crowd around the happy father and mother an' say: "You gonna name him or her after us?" Boy, how I ever ended up jes' plain Bob Burns is a mystery to me! But I've been called lots of bigger names since!

Bedtime Story

By Thornton W. Burgess.

Danny Is Scared

When sudden danger you must face
In being scared there's no disgrace.
—Danny Meadow Mouse.

Some folks seem to think that it is a disgrace to be afraid or to show that you are afraid. Of course, it isn't. I doubt if there is any one who has not at one time or another been gripped by fear. The only disgrace is in letting fear make a coward of you. And it is a mistake to think that running away is always cowardly. Peter Rabbit and Danny Meadow Mouse and others are constantly running away. They do it every day of their lives. They are not cowardly.

Danny Meadow Mouse was scared now. He was badly scared, and he wouldn't have been ashamed to have admitted it had anyone asked him. Of course no one did, for there was no one with him. He was down in a hole in the ground, dug long ago by Johnny Chuck and not used for so long that the entrance was so filled in that there was only a small opening, one just big enough for Danny to slip through. He was thankful for that because Reddy Fox was right at his heels.

Once inside that old house of Johnny Chuck's, a feeling of great relief swept over Danny Meadow Mouse. He ran down the long hall a little way, and there crouched, waiting and listening. His heart didn't beat quite so fast now. He was still afraid, but the awful fright of a few minutes before was gone. The little folk in fur and feathers recover from sudden fright as quickly as that. It is well they do, for they have so many of them that if they didn't recover quickly life for them would be just one prolonged fright.

"So that fellow was back on the Green Meadows Oh, dear, I hoped I never would see him again. Probably Mrs. Reddy is back, too. That means trouble, a lot of it. Well, he didn't get me this time, and"——

Danny's thoughts were interrupted by a sound that caused his little heart to beat faster, pit-a-pat, pit-a-pat. Reddy Fox was digging.

Danny was a sacred Mouse. Yes, sir, Danny was a scared Mouse. He never before had been down in this hole. He didn't know where it led. He felt trapped. What could he do if Reddy Fox should keep on digging? Danny shivered. Perhaps Reddy would think that so much work was more than one Mouse was worth.

Already Reddy had the entrance cleared. That hole wasn't quite big enough for him to crawl down, but it wouldn't require too much work to make it big enough. Danny Meadow Mouse, in a panic of fear, ran deeper into the ground. He was too scared to think of anything but running. When he came to where that long hall branched he turned into the hall that branched off. He didn't know why he did it. It wasn't because he thought it offered any better chance of escape. Probably it was because it was the natural thing to do, to try any opening that led away to one side.

Presently Danny found that he was running up instead of down, as he had been running. Where this might lead he didn't know. Anyway he didn't dare go back. So Danny kept on. He felt that that was the only thing he could do. He could still hear sounds by which he knew that Reddy was still digging. It is bad enough to be frightened amid familiar surroundings, but it is worse to be scared almost to death in a strange place where you haven't the least idea which way to turn or where you are going.

So Danny kept on, and the first thing he knew he was outside! It was the back door of that old house of Johnny Chuck's. Long brown grass hung over it. Danny stopped abruptly under that long, brown grass. He was quite hidden by it, but he could peep out and see what was going on. Just a little way off, a very little way, sand was being kicked out of a hole and a bushy tail was still in sight. Danny crouched there under that grass, too scared to stay and too scared to run.

$50,000,000 Value Placed On Capitol

Committee Studying Overton-Plan Hears Building Appraisals

Although the U. S. Capitol "has been added to so much" that its construction cost now totals $50,000,000, how would a tax appraiser go about valuing it—and what could the District of Columbia do with it except salvage it, should the Government decide to move away?

A Senate sub-committee considering the Overton plan for division of District expenses between local residents and the Federal Government paused to consider these questions yesterday after a witness had declared the Federal Government should pay taxes "at the same rate as anybody else."

Fred D. Allen, District tax assessor, testifying before the Senators, hesitantly admitted that all Federal buildings were down on the local tax book records "just because we have so many calls about what the Government would have to pay if it paid taxes."

Overton Asks About Price

"I want it understood, though," he said, "that we never have marked up any depreciation against the buildings. They all are down for just what they cost—Washington Monument, Lincoln Memorial, and everything else."

With amused interest Senator Overton (Democrat), of Louisiana, chairman, asked: "Have you been able to put a price on the Capitol?"

Dent said it was down for $50,000,000. "I don't say at all that's its tax value. The Senate Office Building, for instance, cost $6,000,000 but no private company could rent it out to as few tenants as occupy it now and expect to derive a profit from it" he added.

Eyeing the huge crystal chandelier in the District Committee room, Senator Overton said he imagined the Capitol's greatest value might be in "salvage"—if the Congress moved away.

Senator Overton's plan for division of costs between the two governments occupying the Federal area is based on the percentage of land occupied by each. With exception of the Columbia Heights Citizens Association, represented by Luther R. Maddox—who held out for division on a "value rather than a space" basis—all witnesses united in praising the Louisianan's formula as fair and understandable.

Scarcely within memory, some of the oldtimers said, have District groups expressed such wholesale approval of a plan proposed by Congress.

Witnesses Listed

Witnesses who appeared were: L. A. Carruthers, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations; Ernest F. Henry, president of Petworth Citizens Association; Washington I. Cleveland, director of the Distrcit Automobile Association; W. J. Tucker, veteran civic leader; Agnes Siddell, representing Lincoln Park citizens; Dent and Maddox.

Senator Overton announced that no additional public hearings would be scheduled on the measure, but that included in the report before it is printed will be a statement from an expert of the Census Bureau on the comparative tax load borne by District residents and those in other cities and also an addition to the testimony Tuesday by Maj. Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor.

Senator Clark (Democrat), of Idaho, member of the sub-committee, indicated his approval of the Overton plan at yesterday's hearing—but disagreed completely with witnesses who insisted on declaring that tax-free embassy property and the operation of tax-free automobiles and trucks of the Government on District streets were a "burden" to District residents.

"I just don't see how you can claim that. Take the Papal Legation going up on Massachusetts avenue, for instance. Don't you believe it will enhance the value of property around it and that the approximately 60 persons connected with its staff will spend more here than the taxes would amount to? As for Government automobiles, we have as many in my State as you have here and we're mighty glad to have them, I can tell you," he said.

Client Accused Of Relief Food Sale Is Freed

Authorities Unable To Find a Law Applicable to Case

Authorities yesterday could not find a law applicable to a 53-year-old man who allegedly attempted to sell food doled him by a relief agency for his consumption.

Police Court Judge Edward M. Curran dismissed a charge of false pretenses against Nathaniel Applewhite, 700 bloock, Seventh street northwest, with the statement that the defendant had made no false representation to obtain the food and could do what he wished with it.

Assistant District Attorney Karl Kindleberger placed the charge against Applewhite after Policeman Joseph C. Russell said the defendant attempted to sell $1.50 worth of groceries for 50 cents.

Kindleberger said he knew of no other charge that could be brought.

Miss Esther Eddelstone, Public Assistance Relief Station case worker, told the court Applewhite had been receiving food since February 14; that she had investigated the case and found Applewhite in need of the assistance.

Judge Curran asked her whether there had been any false representations in the application for help. She said not.

In dismissing the case, Judge Curran suggested that the only remedy was for the relief agency to deny the man food. The prosecuting attorney, Stephen Haycock, said he believed this action could not be taken. He explained that if the man was certified as in need of food the relief agency could not remove his name from the roles.

Big Distillers Have 'Edge,' Tunney Says

Limited Credits Are Handicap, Monopoly Committee Hears

By International News Service.

Gene Tunney, former world heavyweight boxing champion and now chairman of the board of the American Distilling Co., New York, yesterday told the monopoly investigating committee that big liquor distillers enjoy "an edge over small distillers.

Nattily clad, Tunney appeared as the first of a number of designated "small distiller" witnesses scheduled to tell the committee how the liquor industry is run.

Tunney said that "it's just our hard luck—I mean our company—that we are not able to extend large credits to our wholesalers."

He conceded there are some small companies "doing extremely well" without extending large credits, but declared the financial standing of a distiller is a factor in its sales volume.

Tunney's entrance to the committee room was 30 minutes late. After waiting his call for two days in an anteroom, the former ring idol was driven into retirement by spectators and autograph-seekers. He had to be telephoned to appear.

Another witness, James E. Friel, vice president of Jos. E. Seagram & Sons, Inc., New York, told the committee that, because it is comparatively new, the liquor industry "is bound to see some casualties."

Dutch, Swiss Ship Gold Here For Safety

Fear of Further Changes in European Map Held Reason

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 16.—About one-fourth of the Netherland's recorded gold reserves have been transferred to the United States since the war crisis culminating in the Munich pact last year, a check in banking circles indicated today.

Germany's march into Bohemia and Moravia, giving it command over an estimated $100,000,000 in gold and foreign exchange reserves in the central bank at Prague, directed attention of bankers to one of the main reasons assigned in financial circles for the big money shifts—fear of further changes in Europe's map.

Switzerland was reported to have sent a large part of its metal reserves to London and New York in uneasiness over the course of events since the Nazi expansion began.

$225,000,000 Sent

The gold flow from the Netherlands—the biggest holder of the metal outside the United States, France, England and Russia—has amounted to more than $225,000,000 in the last six months, import figures showed.

Both the Netherlands and Switzerland, though relatively small states, have been known as strongholds of wealth for a long time.

A movement of capital for account of Jewish refugees and nervous money owners was rated partly accountable for the transfer of gold here in recent months.

Earmarked at Federal Reserve

Gold import figures indicate approximately $100,000,000 received here last month were earmarked (stored) at the Reserve bank rather than into the U. S. Treasury's holdings, where the metal becomes part of the Nation's monetary stock.

A record total of upward of $300,000,000 in gold has been placed under safeguard at the Reserve bank for foreign account, it was estimated.

United States—About $15,000,000,000.
France—$2,435,000,000.
The Netherlands—$995,000,000.
